As part of Union Congregational Church's observance of Lent, each Sunday Pastor John Swanson is leading Communion using a different liturgy or Service Order.

This Sunday Pastor Swanson will lead the 10 a.m. worship at Union Church using the order of service and Communion from 1933. His sermon title is "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and tomorrow," based on the New Testament book of Hebrews.

Union Church is located at the corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road. It is handicap accessible.

Quincy Point Congregational

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be observed Sunday at the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The theme for the service is "Count Your Blessings."

Sunday also marks the conclusion of the annual Stewardship Drive.

The Rev. Ann Suzedell will preach and Jane Raymond will be the Deacon of the Day. Lynne Penney will serve as lay reader and Talia Hampton as acolyte.

The Choral Anthem, directed by Paul Thistle, will be "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

A luncheon and orientation session will be held after the service for those who may be interested in joining the church.

On Sunday, March 13 there will be an opportunity for prayer and meditation while walking a labyrinth. The canvas Labyrinth, which measures 35 feet across, was inspired by the medieval floor pattern of inlaid stone from Charters Cathedral in France.

A mini-retreat will focus on participation on a wilderness journey with Jesus. Retreat leader will be Patti Keeler. The program will run from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Rev. Ned Martin will conduct the 9:30 a.m. Communion Sunday worship service and deliver the fourth Lenten sermon at the Houghs neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

Martha Chase, Shirley Pearson, Richard Robbins and Joseph Giggey will serve for the diaconate.

The choir anthem will be accompanied by Janet Little on flute.

Sunday school meets at 9 a.m. in Fellowship Hall with Gloria Brummitt and Susan Carr, co-superintendents and teachers Carrie MacLean and Bette Olson.

The Junior choir will rehearse Saturday, March 5 from 9 to 10 a.m., and with the senior choir after church service.

There is a potluck coffee hour in the meeting room.

The fourth in a series of Tuesday evening 7 p.m. Lenten services will be a piano and organ Lenten music played by Arden Schofield and Lois Zulauf. Bryan Logue will play a trumpet prelude.

Fellowship hour following the service will be hosted by Diaconate members.

The choir rehearses Wednesday at 7 p.m. with Lois Zulauf, director.

Saturday, March 5 is the fourth Clean Up Day organized by the Trustees to clean and work in the parsonage.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Having second thoughts could be a good thing, even if you're determined to go through with your plans. You might find it worthwhile to take a fresh look at how things have been set up.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Financial matters could continue to be a problem until you're able to straighten out some of the more pesky situations. Once that happens, the rest should be easier to unsnarl.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Family matters once again take center stage, and should be dealt with competently and quickly. And, again, insist on others taking on their fair share of the responsibilities.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your creative pursuits seem to be running into a roadblock. But rather than blame outside factors, look within to see if you might be holding back your efforts for some reason.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Keep that keen Cat's Eye focused on relevant aspects of this new situation in your life. Don't be distracted by trivial matters. You need the pertinent facts before making a decision.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) As much as you prefer doing things on your own, continue to accept help if you still need to resolve the problem affecting your project. Some cheerful news is about to come your way.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) While you might begrudge the added time it will take to get your project from point A to B to C, etc., you could benefit from the facts that will emerge over this expanded time span.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Regarding your workplace suggestions, be prepared to produce the facts to counter reactions from skeptics who feel your approach is unreasonable or even impossible.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Savvy Sagittarians will look for work-related answers on their own rather than rely on unproved assumptions. It might take more time to do so, but the payoff is worth it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your aspects continue to favor family issues, with special emphasis this week on changes in and around your home. Get everyone to suggest what he or she would like to see done.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A matter you thought had been settled might still produce surprises. Best advice: Continue to gather facts to bolster your position just in case you need to produce them quickly.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) While your instincts are usually right when discerning 'twixt truth and deception, you could benefit from doing more research on the new "prospect" that you've been pitched.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your wisdom is only matched by your generosity, making you the sort of friend everyone hopes to have.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Lenten Concerts At Houghs Neck Church

Special Lenten Concerts continue at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., on Tuesday, March 8 and March 15 at 7 p.m. at the church.

The concerts are free and all are welcome.

On March 8, organist Arden Schofield and pianist Lois Zulauf will present a concert of Lenten music. The program will include organ-piano duets of classical compositions and such well-known hymns as "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "God So Loved the World" and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

The pair will also play piano four-hand arrangements, including "Amazing Grace" and other hymns.

On March 15, the church's Junior and Senior Choirs will present an evening of Lenten choral music, including a performance of the cantata "God's Holy Lamb."

THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 05E0018-PP1

To Christine M. Kenney of Quincy in said County, Countrywide Home Loans of VanNuys in the State of California, respondents; and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Wayne S. Axworthy of Roslindale in the County of Suffolk representing that he holds as joint tenant an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated in that part of Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, called Squantum, being Lot 4 on a plan entitled "Richards Park, Squantum, Quincy, Mass., Ernest W. Branch, C.E., dated April, 1913", and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, in Plan Book 67, Plan 3229, being bounded and described, according to said plan, as follows:

WESTERLY by Lot 3, ninety (90) feet;

NORTHERLY by Sunrise Road, fifty-five (55) feet;

EASTERLY by Lot 5, ninety (90) feet; and

SOUTHERLY by land now or formerly of Timothy F. Callahan, fifty-five (55) feet.

AREA containing 4,950 square feet of land, according to said plan.

This conveyance gives the grantees, their heirs and assigns forever, the right to use the portion of the beach on Richards Park in common with other owners of lands on Sunrise Road setting forth that he desires that – all – of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than five hundred thousand ($500,000) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Norfolk Probate & Family Court, 35 Shawmut Road, Canton, MA 02021 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the fourth day of April 2005, the return day of this citation.

Board Approves License For Quizno's Subs

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday voted unanimously for a common victualer license for a new sub shop, Quizno's Subs, at Adams Plaza, 550 Adams St., the site of the former Gerry's Shoes.

According to Quizno's owner John Magraw, the quick service restaurant will have seating for 28 patrons and feature toasted subs.

According to Magraw, the closest Quizno's, a national chain, is at the South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

Magraw, who worked for Papa Gino's for seven years, said he plans to hire 20 to 25 persons, including high school and college students and working mothers.

One abutter, Norma Rodberg, said she had concerns over the added traffic and the "horrendous odors" that are now emanating from an area restaurant.

However, Magraw said Quizno's uses no fried or greasy foods so odors will not be a problem.

Speaking in support of the venture was Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, who said although he understands Rodberg's concerns, he said the area was a "commercial space needed to be filled."

Davis added the area has had vacancies now and then and that this is "one less store front filled with a national chain."

It was noted that nearby Dunkin' Donuts had earlier wanted to put a drive-thru and would have caused more traffic, Davis said.

Chairman Joseph Shea called the plaza a "very successful place."

Magraw said the hours of operation will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and Sunday's hours have not been decided yet.

Renovations will begin including the additions of two new rest rooms.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

• Canceled the hearing regarding the request of Interfaith Social Services, 105 Adams St., for a one-day general license for the 8th annual yard sale Saturday, March 8 (rain date March 12), from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave. Bettyanne Lang.

• Granted a one-day general license to Interfaith Social Services, 105 Adams St., for the annual Walkathon Sunday, April 24. Bettyanne Lang.

• Granted a one-day general license to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation for the annual Great Strides Walk Sunday, May 22, at Marina Bay. Cynthia McGowan, executive director.

• Granted a one-day general license to the Quincy Lions Club for the 8th annual Run/Walk for Sight Saturday, April 30. Elaine duJardin, event chairman.

• Granted an auto repair license to Yao dong Situ, d/b/a H.K. Auto, Inc., 36r West Howard St.

• Granted a Motor II used car license to Hong B. Deng, d/b/a West Howard Street Motors, Inc., 36r West Howard St.

• Granted a one-day beer and wine license to St. Ann's School PTO for "March Madness" dinner dance March 19 from 7 to 11 p.m.

SQUANTUM SCHOOL STUDENTS, including all English-as-a-Second Language and Asian students, recently celebrated the Asian New Year with an annual parade on Feb. 11. Angela Kou and Visal Min are shown banging a drum and tambourine. Emily Mottolo is holding a poster that says, "Wishing you a Happy New Year." Other children carried festive bells, drums, posters, paper dragons and lanterns through the school to celebrate year 4073, the Year of the Rooster. More than 60 students took part in the parade, which was organized by teacher Anita Wing, Mary Ann Lencki, Carol Wong and Ines Lee.

Sheets 'Thrilled' At Naming Library Wing For Him

McCauley balked at Phelan's proposal, saying the move would serve as a slight against Watson.

She pushed the idea of naming the wing after Sheets and Watson, but that idea did not move her fellow board members or the mayor.

"I will be the first to acknowledge James Sheets' accomplishments to the library," said McCauley. "But I still feel I would like Warren Watson in on the deal."

Falvey Jr. abstained from the Sheets vote, saying he was "badly conflicted" about the matter because it was his understanding that the Crane family did not want any other name attached to the library.

But Phelan insisted that naming the new addition after Sheets would not interfere with historical precedent. "It's akin to naming a wing after an individual," said Phelan.

Instead, the board unanimously endorsed McCauley's motion to place a portrait of Watson in the new wing's lobby. A portrait and plaque recognizing his dedication to the library would serve as a fitting tribute, the board said.

"Warren Watson was an outstanding human being," said Sheets. "The board's action was absolutely proper."

Sheets said even during the 2001 campaign Phelan told him how much he appreciated the library.

"He (Phelan) was just bubbling over with enthusiasm for the new addition and he considered it a major accomplishment by the city," said Sheets.

He will work with Library Director Ann McLaughlin and David Colton, former DPW Commissioner, to come up with an appropriate dedication ceremony.

Sheets is the second political figure whose name will now be part of the library. In 2001, the Children's Room in the new addition was named for the late City Councillor Patricia Toland who also served as assistant city clerk.

Board members are due to receive word from the mayor whether they will be reappointed to their positions. At Monday's meeting, McCauley said board members had not yet received correspondence on the matter.

March 7 Riverwalk Discussion Canceled

The discussion of the proposed riverwalk along the east bank of the Neponset River, schedule for Monday, March 7, in the City Council Chamber, has been canceled.

A new date, possibly April 4, will be announced later by the Neponset River Watershed Association.

Adams Shore Association St. Patrick's Dinner March 11

The Adams Shore Community Association will hold a St. Patrick's Day Dinner Friday, March 11, at the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Proceeds from the 7 p.m. to midnight dinner event will benefit the association's scholarship fund.

There will be music by a DJ, Irish step dancing and raffles. Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 at the door.

For tickets or more information, call Janet Kirby at 617-773-6275 or Dave Mariano at 617-773-2725.

Red Cross Month

Phelan Defends Handling Of School Project

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan on Tuesday strongly defended his administration's actions amid allegations that he misled the public regarding the funding status of a portion of the largest public works project in Quincy's history.

At a press conference held at Quincy Access Television studios, Phelan maintained that the administration has been forthcoming regarding the financial status of the project, and in particular, whether construction of a new Central Middle School is eligible for 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

According to Phelan and City Solicitor Monica Conyngham, the city remains eligible for a 90 percent reimbursement rate for a central middle school project. Language placed in new school building assistance legislation guarantees both projects, they said.

"As I read the law, we are entitled to it," Phelan said.

Phelan said his administration will try to "convince" Treasurer Timothy Cahill, who oversees the state School Building Authority (SBA), that Central remains eligible for 90 percent reimbursement.

Despite Phelan's assertion, a letter released last week from the SBA's executive director states that the Central project is not eligible for reimbursement until July 1, 2007. SBA legislation also states that projects allowed after July 1, 2007 will be eligible for 40 to 80 percent reimbursement from the state.

But Phelan and Conyngham said language in the SBA legislation, unveiled last year, guarantees the high school and middle school project for the 90 percent reimbursement.

Phelan also produced correspondence from Department of Education officials which state that the city was

State Dismisses Appeal

Stadium Renovation Given Green Light

The state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) has dismissed an appeal of the city's plan to renovate Veterans' Stadium, paving the way for installation of a new state-of-the-art FieldTurf surface at the athletic facility.

Renovations had been put on hold for months pending the outcome of the appeal, which was pushed by Quincy resident William Aylward.

In a letter from James Sprague, section chief of the Wetlands and Waterways Program, DEP dismissed the apeal because Aylward failed to state his objections to an original Conservation Commission decision and failed to state how the Order of Condition was inconsistent with wetlands regulations.

According to the letter, Aylward can appeal DEP's ruling by requesting an Adjudicatory Hearing.

TOM KOCH

Mayor William Phelan applauded DEP's decision.

"The renovation of Veterans' Stadium will be a benefit to generations of Quincy residents," said Phelan. "I am proud that we are able to make such an impact on our quality of life, without impacting our local taxpayers. This facility will be a source of pride in our community."

Phelan proposed renovating the stadium as part of his $10 million Natural Resources Investment initiative. Revenues from the city's hotel/motel tax will be used to pay for the project.

Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, said the stadium project will be environmentally sound.

"From the beginning, we did our homework on this project," said Koch. "I am hopeful that we can move forward on this project in time for the fall 2005 season."

Koch said the new surface has its own comprehensive drainage system which does not require fertilizers or pest treatments.

Phelan said the new surface will be utilized by football, soccer and lacrosse players at the high school and youth sports level.

McCauley: 'We Want To Get To The Bottom Of This'

Special Council Meeting March 28 On School Issue

The city council will conduct an investigation into how the largest building project in Quincy's history lost important funding from the state and scrutinize the city's actions regarding that end.

On Monday, March 28 at 7 p.m., the council will hold a special city council meeting and conduct a probe into how the city failed to obtain 90 percent reimbursement for a school project involving Central Middle School.

Mayor William Phelan, past and present school committee members, city officials and representatives of the state legislative delegation have been asked to attend the meeting.

"We want to get to the bottom of this controversy," said Council President Frank McCauley. "This will be a good chance to get everyone in the same room and figure it out."

In addition, the council will conduct hearings and investigate a series of issues involving the construction of a new Quincy High School and Central Middle School.

At Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi's request, the council has requested city officials to produce all correspondence regarding the high school project, including letters, video tapes of meetings, minutes of meetings and any other pertinent information.

At Monday night's council meeting, Raymondi blasted Phelan, saying the two-term mayor "betrayed the public trust" by failing to make public the contents of an August 4, 2003 letter from state officials which stated that Quincy would not receive 90 percent reimbursement for the construction of a middle school.

'I Know I'm Going To Have My Hands Full'

MacRitchie Eager To Tackle QHA's Financial Woes

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Newly-appointed Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) Director Jay MacRitchie said he is confident that he can improve the embattled agency's financial status.

On a split vote, housing authority commissioners last week named MacRitchie, assistant city solicitor and longtime city hall lawyer, to the position of executive director of QHA.

His candidacy was strongly backed by Mayor William Phelan.

MacRitchie said he is ready to hit the ground running and expects to start his new job in three to four weeks. First, he must negotiate a contract with housing commissioners.

"I'm certainly very happy with the vote and I'm looking forward to getting down there," said MacRitchie. "I know I'm going to have my hands full."

MacRitchie said his first order of business as executive director will be to get a firm grasp on QHA's budget.

The agency has been on the receiving end of much criticism after a state auditor's report last year said QHA had insufficient operating reserves and took more than a year longer than state guidelines to fill low-income rental units.

"It's a tall task and we've been through it with the city," said MacRitchie. "We will take a close look at everything and see how we can make things run more efficiently."

Despite warnings from state and federal agencies that they might withhold funding for the position, MacRitchie said he is confident his appointment will be looked upon as a favorable development.

"I'm confident that when they see my qualifications they will approve," said MacRitchie. "I would have my credentials held up against anyone or other people who run housing authorities throughout the state."

The roughly $100,000 salary is split between the state and U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In January, as board members whittled the candidate list to six, Marc Slotnick, associate director for the state Public Housing and Rental Assistance, fired off a letter urging the authority's board to reopen the search process.

Slotnick said he was concerned that the board's job consultant determined "at least one of the candidates chosen as finalists does not meet the minimum qualifications" for the position of executive director.

JAY MacRITCHIE

Slotnick did not mention MacRitchie by name, but the city hall lawyer was placed on the final list by the board despite being disqualified by the consultant.

Despite warnings, the authority's board of commissioners appointed MacRitchie on a 3-2 vote.

Chairman James McDonald, Kevin Cotter and Rev. William McCarthy favored MacRitchie, while Christine Cedrone and Jean Kennedy voted for another candidate, Patrick Morganelli.

Four commissioners were appointed by the mayor; the other member, Cedrone, was appointed by the governor.

A spokesman for the state agency said last week they will take a close look at MacRitchie's candidacy.

"We don't know him one way or another - we haven't looked at his credentials," said Phil Hailer, spokesman for the state Department of Housing and Rental Assistance.

MacRitchie's supporters maintain he is a person who can right the agency's financial ship.

"In the past, directors have been appointed that didn't have any housing experience," said Rev. McCarthy. "Jay has served three mayors very faithfully and he knows the ins and outs of the city. He will do a good job."

McCarthy said he strongly doubted that state and federal officials would pull funding from the agency.

Cedrone criticized the vote, but said she will continue to work hard on behalf of authority residents and staff.

"I'm going into negotiations with an open mind," said Cedrone. "I don't feel as though it was an open process, but I was outvoted."

MacRitchie pointed to his experience as a 16-year member of the MWRA board of directors as further proof that state officials will have confidence in him. He has been appointed to serve four terms by four different governors.

His municipal experience as a 23-year city hall lawyer has taught him to handle finances, oversee construction and manage staff, he said.

"I don't think a state agency is going to say he is good enough to do this job but not good enough to do another," he said. "There are a lot of transferable skills involved with running state agencies."

City Receives $1.6 Million For Housing Programs

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday that the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has awarded $1.6 million in grant funding to various housing programs in Quincy.

The grants were awarded to the city's Department of Planning and Urban Development.

"We are proud to partner with the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition to combat the plight of homeless people and families in Quincy," Phelan said.

"I want to thank HUD for understanding the value of these important programs that give people a chance to regain their footing during times of trouble."

JOHN YAZWINSKI

The specific projects to receive funding are the Family Housing Project, South Shore Housing Employment Initiative Program and Father Bill's Place. All three programs are administered by the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition.

"I want to thank the Planning Department, the Homeless Board and Mayor Phelan for their support," said John Yazwinski, executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition.

"I am encouraged that we are working to create housing solutions for people, instead of merely finding temporary sheltering solutions."

The grants are awarded through HUD's McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Competition.

Mayor Phelan and Dennis Harrington, Quincy's Planning director, accepted a national HOME Program Award for Excellence from HUD in January for the city's efforts to alleviate homelessness.

"I want to compliment John Yazwinski and his staff for the work they do in our community," said Phelan. "I also want to compliment our Planning Department for their work in compiling the applications and administering such vital housing programs."

Union Votes 'No Confidence' In Fire Dept. Study

The Quincy Firefighters' Association Local 792 took a vote of no confidence in the city's pending study of the fire department's long term needs, according to union President Tom Bowes.

On a near unanimous vote, union members Monday voted no confidence in the fire study "because of the administration's manipulation and utter disregard for the democratic process that was agreed to by all parties involved at the beginning of this venture," according to Bowes.

The selection of Robert Haley to serve as the fifth member on the committee acted as the catalyst for the vote, said Bowes.

South Shore Democrats To Discuss Party Platform Here March 15

South Shore Democrats are invited to a hearing of the state party's platform committee Tuesday, March 15, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library atrium, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Mayor William Phelan and Rep. Kathleen Teahan of Whitman, the regional chairs of the committee, will serve as hosts.

The party platform is a flexible document which is revised every four years to reflect the party's official position on a variety of social and economic issues from health care to economic security.

Democrats who are unable to attend the hearing to make their recommendations known are invited to submit their testimony by e-mail to platform@massdems.org.

Participants at the Quincy hearing are encouraged to submit written testimony at that time.

Final adoption of the 2005 Massachusetts Democratic Party Platform will take place at the state convention Saturday, May 14, at the Paul Tsongas Arena in Lowell.

For more information, call Democratic Party headquarters at 617-472-0637.

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

Some additional facts: Annual Percentage Rate (APR) applies to 1-2 family owner-occupied homes and assumes a maximum 80% loan-to-value and first mortgage position. A 15-Year loan would be repaid in 180 equal monthly payments of $7.97 per $1000 borrowed. This rate is effective as of 03/02/05 and may vary by property type, loan amount, credit-worthiness and loan-to-value ratio. Other rates & terms are available, including 10-Year and 20-Year loans. THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 11, 1818, "Frankenstein," by 21-year-old Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, is published. Although frequently called the world's first science-fiction novel, "Frankenstein" explored philosophical themes and challenged Romantic ideals about the beauty and goodness of nature.

• On March 10, 1876, the first discernible speech is transmitted over a telephone system when inventor Alexander Graham Bell, working in his Boston home, summons his assistant in another room by saying, "Mr. Watson, come here; I want you."

• On March 12, 1888, the most severe winter storm ever to hit New York City reaches blizzard proportions, costing hundreds of lives and millions of dollars in property damage. The 36-hour blizzard dumped some 40 inches of snow on the city, and for several weeks, massive snowdrifts isolated the region from the rest of the country. Messages north to Boston had to be relayed via England.

• On March 8, 1936, Daytona Beach, Fla., stages its first race strictly for stock cars on a combination beach and public road course. Bill France, who would go on to found NASCAR, finished fifth in the race.

• On March 7, 1955, "Peter Pan," starring Mary Martin, becomes the first Broadway play featuring the original cast to be televised in color.

• On March 13, 1969, the Walt Disney studio releases "The Love Bug" starring "Herbie," a lovable Volkswagen Beetle with a personality. By becoming one of the top grossing films of 1969, "The Love Bug" allayed fears that the Disney Studio would collapse without the presence of the recently deceased Walt Disney.

• On March 9, 1997, the Notorious B.I.G., born Christopher Wallace, is shot to death at a stoplight in Los Angeles. The murder was apparently the culmination of an ongoing feud between rap music artists from the East and West coasts.

Dolores Overwhelmed

Dolores Finn is overwhelmed.

She is in training to run the Boston Marathon next month to raise funds to help find homes for special needs children.

DOLORES FINN

Her goal was to reach $2,500.

But since we reported it here Feb. 10, she has already doubled that amount with more than $5,000 in contributions.

"I'm overwhelmed by people's generosity," she says. "I really appreciate it. And I'm so thankful."

Dolores, the personable wife of City Councillor Joseph Finn, has never run a marathon, something she has always wanted to do. She recently turned 40 and decided it was time to do it or forget it.

And do it for a worthy cause.

She is running to help raise funds for the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE), a private non-profit agency that finds homes for special needs children and children traditionally hard to place. This has given her a charity entry slot in the marathon.

Adoption and foster child care have been an important part of the Finn home where there are seven children. Four of their own: James, 12; Conall, 10; Michael, 7; and Kevin, 5.

The fifth, Ty, 4, is a former foster child the Finns took in and later adopted. And there are two foster children, a six-month-old boy and an 18-month-old girl who are Ty's siblings. Dolores and Joe hope to adopt them, too, to keep the two brothers and sisters together.

Dolores has been in serious training despite all the snow and freezing weather this winter. She was doing well, slowly working her way up to 20-plus miles, but recently strained her left leg.

But that isn't stopping her. She is determined she will start and finish the marathon and is now working out in a Quincy health club until she can get back running on the streets.

She's grateful for the more than $5,000 in donations so far.

Anyone wishing to help the cause still can by making a check payable to MARE and mailing it to Dolores at 15 Williams St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Dolores also has a personal page website www.justgiving.com/pfp/finn.

She is determined to finish the marathon.

But even if she didn't she is already well on her way to helping find a good home for a special needs child.

That's what is important.

ONE OF Tom Galvin's nostalgic postcards in The Sun's "Scenes From Yesterdays" feature was a treat for old friend Bob Quinn, now in Naples, Fla.

QUINN

The 1925 postcard showed the Quincy Rotary Club's float in the Quincy Tercentennial Parade celebrating the 300th anniversary of Quincy's settlement at Mount Wollaston.

Standing in front of the float was John (Joe) Quinn, president of the Quincy Rotary Club in 1925 and superintendent of the Citizens Gas Light Company plant on Brackett St.

Bob, his son, a long-time popular executive and "ambassador of good will" at the old South Shore Bank, writes:

"Just a little note to let you know that as always, it's a bright spot in the day when The Quincy Sun arrives.

"Your recent "Scenes From Yesterday" of Quincy Rotary's 1925 parade float with Dad, straw hat and all, (like a Rose Bowl king) enlightening me of Quincy history I never knew of was extra special. Keep it going."

Bob, we hope Tom Galvin never runs out of postcards. He keeps looking for them wherever he goes and manages to find a few here and there.

PERSONAL: Thanks to Edith Matthes of Weymouth for her kind words: "It's like sunshine when my mailman delivers my Quincy Sun."

Edith, that makes it all worthwhile. Thanks again.

CONFESSION: This winter has really gotten to me. So much that when I turn the TV on and find Dick Albert, Harvey Leonard or Ed Carroll forecasting another storm I lose it and start yelling at them as if they were to blame. That's something like shooting the messenger.

Spring, where art thou?

Let's Build Quincy High School Now

Over eight years ago a task force comprised of a variety of stakeholders in our community set forth on a plan to improve the quality of our educational facilities in the city of Quincy.

The next step in that plan is to build a new Quincy High School and to convert the existing Quincy High School to Central Middle School. A variety of logistic, environmental and financial issues have been dealt with and due to the unwavering support of state and local elected and appointed officials this plan remains on life support. The latest letter from the Massachusetts School Building Authority clearly tells us that the time to build the new Quincy High School is now.

The plan put forward with the unanimous approval of the Mayor and the School Committee in August of 2003 and the unanimous approval of the City Council in September of 2003 is a solid plan which addresses the long term needs of the Quincy Public Schools.

The School Committee finds itself in a Catch 22 situation. From the outset the Central Middle School and Quincy High School were considered one project by us. However, in the eyes of the Department of Education, each school was considered a separate project. The Joyce Amendment kept the funding alive for both projects.

Quincy High would be constructed first and when that was completed the renovation project for Central Middle School could go forward. The Joyce Amendment, which guaranteed the funding for both of these projects, was repealed as part of the Fiscal 2005 state budget. Only building projects currently submitted would be considered by the Massachusetts School Building Authority for reimbursement at this time. This is where we find ourselves now.

The fact that the new Quincy High School is the only project that is presently before the Massachusetts School Building Authority is indisputable and we need to seize the opportunity and go forward with the project now at the 90 per cent guaranteed rate. We need to continue to work with our state delega-

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1924 real photo postcard is a view of the old Wollaston railroad depot as seen from the Beale Street bridge. The classic design of the depot dates its origin to the Victorian era. Looking for a place to sell cigars, a young Howard D. Johnson bought Barlow's patent medicine and newspaper store that was just out of view on the right of this picture. It was here in 1925 that he started his ice cream business. This immediate commercial neighborhood eventually became home to his company's headquarters for almost 40 years, the original store remaining open all that time. The trademark HoJo cupolas, with their Simple-Simon-and-the-Pie-Man weathervanes, were on the orange roofs of nearly all his 1500 restaurants and motor lodges across America. The inspiration for those hundreds of cupolas came to Johnson from the clock tower or cupola on this Wollaston Depot, which he could see out the window of his store. The cupola image also appeared in his famous logo – Landmark for Hungry Americans. Today, this old depot is long gone and the view from this spot is of a nondescript concrete MBTA Red Line train platform and a parking lot. But, in 1972, a granite tablet marking the site of the first Howard Johnson store was placed near where this picture was taken and it has the trademark roofline with a stylized cupola engraved on it. A subtle reminder of this old depot that was here for almost 100 years. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Remembering The Civilian Conservation Corps

This March 31 is the 71st anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps 1933-1942. and it is also a day set aside to recognize the Civilian Conservation Corps (Chapter 154 of the Acts of 2002).

The Civilian Conservation Corps and its 3 million enrollees from 1933-1942 were in all possibly the start of the "Greatest Generation." As mentioned in books 85 percent of the Civilian Conservation Corps served in one of the Armed Forces, and at this date the vast number is way down and falling every day into oblivion.

In recognizing this year, Chapter 60 NACCCA has selected the honorable discharged members of the Civilian Conservation Corps who have served at the Gallups Island Radio School.

These young men after serving anywhere from six months to three years in the Civilian Conservation Corps choose to continue their service to the National Emergency at the request of the U.S. Coast Guard with signing up as Able Body Sea Men. Four hundred of the Civilian Conservation boys made up the greater part of the first 10 class of the Gallups Island Radio School.

That was 1940. Much has been written about the school and the history of these Radio Men. Long forgotten, however, their history is full of danger and death. The survivors like all other "veterans" went about their lives having their history go in the books. While they made homes and raised children mostly in silence. Attrition works in a diversion. Your the only one that knows what you are talking about.

Legislating Chapter 154 helps memory. There is an announcement by law March 31 is "Civilian Conservation Corps Day" because those that survived and those that care can reminisce. There will be on or about March 31 a gathering at the State House in Boston in attendance several state agencies, fellow Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni, friends and Legislators.

Yours respectfully, in remembering that history is in the past but never should be forgotten.

tion, city and state permitting authorities and get the job done. This is no time to point fingers and place blame. Let's all work together and get the job done.

Over the next two years, as we build the new Quincy High School, we should continue to work on the Central Middle School application for submittal in July of 2007 when the window of funding opportunities reopens. We should also continue to work on the renovation project application for Sterling Middle School. A solid plan was brought forth in 2003 and we need to continue to move forward for the good of the city of Quincy. A continued strong school system adds value to the quality of life in our city.

The citizens of Quincy, the Mayor, the City Council, the School Committee and the State Delegation need to continue to work together to keep the City of Quincy the ideal place to live, to work and to raise a family.

Little League Fields To Get New Look

This Week
1969
36 Years Ago

Five Little League fields in the city would receive their first renovations since they were built in the 1930s as part of a $15,000 appropriation from the City Council.

Parks Director Richard Koch said that despite the lingering snow on some fields, he expected the work of re-seeding and sodding to be completed in time for the baseball season.

Fields scheduled for upgrading were Merrymount Park, Adams Field, LaBrecque Field, O'Rourke Field and Southern Artery Field.

HOUSING AUTHORITY PRODS CONTRACTOR

Members of the Quincy Housing Authority met with representatives of Concrete Construction to complain about the lack of progress at the 150-unit high rise under construction on Martensen St.

The original 18-month construction schedule was extended for a number of times because problems with the foundation and drainage. However, since then work had not kept up to speed.

Several QHA members set up another meeting for next week to ensure that the much needed senior project was available as quickly as possible.

McCORMICK RE-ELECTED PARK BOARD HEAD

James McCormick, Sr., was re-elected unanimously as chairman of the Park and Recreation Board.

McCormick, who served on the School Committee, was first appointed to the board in 1966 by Mayor James McIntyre. He became chairman when Richard Morrissey left the board.

Also re-elected were Joseph Gildea as vice chairman and Kathleen McCoy as secretary.

5 NOMINATED TO FILL SCOLAMIERO'S SEAT

The Harborview Residents Committee nominated five persons to fill the seat of Louis Scolamiero on the Quincy Housing Authority whose term expired March 18.

The resident's committed urged Gov. Francis Sargeant to name one of the following to the housing board: Thelma Rogers, Herbert Steenson, Edward Grindle, John Morrissey or Frank Pace.

Jane Esterquest To Perform With Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra

Quincy resident Jane Esterquest will perform with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras (GBYSO) in its 2005 Concert Series.

Esterquest plays violin for the Junior Repertory Orchestra and is currently a student at Central Middle School.

She is the daughter of Jay Esterquest and Marjorie Jordan.

GBYSO, an independent organization housed at Boston University's College of Fine Arts, offers a variety of musical opportunities for young performers throughout New England.

Students are accepted to one of the GBYSO program's orchestras according to their ability and experience. The orchestras include the Senior Orchestra, Repertory Orchestra, Junior Repertory Orchestra, Preparatory String Orchestra, and Intensive Community Program. GBYSO students come from throughout New England to rehearse weekly from September through June at the university's College of Fine Arts.

The orchestras perform each year in some of Boston's finest venues, including Sanders Theatre, Symphony Hall, and BU's Tsai Performance Center.

Boston University has sponsored GBYSO since it was established in 1958. The university provides rehearsal rooms, office space, and musical instruments. The dean of the College of Fine Arts and the director of the music division serve as ex officio members on the GBYSO Board of Directors.

Rep. Mariano Named To Chair Financial Services Committee

Rep. Ron Mariano has been elected chairman of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Financial Services, where issues concerning banks, credit unions, mortgage companies, insurance and securities are taken up.

Mariano has served as House Chairman of the Joint Committee on Insurance for four years. The Financial Services Committee is the result of the merger of the Insurance and the Banks and Banking Committees.

RON MARIANO

"I am thrilled to be a part of this vital new committee and eager to work with my colleagues in order to best serve the people of Massachusetts in the area of banking, insurance and securities," said Mariano.

His new responsibility is bound to improve the influence of the South Shore delegation on Beacon Hill, he said.

An Important Message To Quincy Parents:

YOUR CHILDREN'S ACCESS TO ALCOHOL HITS YOU WHERE YOU LIVE.

A recent survey sponsored by The Impact Quincy Coalition found that almost 30% of Quincy Kids between the ages of 12 and 16 obtain alcohol from their own homes.

Here are some tips to help keep your children safe:

- Don't keep alcohol where it can be easily obtained by kids.
- Store all alcohol in locked cabinets.
- Closely monitor any alcohol you have and keep in mind that you can be liable if a minor drinks alcohol on your property.

Benefit For Avery Glennon April 8 At Florian Hall

A benefit fundraiser for 15-month old Avery Johannah Glennon, who has been diagnosed with a brain tumor, will be held Friday, April 8 from 7 p.m. to midnight at Florian Hall.

The benefit will feature a disc jockey, cash bar, drawing and silent auction.

Avery is the daughter of Sean and Jo-Ann (Hidalgo) Glennon, formerly of Quincy and now residents of Hanover. Last October, instead of celebrating her first Halloween trick-or-treating, she was at Children's Hospital being diagnosed with a brain tumor.

It was four days before her first birthday.

For her parents, Jo-Anne and Sean Glennon, life as they knew it changed forever that day.

The subsequent weeks were a blur, with their time spent traveling into the Jimmy Fund Clinic in Boston for meetings with teams of specialists and having multiple tests performed on Avery. While the prognosis is good, Avery's treatment plan includes a year of chemotherapy and MRI's, as well as ongoing doctor's visits.

Sean, who is a probation officer, and Jo-Anne, who is a part-time esthetician, face a minimum of twelve unpaid days each month for the next year to care for Avery. When Sean's coworkers first heard about the diagnosis, they immediately pooled all of their collected sick time to donate to Sean so that he wouldn't have to worry about not having a paycheck.

AVERY JOHANNAH GLENNON

Gov. Romney recently signed into a legislation a bill making it possible for state employees to donate their sick time to help ease the Glennon's financial burden while they take their 15-month old for chemotherapy treatments.

Those who know Sean and Jo-Anne know they would do anything for anyone, without expecting a thing in return. Everyone who heard about their situation immediately asked, "What can I do to help?" The answer quickly became clear and their friends and family have organized "A Time for Avery" on April 8.

Organizers say they hope the fundraiser will alleviate their financial worries so they can focus all of their energies on getting Avery well.

Tickets are $25 each. Raffle and silent auction items are sought for this event and any support will be deeply appreciated.

Step Ahead Kindergarten - Lynda Mitchell, Director

"I didn't realize how much money I was spending on my house."

Glendon Crowell enjoyed his house in Quincy until he realized how much it was costing him. Then he discovered a smarter way to retire at Linden Ponds, the South Shore's newest active community for people 62-plus.

"I didn't realize how much money I was spending on my house until I gathered all of my bills together," says Glendon. "Now that I live at Linden Ponds, I was able to cancel all the services—electricity, gas, house maintenance—and it feels good."

The monthly service package at Linden Ponds streamlines all of your monthly bills, so you just have to write one check a month. It includes property taxes, gas, heat, electricity, A/C, sewer, water, trash collection, cable television, 24-hour security, home and grounds maintenance, and much more.

It's no wonder so many people from Quincy are making the smart decision to move to Linden Ponds.

We are coming to your town to talk about the Linden Ponds lifestyle. Call now to reserve your seat at our next informative luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. We'll also send you a FREE Information Kit.

Gutro To Seek Third Term In Ward 5

DOUG GUTRO

Citing a record of accomplishment, and a desire to follow through with several key projects in the ward, Doug Gutro announced that he will seek re-election as Ward 5 City Councillor.

"I have been privileged to represent the people of my district and I will continue to work hard to maintain their trust and support," said Gutro, who is seeking a third term on the city council.

Gutro points to public safety, public works, environmental improvements, as well as a reputation for responding to neighborhood concerns, as his chief credentials.

Citing recently released arrest statistics from the Quincy Police Department, Gutro said he is proud that Ward 5 remains one of the safest sections of the city.

"With the support of the neighborhoods and businesses, we brought Community Policing to Wollaston for the first time as well as an increased police presence to Quincy Center," said Gutro.

He said his advocacy served as a catalyst for a new agreement between the city and the MBTA to make Quincy's subway stations safer. He has also pushed for a comprehensive study of the fire department's longterm needs.

Gutro also pointed to his support for the Wollaston Beach sewer rehabilitation project.

"Even as we invest millions of dollars in sewer rehabilitation which will improve water quality at Wollaston Beach, we are keeping our water supply safe and healthy through water main replacement projects like those taking place in the neighborhoods on Hospital Hill," said Gutro.

He also said most residents share his view about the importance of maintaining the streets and sidewalks. He cited the council's approval of a new pavement management plan as proof that the city is moving in the right direction.

Gutro pointed to his support of Mayor William Phelan's $10 million bond to buy open space and improve parks and beaches with revenues derived from the city's hotel/motel tax. Adams Field will again host the Babe Ruth World Series, and improvements to Mitchell and McCoy woman's softball field and Merrymount Park's Adams walk should be completed this spring, he said.

"Many of our most popular parks, playgrounds, and beaches are seeing landmark improvements at no cost to the local taxpayer," he said. "But as we move forward, I will work to ensure that every penny is spent wisely and in a manner that continues to benefit the next generation of Quincy residents."

If re-elected, Gutro said he will work to improve the city's financial situation, spur investment and redevelopment in Quincy Center, work with Quincy Medical Center to address its parking needs and pursue road and sidewalk improvements.

Morrissey Named To Chair Joint Legislative Committees

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

Sen. Michael Morrissey has been named to chair two joint committees of the state legislature — Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure and Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy.

"I am extremely pleased to be able to continue my efforts in the areas of government regulation of utilities, telecom and licensure for my constituents and all the people of the Commonwealth," said Morrissey.

The senator from Quincy also retained his seat on the prestigious Senate Ways and Means Committee.

The Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy Committee oversees the energy, utility, cable television and communication service providers in the Commonwealth.

The Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure Committee provides legislative regulation and oversight of the boards of registration for building trades and professional occupations.

In addition to his two new chairs, Morrissey was also appointed to the new Joint Committee on Election Laws and the Joint Committee on Tourism, Arts and Cultural Development.

Milton Hospital Art Auction April 28

Milton Hospital is planning its annual spring event to raise funds for the purchase of a 16-slice CT scanner that will provide quicker, clearer and more complex diagnostic imaging for patients.

This year's event, The Art of Giving - Celebrating Quality Community-Based Healthcare to be held at Lombardo's in Randolph on Thursday, April 28, will feature an auction of high-end items related to the fine arts and floral design.

Artists interested in contributing their artwork are asked to contact James Robinson, Milton Hospital Development Officer, at 617-696-4600, extension 1363.

QUINCY GIRL SCOUTS recently enjoyed a morning of roller skating to mark the beginning of the annual "Girl Scout Cookie Kick-off" for 2005. Each year, girl scout cookie sales raise funds to support the offices and programs run by the Girl Scouts Patriots Trail and local girl scouting.

Christmas Parade Theme Contest Now Underway

The Quincy Christmas Parade is months away, but the Parade Theme Contest is now open.

The theme selected for this year's 53rd parade plays a significant role in the creation of floats for the parade, notes Festival Committee Chairman George White.

Deadline for theme entries is April 8. They should be mailed to Ms. Carol Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, MA 02170.

The winning theme will be chosen by the Festival Committee at its April 21 meeting.

The winner will be invited to ride in a convertible in the Christmas Parade Sunday, Nov. 27, and will receive a gift from the Festival Committee at the awards ceremony following the parade. Rain date for the parade is Sunday, Dec. 4.

Lions Club Sets April 30 For Run/Walk For Sight

The Quincy Lions Club will conduct its eighth annual Run/Walk for Sight Saturday, April 30, starting at 11 a.m. at Pageant Field and continuing over a 5K course certified by USA Track & Field.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. followed by a 1K Run/Walk for children at 10:30 a.m. The fee is $5 for children, $20 for adults and $17 for pre-registration.

Participants can also pre-register on line at www.quincylions.org or call 617-328-1384 to receive a registration form.

Proceeds from the Run/Walk will be used to fund eye research and support the Quincy Lions Club's activities in the community.

"Thanks to the tremendous support we've received from the local community, the Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight has raised thousands of dollars for eye research and aid to blind and visually impaired persons in our local community," said Lions Club President Jennifer Logue.

Following the 5K race, a buffet lunch will be provided by the Outback Steakhouse. The event will also feature a disc jockey, prize raffles, medals for winners and T-shirts for all registrants.

The Lions Club Eyemobile will be on hand to provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings.

Citywide Parents To Meet March 14

The Quincy Citywide Parents Council will 14, at 7:15 p.m. at the Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd. Curriculum Director Frank Moffett will be the guest speaker.

Norfolk Registry Expands Online Research

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell announces work has begun on a project to further expand Internet accessible land records research at the Registry's website, www.norfolkdeeds.org.

The new project will substantially increase the amount of registered land information available on the Internet.

"There are two categories of land records in Massachusetts - recorded and registered," O'Donnell said.

"Recorded land records are referenced by book and page number based on the traditional Common Law system. Registered land is supervised by the Land Court and filings are referenced by Certificates of Title."

O'Donnell said the Registry of Deeds has available online scanned images of almost all of the recorded land documents filed since 1974.

"We are now beginning work on expanding the registered land library. We hope to continue to improve the usefulness of the system to both real estate professionals and the general public," he added.

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal land records office for Norfolk County.

The Registry receives and records hundreds of thousands of documents each year and is a basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate and accessible land record information.

For more information visit www.norfolkdeeds.org or call 781-461-6116.

Conway Real Estate Seminar Today At Quincy Office

Jack Conway & Co., the largest reality firm in the state, will hold a free informational seminar today (Thursday) from 10 a.m. to noon at its Quincy office, 253 Beale St.

Going the Distance
by Susan

As a working mom living in Mansfield, selling my mother's home in Hanover presented a challenge. My Century 21 Annex Realty agent really took charge. He oversaw extensive renovations, even meeting the painter each morning at 7 a.m. He drove to my home to deliver paperwork whenever necessary. His professionalism and knowledge gave me peace of mind across the miles!

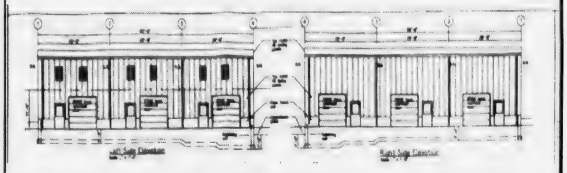
Daniel J. Flynn Construction Co., Inc.

As building owners and managers, we know the importance of getting the most out of a real estate investment. Outdated and worn physical space can impede your rental rates, or even result in lost tenants. Delaying property improvements can only result in one thing – loss of revenue.

As a construction firm, we know that there is no substitute for quality and timeliness in the building industry.

At Daniel J. Flynn Construction Co., Inc., we've built our business around these key concepts – delivering the quality you expect within the time frame you require to create a better return on your real estate investment.

Flynn Construction has the resources to accomplish all your construction and building needs. Whether its construction management, design build, tenant fit-outs, turn-key construction, or building construction, our team of project managers, architects and licensed construction personnel are committed to meeting deadlines on every one of our projects. We've coordinated the entire construction team with that goal in mind.



We believe in a hands-on approach. Our management staff is always available, on-site if necessary. We are always ready to respond to property owners, designers, engineers and other key players in the construction process to create a successful "procuring" relationship between all parties.

As general contractors, we surround ourselves with the best possible talent in the local building industry. We strive to secure the most competitive bids from the most reliable subcontractors the market has to offer.

Hints For The Home

Recent Survey Shows Closets Need Cleaning

(NAPS) – Despite their mother's warnings, even as grown-ups, people continue to struggle with messy closets, according to a recent telephone survey.

When asked which area was most in need of organizing in their house, nearly one-third (31 percent) of the respondents said closet, ahead of garage (27 percent) and home office (8 percent).

To bring order to closet chaos and clutter, follow these simple tips from Rubbermaid and organization guru Peter Walsh, organizer on the popular TLC program "Clean Sweep" and author of "How to Organize Just About Everything":

• Don't jump into cleaning. It took months, even years, for closets to get cluttered. Set a reasonable timeline on how long it will take to declutter and get organized. Break the job into small, manageable pieces and tackle them one at a time.

• Use the ratio rule. When sorting clothes, shoes and other items stowed in the closet, try cutting down the total number you keep. For every four items you keep, throw away one. Challenge yourself and try to lower the ratio to three to one or even two to one.

• Use vertical space. Use a closet organization system that is easy to install and requires limited preplanning. These systems, such as the new Rubbermaid Configurations closet organization system, can make it easier to make order out of chaos, add a new look to your closet and make the most of that unused vertical space.

• Understand and honor your treasured collections. Items thrown to the back of the closet aren't collections. If you truly treasure those items, display them properly in your home; if not, ask yourself why you're keeping them.

• Take your child's perspective. Hang shelves and hooks where kids can easily reach them in their rooms and closets. Buy plastic containers and label them visually with a photo of the contents so kids can easily clean up their own toys.

"Closet systems are an important tool for organizing a messy closet," Walsh says. "Configurations by Rubbermaid is great because it eliminates cutting, requires only one measurement and offers countless arrangement options. People can literally reconfigure their child's closet as they grow, or redesign their own closet seasonally to maximize organization space."

For more information on closet organization systems and home organization products, visit www.rubbermaidcloset.com.

What Happens When A Landlord Defaults, Takes Security Deposits

By THEODORE RIORDAN, Esq.

Question: My landlord defaulted on his mortgage. My new landlord bought the property at a foreclosure sale. The old landlord kept everyone's security deposits. How can I get my security deposit back?

Answer: When a rental property changes owners, the old landlord is supposed to transfer all of the security deposits over to the new landlord. It doesn't matter whether the change in owners happens through a regular sale or involuntarily (as in a foreclosure or bankruptcy).

Unfortunately, sometimes the old landlord keeps the security deposits. He has no right to do so. A security deposit is owned by the tenant. The landlord is merely holding your money. He has no right to spend it unless and until he needs to repair damage.

The legislature knew that your situation sometimes happens and it made a law to deal with it. Under Massachusetts law (section 15B of chapter 186), the new landlord is liable for your security deposit even though he is completely innocent.

This means that you don't have to go after your old landlord. It's not your problem.

When you leave the apartment, your new landlord must return your security deposit from his own money. His purchase price should have reflected this responsibility. If the landlord wants to, he can give you the equivalent amount of free rent instead of paying you the security deposit.

A tenant should know his rights. You may want to look at other sections of chapter 186. For example, the landlord was supposed to put each tenant's security deposit in a separate, interest-bearing bank account. He is supposed to promptly give you a written receipt showing the name and location of the bank, and the account number.

At the end of every year's tenancy, the landlord is supposed to pay the tenant the interest earned over the past year. Alternatively, he can tell you to deduct the interest from your next monthly payment. The landlord is also supposed to give you a new notice on the renewal of your lease, telling you where the security deposit is currently being held.

Theodore Riordan, Esq., is an attorney with Bates and Riordan, LLP, 645 Hancock St., Wollaston. He is also a former clerk for the Rhode Island Supreme Court.

Escape The Stresses Of Life With A Backyard Waterfall

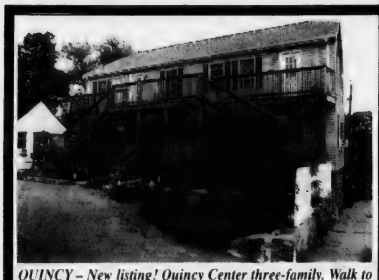
(NU) – Colorful fish gliding through clear water. Plants and flowers blowing in the wind. The sound of water cascading over rocks. What could more relaxing than having a waterfall right in your own backyard?

After a hectic day, the pleasant sound of falling water carries you to your own private getaway, away from daily stresses and neighborhood noise.

Creating his oasis by adding a waterfall to your outdoor space is easy with the new Beckett Waterfall Kit. This simple, do-it-yourself kit provides all of the water-gardening components you need to create a 16-inch-wide waterfall: pump, waterfall weir, filler foam, corrugated tubing, mesh bag and PVC liner.

With the kit, you can add the waterfall to an existing in-ground or above-ground pool. It can be enjoyed by the entire family and is sure to be the center of attention at your next outdoor party.

If you don't have a pond, you can easily build a new above-ground pond and waterfall without a weekend.



Or, if all you have is a patio, transform the concrete space into a peaceful outdoor "room" by adding a rectangular patio pond with a waterfall. You can make a patio pond as deep or shallow as you want and there is no digging required.

Step-by-step instructions for these projects and others can be found on Beckett's Web site, www.888beckett.com.

Lenten Retreat March 13-16 At St. Joseph's, St. John's

The parishes of St. Joseph's and St. John's will host a four night Lenten retreat Sunday, March 13, through Wednesday, March 16, at 7 p.m., sponsored by The Archdiocesan Office of Spiritual Development.

During the retreat there will be common prayer, preaching, quiet reflection and time for fellowship. The Sacrament of Penance will be celebrated on the third evening and the retreat will conclude with the celebration of the Eucharist.

Speakers for the retreat will include Sister Anne D'Arcy, CSJ; Eileen McLaughlin, Father Bill Murphy and Father Frank Conroy.

The schedule:

Sunday, March 13, 7 p.m., St. Joseph's Church, 556 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Monday, March 14, 7 p.m., St. John's Church, 44 School St., Quincy Center.

Tuesday, March 15, 7 p.m., St. John's Church (Reconciliation).

Wednesday, March 16, 7 p.m., St. Joseph's Church. (Celebration of the Eucharist.) Refreshments after the service.

For further information, contact St. Joseph's at 617-472-6321 or St. John's at 617-773-1021.

Preventive Screenings For Stroke March 18 At 1000 Southern Artery

Life Line Screening will be at 1000 Southern Artery Friday, March 18, to conduct preventive screenings to reduce the risk of a stroke.

The screenings involve the use of ultrasound technology and scan for potential health problems related to blocked arteries which can lead to a stroke, aortic aneurysms which can lead to a ruptured aorta and hardening of the arteries in the legs, a strong predictor of heart disease.

Also offered for men and women is a bone density screening to assess their risk of osteoporosis.

Each screening takes 10 minutes or less to complete. A complete vascular screening package is $109. A complete vascular package including the osteoporosis screening is $129.

Appointments will begin at 9 a.m. Pre-registration is required. For more information or to schedule an appointment, call 1-800-697-9721.

Life Line Screening is located in Cleveland.

Low Back Pain

By Dr. ANN DOGGETT and Dr. BARBARA CHANG

According to research, 31 million Americans have low back pain at any given time.

One third of all Americans over age 18 had a back problem in the past five years which was severe enough for them to seek professional help. And the cost of this care is estimated to be a staggering $50 billion yearly – and that's just for the more easily identified costs!

Back pain is a result of a combination of factors. By understanding the causes of low back pain, we can take a more active role in treating it.

Common Reasons For Low Back Pain

• Bad posture and poor alignment: Any posture which compromises the natural curvature and muscular balance of the spine places strain and tension on the supporting muscles and ligaments, for a period of time, weakening them. Without proper support, the joint and vertebrae are forced to carry more weight than they are able to carry, thus leading to premature spinal degeneration and pain.

• Degenerative wear and tear: Like every part of our body, the spine also undergoes a natural aging process, inappropriate alignment and use of the spine can speed up the degenerative process. Osteophytes, arthritis, osteoporosis, disc aging and facet joint damage are some of the effects of aging which can cause low back pain.

• Bulging or herniated disc: A bulging or herniated disc can cause severe back pain, but only a small percentage of back pain can be contributed to this condition and only if the bulging or herniated disc is pinching the nerve.

• Traumatic back injuries: Car accidents, industrial accidents, sports injuries can cause most traumatic back injuries.

• Overexertion: If we ignore the subtle signals our back give us (a twinge or muscle spasm here and there) and continue to move furniture around or sit at the computer for another few hours until we strain a muscle or squeeze a disc, then the pain will put us flat on our back.

• Emotional or psychological stress: Stress causes muscles to contract. If the stress lasts for a long period of time, chronic muscle contraction will stop the circulation of blood and oxygen and lead to pain and atrophy in the muscle or misalignment of the joints.

• Abnormal structures: Such as scoliosis, spina bifida or spondylolisthesis can cause low back pain occasionally.

Whatever the cause, low back pain can be debilitating. Taking good care of your spine and seeking proper treatment when you have pain will keep low back pain away and keep your spine strong and flexible.

Dr. Ann Doggett is a licensed chiropractor and nutritionist and the owner of South Bay Chiropractic in North Quincy.

Dr. Barbara Chang is a licensed chiropractor.

Don't Bulk Up to Lose Weight

Q. There are people at my gym who do their cardio workout wearing sauna suits or heavy workout clothes such as hooded sweatshirts and sweatpants. They seem to be working hard and sweat profusely. One person I asked said they wore those clothes to lose weight. Does "bulking up" on clothing while working out provide a safe method for losing weight?

A. No! Sauna suits and heavy workout clothes will not only keep you from safely losing weight, but can be extremely dangerous. This extreme form of dropping a few pounds, once reserved for athletes, has unfortunately surfaced into the general training population.

Sauna suits are workout outfits made of materials designed to hold in heat. The same result is sought when heavy layered workout clothes are worn during cardiovascular exercise.

Wrestlers, boxers and other athletes who must meet a specific weight requirement for competition have been known to use this method to quickly lose weight. In these extreme instances, weight loss is mainly in water weight. Once the athlete successfully weighs in for competition, this practice is immediately discontinued.

As you begin to exercise and your heart rate increases, your core body temperature begins to rise also. Your body begins to sweat as a method of cooling you down and lowering your body temperature. Sweat serves as a defense mechanism against your body overheating.

The danger in wearing clothes that trap in heat is the increased risk of dehydration, hyponatremia (low sodium levels) and an overall decrease in your body's ability to function properly. Both dehydration and hyponatremia can be life-threatening conditions if not recognized.

Although it may seem that those "bulked up" people at your gym are working hard, it's actually their bodies working hard to keep from becoming overheated. Sweat is no way to gauge exercise intensity. For example, if your gym is extremely cold one day and hot on the next, you may find that you don't sweat as much on the cold day because your body may not have to cool you down as much.

The most effective way to lose weight is that old combination of good exercise and proper nutrition. A consistent lifestyle of cardiovascular exercise and strength training, in addition to a balanced nutrition plan, will guide you toward your fitness goals.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@ hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

COMPOSITE SKETCH

There is a tooth-restorative procedure that lends itself to a variety of cosmetic problems, including root abrasion (roots exposed by gum recession or notched by years of aggressive brushing), gaps between teeth, permanently stained or discolored teeth, or crooked/misshapen teeth. Composite bonding involves the application of tooth-colored resin to teeth to correct these and other tooth irregularities in a quick, affordable, and aesthetically pleasing manning. Yielding very attractive results, composite bonding adheres to the tooth to provide a relatively strong and durable repair while removing very little (if any) tooth structure. Available in a variety of colors and special shades, composite bonding can be made to look as natural as your own tooth.

Although no cosmetic dentistry procedure can take the place of good oral and periodontal hygiene, dental bonding can brighten your smile quickly and easily. A beautiful smile can lighten the hearts of those around you and give you an extra dose of self-confidence at the same time. We want to make the most of your smile. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for superior oral health care. We think you will be delighted with the treatment and counsel we provide. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Bonding can be performed in a single session at the dentist's office and is completely painless.

We need you.

Red Raiders Bow Again To Bridgewater-Raynham

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Simply put, the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team was not better than Bridgewater-Raynham this season.

The Trojans completed the hat trick against the Red Raiders, knocking them off for the third time this year in last week's first round of the Division 1 South Sectionals.

The 14th-seeded Red Raiders (10-11) played well against the third seed but couldn't overcome B-R's favorable size advantage, falling, 66-60.

"We had a really hard time stopping them in the second half," said head coach Jim Rendle. "They got very aggressive and got a lot of points at the free throw line. They're a very big team. They outrebounded us (29-16) and got a lot of points in the paint. That was real costly."

NQ established a 29-23 lead at halftime, but B-R capitalized on the Red Raiders' foul trouble and also added a string of 3-pointers over the final 16 minutes to take control of the game.

Junior John Murray, a 6-4 center, had to play conservatively in the second half with four fouls, and the Trojans seized that opportunity.

And when the Red Raiders adjusted to B-R's inside game, a couple of backup guards delivered the final daggers, drilling four straight 3-pointers.

"That really hurt," MacFarlane said.

Junior Imad Elkatrib turned in a strong outing with a team-high 18 points, six rebounds and four steals. Murray added 15 points, four rebounds and two blocks and junior point guard Kyle Costa chipped in nine points while breaking the press effectively.

Junior Akil Benjamin (eight points) stood out defensively, limiting Anthony Mendez to six points after his 23-point performance in the first meeting.

"Our effort was there against B-R," Rendle said. "We were pretty competitive with them. Overall, we were competitive at the end of the year against some strong teams. We played a very difficult schedule this year."

"We're very excited about next year," he added, noting the team graduates only one senior. "We'll have a veteran team. If we work hard in the offseason and continue to improve, we're going to have the best season at North in quite a few years."

North Quincy Falls To Franklin In First Round

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team had climbed back from double-digit deficits all season it probably felt it had Franklin right were it wanted them in last week's Division 1 South Sectionals.

Down 23-8 in the early going, head coach Doug MacFarlane called a timeout to regroup the girls.

"I said, 'Here we go girls. We're down 15.' Historically, all season long we've gone down 10 to 15 points and come back," he said.

But not when you shoot 23 percent from the floor and 36 percent from the free throw line. The deficit ballooned to 42-18 at halftime as the 11th-seeded Red Raiders ended their season with a 77-46 loss to the sixth seed in the first round of the tourney.

"Unfortunately, we had one of those games where everybody played bad on the same day," MacFarlane said. "That doesn't happen that often. You want those games during the season, not in the tournament."

NQ made 17-of-73 shots and 8-of-22 free throws, with its top three scorers shooting a combined 12-of-51.

"Total meltdown," MacFarlane said. "No explanation for it. We're not a great shooting team anyway. We just couldn't get it going. We missed a lot of easy shots. Nothing would fall. It was frustrating. The kids tried hard and worked as hard as they could."

Senior tri-captain Sarah Goreham scored a team-high 15 points and senior tri-captain Shauna Kelly added nine.

The Red Raiders graduate six seniors (three starters): Tri-captain Caitie Peters, Amanda Saylor, Katelyn Mark, Meghan Coughlin, Goreham and Kelly.

"I'm proud of the girls," MacFarlane said. "Overall, 14-9 is a nice little record. And four of the nine losses were by double digits. We were in a lot of games. I feel really bad for the seniors. Going out like this doesn't indicate the way they've played here."

CHECK YOUR OIL

If you change your engine oil every 3,000-5,000 miles, why should you take the time to check your vehicle's oil level? Many vehicle owners might argue that their vehicle does not burn oil and that, regardless, their frequent oil-change schedule does not allow enough time for oil to be lost. The fact is, however, that many vehicle manufacturers say that the loss of a quart of oil every 1,000 miles is acceptable. Where does this oil go? Some of the oil migrates into places from which it cannot return, specifically above the top ring and down between the valve guide and valve stem. It is a good idea, therefore, to check your dipstick every 1,000 miles or so.

It is important for the life of your car, and the least impact on your pocketbook, to follow the recommendations in your operators manual. Whether your car is leased or owned, when it comes to maintenance and repairs, rely on our professional, ASE Certified service technicians. To help you do this, the outstanding service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: An oil analysis of an engine is likely to show that a good amount of moisture and unburned fuel may accumulate in the crankcase, which artificially raises the oil level and makes oil consumption seem low.

32nd Annual Event Raises $5,000 To Help Needy Kids

Charity The Real Winner Of Kiwanis Hockey Tourney

Although no Quincy team won a championship, the real winners of the recent 32nd annual Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament will be local charities.

Tournament co-director and Quincy Youth Arena manager Michelle Stenberg expects proceeds between $3,000 and $5,000 to benefit Quincy Kiwanis youth charities, including needy and underprivileged children in the local area.

The Quincy Bantams and Quincy Squirts both put forth strong showings but they came up short in the championship game. The Bantams dropped a 7-3 decision to Needham, while the Squirts suffered a 1-0 heartbreaker in overtime to Norwood.

In the other three divisions, Woburn doubled up the Seahawks, 6-3, for the Pee Wee crown, Weymouth edged Braintree, 4-3, for the Mite trophy and Braintree topped Weymouth, 3-1, for the first-ever Girls title.

The "A" tournament, considered one of the most prestigious youth hockey events in the Northeast, featured 30 teams.

Klagenfurt, Austria, participated in the tournament for the third time in five years with Pee Wee and Bantam squads. Out-of-state teams included Ontario, California, Lewiston (Maine) and Reading (Pa.).

Other teams were Brockton, Hyde Park, Needham, Norwood, Parkway (West Roxbury), South Boston, Woburn, Braintree, Weymouth and the South Shore Seahawks.

Here's a recap of the Quincy teams in all five divisions:

BANTAMS

In the championship, Needham grabbed a 3-0 first period lead and added two more in the second before Ted Walsh scored with an assist from Andrew Bythrow to put Quincy on the board.

Needham struck again to take a 6-1 advantage, but Scott Richardson scored with Chris Brown assisting and Casey Conley netted a goal in the closing minute of the period to make it 6-3.

Quincy couldn't pull closer in the final frame. Needham closed out the scoring with 38 seconds left in the game.

Quincy opened the tourney with a 4-0 win over Braintree, followed by a 4-4 tie with the Seahawks, a 3-0 win over California and a 10-1 rout of South Boston in the semi-finals.

Against Braintree, John Storella-Mullen potted two goals and Bythrow and Richardson each had one. Bill Kiley and Conley had assists.

Against the Seahawks, Walsh pocketed two goals and Brown (assist) and Richardson added the others. Sean Dunn, Conley, Storella-Mullen and Bythrow had assists.

Against California, Brown, Richardson and Walsh scored. Mike Lebel notched two assists and Conley one.

In the semifinals, Brown blasted four goals to go along with three assists and Richardson netted a pair of goals with an assist. Dunn (2 assists), Kiley (2 assists), Walsh (assist) and Bythrow also scored. Joe Reggiannini tallied two assists.

Also skating for Quincy were: goalies Jeff Giordani and Steve Barresi, and John Foulsham, Matthew Grady, Brian McLean, Kevin Shea and Joe Vialpando.

PEE WEES

Quincy played well but lost two close games, falling to the Seahawks, 2-1, in the opener and to Braintree, 2-0, in its next game.

James Mullaney scored the lone goal with Kevin Jago and Ryan Polley picking up the assists. Goalie Matt Brundige turned in solid efforts between the pipes.

SQUIRTS

In the final, Quincy goalie Justin Keenan delivered a spectacular performance but it was not enough as Norwood scored the game-winner in overtime.

Quincy kicked off the tourney with a 6-3 win over Parkway, followed by 3-1 loss to Norwood, a 7-2 win over Braintree and a 4-1 victory over Parkway in the semi-finals.

In the first Parkway game, Alex MacIsaac registered a hat trick. Keenan (assist), Shawn Grady (assist) and Timmy Marks scored. Patrick Verhault, Sean Hannon and Nick McGaughey had assists.

In the loss to Norwood, Hannon tied the game at 1-1 in the second period with Joey Ingemi and Verhault assisting. Norwood struck for a pair of goals in the third stanza.

Against Braintree, Grady erupted for four goals to power the offense. MacIsaac (assist), Ryan Martin and Hannon also scored. John O'Callaghan notched three assists, David O'Connell two, and Rudy Tryon and Grady one apiece.

In the semi-final, Parkway struck first just over a minute into the game but MacIsaac (assist) evened the score at 1-1 before the end of the period. In the third, Grady (assist) pocketed two goals and Marks one. Paul Mulvey had an assist.

Also skating for Quincy were: Aaron Marcel, Tom O'Brien and Andrew Rogantino.

MITES

Quincy advanced to the semi-finals where it was ousted by Weymouth, 4-3. In the middle stanza, Rhys Marcel netted two goals within a 22-second span and Patrick Freeman struck for another to hand Quincy a 3-1 lead. Stephanie DiPietro, Bryan Ayers and Michael Pugsley had assists.

Weymouth answered with three third-period goals to pull out the come-from-behind win.

Quincy began the tourney with a 4-2 loss to Weymouth. It rebounded with a 5-3 win over Braintree before falling to Lewiston, 6-1.

Against Weymouth, Marcel tallied both goals and Freeman picked up an assist.

In the Braintree game, Aaron Clancy potted two of his three goals in the final frame to brake a stalemate for the victory. Marcel and Freeman added the other goals. Pugsley collected three assists, Steve Ross two and Mark Gillespie one.

Against Lewiston, Marcel scored the only Quincy in the third with an assist from DiPietro.

Also skating for Quincy were: James Brennick, Chaislyn Burgio, Brendan Cox, Jake Hallisey, Ryan Harty, John Mulcahy, Emily Tabeek and Joseph Viera.

GIRLS

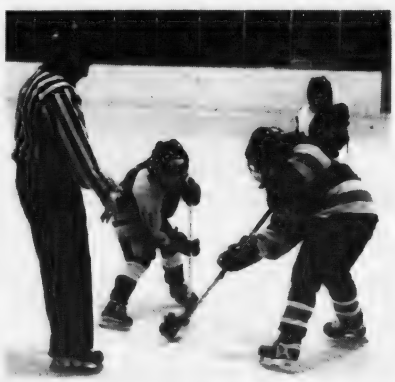
Quincy fielded two teams in this new division. Quincy II opened with a 6-3 win over Weymouth powered by Christina Walsh's hat trick. Colleen Newcomb added two goals with an assist and Colleen Grady one. Jamie Shaughnessy, Danielle Mullaney, Kaleigh McKeon and Kennedy Harding had assists.

Quincy II fell to Braintree, 4-3, and closed out the tourney with a 2-1 loss against the other Quincy team. Quincy's Elizabeth Johnson and Cassandra Briffett scored in the third period and Samantha Foulsham had an assist.

Newcomb scored Quincy II's lone goal with 51 seconds left with Shaughnessy and Walsh assisting.

The first Quincy team opened with a 5-2 loss to Braintree, followed by a 3-2 setback to Weymouth. After beating Quincy II, it dropped a 4-3 decision to Braintree in the semifinals.

Also skating for Quincy were: Abigail Ames, Shannon Coleman, Alison Eleey, Jacquelyn Eleey, Paige Keenan, Caroline Kelly, Erin McDonough, Brighid Noone, Maura Noone, Bridget O'Brien, Emily Sullivan, Kathryn White and Meghan White.



Also skating for Quincy II were: Chaislyn Burgio, Anna Bythrow, Meredith Durham, Sarah Gilbert, Caroline Kiley, Michelle Lee, Briana Mullaney, Meaghan Sullivan and Sarah Tabeek.

COLLEEN NEWCOMB fires a shot to get the Quincy II team on the board first in a game against Braintree in the Girls Division.

SHANNON COLEMAN skates up the ice on a breakaway near the end of Quincy's 3-2 loss to Weymouth in the Girls Division.

CASSANDRA BRIFFETT (blue) of Quincy faces off against Weymouth's Erin Dwyer.

Presidents Defeat Raiders For City Championship

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The North Quincy High School freshman boys' basketball team recently visited archival Quincy seeking to avenge an earlier home loss, but the Presidents stood tall with a 48-37 victory to capture the city championship.

Paris Amado (16 points) opened the scoring for the Presidents (11-5) with a 10-footer in the lane. Matt O'Neil (18) scored twice for the Red Raiders to tie the score at 4 in the opening minutes.

NQ defensive pressure forced three traveling violations by the Presidents but it couldn't convert the turnovers and fell behind 7-4 four minutes in.

Sean Clifford (six) hit a baseline runner, stole the Quincy inbound pass and hit a layup for an 8-7 NQ lead. Less than a minute later, Rob Yee hit a 3-pointer to give Quincy the lead again.

The two teams traded baskets for the next few minutes. Danny Richards (five) fed David Thomson on the weak side for a layup to give NQ a 16-13 lead with five minutes to go.

Christian Burton scored to bring Quincy within one on the next possession. Alex Tragellis popped in four quick points to push NQ to a 20-16 lead.

Deron Jones and Cliff Celestin (11) keyed a 12-0 run to put the Presidents on top. Richards buzzer-beater made the half time score 28-22.

Opening the second half, O'Neil drove the lane, scored and was fouled. Greg Ingram forced a turnover on the missed free throw but NQ was unable to convert.

Dave Griffin hit another 3-pointer for the home team to push the lead back to seven. But NQ forced turnovers on several Quincy possessions in the second half to work its way back into the game.

O'Neil scored on consecutive feeds from Tragellis and Phuoc Nguyen to bring the Red Raiders back to within two, 34-32, at the midpoint of the second half.

Griffin came off a pick to hit a jumper at the elbow, followed by a dish to Kenny Francis underneath on the next possession to run the lead back to seven. Quincy pushed the lead to 11 and held on to win 48-37.

The Red Raiders picked up their fourth win of the season with a 48-36 triumph at Plymouth North.

In the first half, NQ dominated the Blue Eagles on the boards at both ends of the court as Chang Zeng grabbed nine first-half boards. NQ carried a 15-13 lead into halftime despite shooting less than 30 percent for the period.

Down 27-22 in the second half, Clifford hit a runner in the lane and followed with a length of the court drive to pull NQ back to within one.

On a Plymouth North inbounds play, Clifford came up with his fourth steal and drove the lane. The shot went long but Jim Holcomb put back the miss to give NQ a lead it would not lose, 28-27, with seven minutes to go.

O'Neil, Tragellis and Nguyen (team-high 10 points) went 6-of-8 at the line in the closing minute to seal the win.

JACK SHADUCK, 16, of Braintree, will have a team running in its first Boston Marathon to help support him and the First Five Program. The son of Marie and Joe Shaduck, a Quincy businessman, Jack was stricken with a rare neurological disorder at 13 that left him a quadriplegic. Last year, Jack rode 26.2 miles on a specially adapted bicycle to raise awareness and funding for the First Five Program, which helps those with paralysis improve their health and prevent some of the complications that go along with immobility. Shown here with Jack is the team of, from the left, Susan Marshall, Jane Bagley and Barbie Campbell. The program is privately funded. HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Change is still dominant for Rams and Ewes, both in the workplace and their private lives. This is also a good time to look at a possible relocation if that has been one of your goals.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Doing things for others is what you do well. But don't forget that Bovines thrive on the arts, so make some time for yourself to indulge your passion for music and artistic expressions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) While the Romantic Twin considers where to go for his or her upcoming vacation, the Practical Twin will start making travel plans now to take advantage of some great bargains.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your sensitive nature helps you deal with a difficult emotional situation. Be patient and continue to show your sincere support wherever (and for whomever) it is needed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're making progress as you move through some unfamiliar territory. And while there might be a misstep or two along the way, overall you're heading in the right direction. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some good news arrives — and just in time to remind you that you're making progress. Perhaps things aren't moving as quickly as you'd prefer, but they're moving nevertheless.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This is a good week to step back and assess the facts that have recently emerged to see where they can be used to your advantage. Also, don't hesitate to make changes where necessary.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You should begin to experience some support from those who now agree with your point of view. This should help counter the remaining objections from die-hard skeptics.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Don't let your aim be deflected by trivial matters as you try to resolve a confusing situation. Take time to find and thoroughly assess the facts before making any decision.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The possibility of moving to another location has come up. But before you dismiss it as unworkable, it's worth checking out just in case it does have some merit after all.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) New relationships — personal or work-related — show mixed signals. Best to assume nothing. Let things play themselves out until you have something substantive to work with.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your ability to make needed changes without causing too much, if any, negative ripple effect comes in handy when dealing with a sensitive matter either on the job or in the family.

BORN THIS WEEK: Although you like things to go smoothly, you're not shy about making waves when you believe the situation calls for it.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that no one can enrich his own personality by concentrating on himself, but if he directs his thinking toward a friendly enrichment of other personalities, he, himself, has gained as much as he has given to others.

All of us know people with a bubbling-over personality. It seems everybody likes them. Did you ever wonder what causes their popularity?

To start with, they respect the other person's opinion. The let the other person do his share of the talking; they are good listeners. When age variance exists, they never say, "I'm older than you, therefore know more than you." They listen to the other person's problems; they don't minimize the problems by citing, comparing (or exaggerating) their own. They never give unasked-for advice, but are ready to give a suggestion when asked. They give subtle praise without evidence of flattery. They have good humor; can and do laugh at themselves; laugh with but not at the other person.

Check these traits with the people you know that possess 'personality plus.' You will find they have most of these 'goodnesses.' We know a lot of people like this and we're always glad to meet more of them...

LEGAL NOTICE

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
The Trial Court
Probate and Family Court Department
NORFOLK Division
Docket No. 05P0391EP
In the Estate of
RICHARD P. SULLIVAN
Late of QUINCY
In the County of NORFOLK
Date of Death
November 13, 2004
NOTICE OF PETITION FOR PROBATE OF WILL

To all persons interested in the above captioned estate, a petition has been presented praying that a document purporting to be the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed, and that MARGARET E. DELUCA of TAUNTON in the County of BRISTOL or some other suitable person be appointed executor, named in the will to serve without surety.

IF YOU DESIRE TO OBJECT THERETO, YOU OR YOUR ATTORNEY MUST FILE A WRITTEN APPEARANCE IN SAID COURT AT CANTON ON OR BEFORE TEN O'CLOCK IN THE FORENOON (10:00AM) ON APRIL 6, 2005.

In addition, you must file a written affidavit of objections to the petition, stating specific facts and grounds upon which the objection is based, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

WITNESS, HON. DAVID H. KOPELMAN, ESQUIRE, First Justice of said Court at CANTON this day, February 23, 2005.

eligible for the 90 percent reimbursement rate for both projects when the city council voted to approve a $110 million bond for the construction of the schools back in August, 2003.

Phelan offered a blistering attack on his critics, saying, "I pity and feel sorry for some who are relegated to doing that."

The mayor urged city and state officials to move forward and complete the project.

"Let's work together - we have schools to build," he said during the press conference.

A firestorm of controversy erupted after Katherine Craven, executive director of the state School Building Authority, ruled that a $132 million school project involving the construction of a new Central Middle School and partially renovated high school would not qualify for 90 percent reimbursment from the state.

The plan was introduced three weeks ago by the city's architect after previous plans became bogged down with environmental roadblocks.

The new plan in question would face fewer environmental hurdles, but appeared to be a big departure from prior proposals.

After reading about the proposed plan in The Quincy Sun, councillors sent a letter to state authorities seeking clarification on the issue.

But Rep. Ron Mariano, also a school committee member, made his own inquiry about the city's status.

In her reply to Mariano, Craven made it explicitly clear that SBA considers the revamped project a "substantial change in scope" in plans and not eligible for 90 percent reimbursement.

In addition, Craven states that a 90 percent reimbursement rate is off the table entirely for any Central Middle School project because the city never applied for it.

In 2003, state education officials saved Quincy a spot on the waiting list for municipalities requesting reimbursement to build new schools. At the time, Phelan and city officials maintain, the city received assurances from DOE that it would get the 90 percent reimbursement rate for the costs associated with building a new high school and renovating the current building to become Central Middle School.

Last year, however, the state revamped the School Building Assistance program to become the School Building Authority under direction of the Treasurer's office.

In addition, the legislation establishing the 90 percent reimbursement, called the Joyce amendment, was repealed last year along with the agency changes.

In a letter dated August 4, 2003, DOE Commissioner David Driscoll reminded Phelan that the only project under consideration for the 90 percent reimbursement was a high school plan because the city had not applied for a middle school project.

Craven supported Driscoll's assertion by pointing out that a middle school project was not included on the 90 percent reimbursement list because the city "never filed the proper application with the Department of Education."

Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said meetings held between city and state officials resulted in a verbal agreement that Central would receive 90 percent reimbursement when the moratorium is lifted on funding of school projects, July 1, 2007.

Craven reaffirms the state's commitment to a new Quincy High School, but casts doubt on city officials' assertion that a Central Middle School project would qualify for the 90 percent reimbursement.

According to the SBA's new rules, any community applying for reimbursement after the moratorium is lifted can expect a 40 to 80 percent contribution from the state.

The exact amount is determined by a complicated formula involving a community's poverty, wealth and income levels.

A $27 million pricetag has been assigned to various proposals for a middle school project.

As a result, any downward shift in the state's contribution would increase the city's pricetag by millions of dollars.

Still, some present and former school officials cricitized the administration for what they perceived as a lack of communication regarding the largest public works project in the city's history.

"I think the school committee was misled on this as much as the city council," said Jo-Ann Bragg, school committee member. "I never felt the 90 percent reimbursement was ever in jeopardy."

But Bragg said it is important for the city to move forward with the construction of a new high school.

"The school committee has to move ahead on the high school at this time and worry about Central down the line," said Bragg. "I don't want the project to get bogged down in a 'Who said what and when?' scenario."

Christine Cedrone, vice chair of the school committee in 2003, blasted Phelan for what she described as a deliberate attempt by him to withhold information from the public.

"Obviously, this came up during the election season, right before the primary," said Cedrone, pointing to the September, 2003 election. "So it would not be a good idea to reveal this information only a few weeks before an election."

At Tuesday's press conference, Phelan produced videotapes of an August 18, 2003 city council meeting in which he and Conyngham referred to the fact that Central would not be eligible for reimbursement until 2007.

Cedrone also asserted that School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro never told her about the contents of Driscoll's 2003 letter.

"When I got a copy of the letter, the mayor and I never really talked about it," said DeCristofaro. "We both correctly assumed that our concerns were legitimately being met."

During meetings held in July, 2003, city and state officials agreed that both school projects would receive the 90 percent reimbursement, he said. State officials guaranteed that Central would become eligible for the funding rate after the moratorium is lifted, DeCristofaro said.

DeCristofaro said he understands why some elected officials are confused with the situation.

"The process has been extremely complex, and I understand when people hop into the middle of a process and wonder what happened and when," he said.

DeCristofaro said he looks forward to airing out the subject at upcoming school committee and city council meetings.

Special Meeting On School Issue

Raymondi and other elected officials have stated they were under the impression that Quincy was expected to receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state for the costs associated with building a new Central Middle School.

"He owes the residents of Quincy an apology," Raymondi said of Phelan. "I find it inexcusable that the chief executive withheld this information."

But Tom Largey, the mayor's executive secretary, shot back, describing comments as "political grandstanding."

"I would suggest that Councillor Raymondi owes the mayor an apology," said Largey, claiming that the mayor and city officials made public the contents of the letter at a August 18, 2003 council meeting. "This grandstanding is not helping get a school constructed."

Raymondi also requested a report by the city auditor detailing the amount of money already spent on the project, which has yet to see the light of day.

Union Votes 'No Confidence'

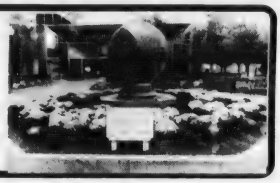
"From day one, the mayor has shown he wants it done his way or no way at all," said Bowes. "You have this fifth member, Mr. Haley, who represents the taxpayers, but this isn't about money, this is about equipment failing, our stations falling apart and protecting the citizens of Quincy."

Haley was chosen by city Purchasing Agent Laurie Allen after committee members could not come to a consensus on a fifth member. Bowes is a member of the committee.



Last week, the committee recommended MMA Consulting Group of Boston to conduct the study.

Storms Cost City Over $2.1 Million

Old Man Winter has been particularly unkind to Quincy this year, as the city's storm cleanup costs have topped $2.1 million, according to the city auditor.

The pricetag is the most since at least 1998, and possibly well beyond that, said Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick. In 1998, the city spent $614,000 for storm cleanup.

According to Fitzpatrick, the city has spent $1.8 million for contractual obligations and an additional $300,000 to cover overtime costs. The total cost could go even higher because an additional $229,000 is encumbered for other storm related costs, according to Fitzpatrick.

The final totals are likely to increase because those numbers do not include last weekend's snowstorm.

RICK FITZPATRICK

Fitzpatrick said the city is expected to recoup some of those costs when it applies for federal disaster relief stemming from the January Blizzard. That storm alone cost the city nearly $1 million.

For High School Project

Cahill: 90% Aid Tied To Faxon Field Site

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city must build a new Quincy High School on Faxon Field or possibly face dramatic reductions in state aid for the project, according to Treasurer Timothy Cahill.

Cahill, whose office oversees the state School Building Authority (SBA), the agency responsible for dispersing hundreds of millions of dollars in funding for school projects, sought to lay to rest any lingering questions about whether the 90 percent state reimbursement rate is site-specific to Faxon Field.

"I believe the high school plan is site-specific," Cahill told The Quincy Sun. "If you move it that would trigger the potential loss of grandfathering under the 90 percent," said Cahill.

"Until the city exhausts all remedies to build there, it is the only guarantee of 90 percent," he said of the Faxon Field site. "If you move off that site you are taking a chance."

Cahill's warning comes after city architects recently unveiled an alternate plan for the construction of a high school and middle school that deviates from the city's initial proposal.

When told of Cahill's comments, Mayor William Phelan said, "I am confident

McCauley Wants Answers On Central School Project

Council President Frank McCauley said he is making inquiries with city officials as to why Quincy never filed an application for state reimbursement for a Central Middle School project.

McCauley said he wants to know why an application for Central didn't accompany an application submitted for a Quincy High School project, which has been approved for 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

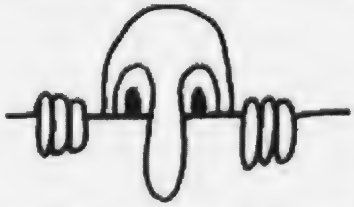
Famed WWII Catchphrase Born At Shipyard



'Kilroy Was Here' Contest Links Quincy's Connection

During World War II a rivet inspector at the Quincy shipyard named James J. Kilroy liked to scribble "Kilroy Was Here" on the bulkheads of ships to show that he had inspected the rivets.

As Quincy-built ships steamed into battle around the world, the words became a global catchphrase outranked only by "Remember Pearl Harbor."

As it popped up, scrawled mysteriously in the most unlikely places, like the Imperial Palace in Tokyo, the words provided a powerful morale booster for troops on land, air and sea.

Now, as America prepares to mark the 60th anniversary of the end of World War II,

Discover Quincy, the USS Salem and The Quincy Sun are sponsoring an essay contest to highlight Quincy's claim to fame as the birthplace of "Kilroy Was Here."

The contest on the theme "What 'Kilroy Was Here' Means to Me," has three age divisions — children in grades 4-7 and 8-12 as well as an open division for adults. (See box for contest details.)

"We hope that the essay contest will spur children to learn more about Kilroy, World War II and Quincy's role in building ships for the Allied war effort," said Jennifer Logue, executive director of Discover Quincy.

"We also hope that adults will enter and share their memories of 'Kilroy Was Here' and World War

Mannion's Family Restaurant Granted Beer And Wine License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A request for a beer and wine license from Patrick and Dianne Mannion, owners of the Mansion's Family Restaurant, 378 Granite St., received a 4-1 vote at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The Mannions received much support from neighbors, and Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, Police Chief Robert Crowley, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, Jay Duca, director of inspectional services, Dean Rizzo, director of Quincy, 2000, plus a petition signed by more than 80 persons, presented by Atty. Daniel Ciccariello, counsel for the Mannion's.

But Chairman Joseph Shea said he could not support the request.

Shea explained that he doesn't think beer and breakfast go together, and spoke about another breakfast and lunch restaurant on Willard Street that had applied for a beer and wine license. At that time, the board voted against the license.

He mentioned that at some point, other restaurants who have beer and wine licenses may want to start "selling eggs," and we wont' be able to stop them because they have a common victualer licen se.

One neighbor, John Lonergan who said he was born in the Brewer's Corner area where the restaurant is located, and said the Mannion's arrival to the area three years ago, has "brought the area alive."

Fire Chief O'Connell spoke in support of his "favorite breakfast place." Police Chief Crowley said when he first saw the request on the agenda, he wasn't in favor of it, but after listening to the accolades from all of the others, he said he would vote in favor.

Scheele said the Mannion's moved in the Brewer's Corner of the city at a "great risk", but have done an "unbelievable job."

Davis said he sent letters to 300 persons in the neighborhood and heard "nothing negative" He mentioned support form another neighbor, Anna Lee Johnson.

Rizzo said the Mannions are a strong anchor and are of "outstanding character."

Shea read a letter from Martha and Donald Robinson speaking in favor of the request.

Davis said when you get people like the Robinsons, Anna Lee and John Lonergan in favor of a proposal, "success will follow."

Dianne Mannion said the restaurant will have no bar, and said she is not promoting that kind of drinking, but instead persons who come to dine, will be able to enjoy beer or wine with their meal.

The 49 seat restaurant has 24 parking spaces available in the back of the restaurant. Hours will be from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. while alcohol is being served, but will open at 7 a.m. for breakfast.

An area landlord, Pat Corcoran said the Mannions have been good for the redevelopment of the corner.

It was noted that several new businesses have moved into the area since the Mannion's opened their family restaurant.

Phelan Asks Army Corps For Help On 'Cobblestone' Parcel

Mayor William Phelan is appealing to the federal Army Corps of Engineers for help in protecting a three-acre parcel of land at 271 Sea St., known as "Cobblestone."

In a letter to the federal agency, Phelan suggested that the Army Corps consider expanding the scope of the Broad Meadows restoration project to include the protection of the adjacent open space parcel.

The land, located in Merrymount, is slated for residential development. It abuts the Broad Meadows marsh and has frontage along Sea St. The parcel contains a mix of upland and wetland resource areas.

"The city will investigate all possible options to protect the priorities of our open space efforts," said Phelan. "I am hopeful that the timing of the Broad Meadows restoration project will allow the Army Corps to consider protecting this valuable open space area."

Phelan said the mature upland portion of the parcel provides a valuable compliment to the vast wetland area and is a necessary habitat area that would enhance the city's wetland restoration efforts.

He pointed to a recent state grant of $500,000 that the city will use to help purchase and protect the remaining upland portion of the controversial Lot 23 site at Marina Bay as an example of the city's commitment to extend available resources.

The city and Army Corps are combining on a $4 million restoration of the Broad Meadows marsh. Plans call for transforming the 70-acre phragmite marsh into 40 acres of vibrant salt marsh and a 30-acre passive waterfront park. The city's matching portion of the project will be paid with revenues from the hotel/motel tax.

Phelan appointed a citizen's advisory committee to help participate in the Broad Meadows restoration project. The committee is co-chaired by Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly.

Recently, the city's Open Space Committee recommended that the city pursue Lot 23 and the Bayswater boatyard in Hough's Neck as the top two priorities with available funds from the hotel/motel tax.

"We share the desire of the 1,500 people who signed the petition to preserve Cobblestone, but we also recognize how limited our resources are," said Phelan. "We will continue to investigate ways to stretch our resources and maximize our open space protection efforts."

QARI Seeks Volunteers To Help Teach English

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) is seeking persons interested in helping out in its Computer Literacy Program and ESOL (English for Speakers of Other Languages) evening classes.

Volunteers will work with students who are learning English as a second language by practicing conversation and helping them with their English homework.

Computer class instruction is aimed toward helping individuals improve their Internet and word processing knowledge.

Volunteering will involve at least a regular three-week commitment. A background in Cantonese or Mandarin would be helpful but not required.

Those interested should contact QARI at 617-472-2200 or visit http://www.qari.info.

Four Firefighters Promoted

Mayor William Phelan announces the promotion of four Quincy Fire Department officers at a ceremony last Friday in the City Council Chambers.

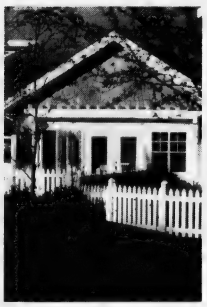
Promoted were Lt. Timothy Burchill, Lt. Roger Kineavy, Jr., Lt. James Bailey and Captain Patrick Dee.

Lt. Burchill had been serving as an Acting Lieutenant. He was hired by the Quincy Fire Department in 2000.

Lt. Kineavy was hired in 1994 and had been serving as an acting lieutenant.

Lt. Bailey joined the Quincy Fire Department in the same class as Lt. Kineavy in 1994 and had also been previously serving as an acting lieutenant.

Captain Patrick Dee joined the department in 1996 and had served as an Acting Captain before his promotion.



Phelan and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell congratulated the promoted firefighters.

"These young men have shown that the deserve to be elevated within the ranks of the department," Phelan said. "They have worked hard and earned their promotions. It is my hope that they continue to excel throughout their careers in the Quincy Fire Department.

"I congratulate these men and their families for this accomplishment."

Chief Paul O'Connell said, "I want to congratulate Lts. Burchill, Kineavy and Bailey and Captain Dee. They are all good firefighters and I appreciate the support they lend to our entire department.."

Granite Ball Going Back To City Hall

The Granite Ball is going back home to City Hall. Via Barre, Vt.

Park-Forestry Executive Director Tom Koch confirms reports the famed "Gazing Ball" will be moved from the Fore River traffic rotary where it has been for some 68 years and returned to City Hall where it originally was.

KOCH

In fact, he acknowledged, the city plans to move it today (Thursday) probably starting between 8 and 9 a.m., the exact hour depending on traffic conditions.

A crane and special rigging will lift the 11-ton ball onto a truck which will take it to Barre, Vt. for repairs and re-polishing.

"The ball is pitted but you wouldn't notice it unless you got close-up," Koch says. "The damage was probably caused by stones thrown up by traffic in the roadway around the rotary. There is no indication that the damage was done deliberately."

Koch says the ball will be in Barre, also known for its granite, for its face-lift over several weeks.

"It will then be brought back to Quincy and the plans are to place it on Constitution Common outside City Hall where the World War II statue now stands," Koch says.

The statue, he says, as originally planned, will be moved to Merrymount Park which is being renovated and re-landscaped.

"We hope to replace the ball at the Fore River rotary with something nautical, perhaps a large ship anchor and flags," he says.

That would be appropriate considering the nearby former Fore River shipyard was famed for some of the great Navy and commercial ships built at the yard.

And where the USS Salem Naval Shipbuilding Museum is today.

The ball was presented to the city June 25, 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625.

It was a gift from the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association who stipulated it be placed outside the city clerk's office at old City Hall. The World War II statue site is just a few feet away and centered on the common plaza.

The Granite Manufacturers placed the ball in the custody of the mayor of Quincy who at that time was Perley Barbour. Thomas Burgin was mayor when it was moved to the Fore River rotary 12 years later in 1937.

THE GRANITE BALL would look something like this on Constitution Common as depicted in this Quincy Sun composite photo.

And now, 68 years later, with the urging and backing of many, Mayor William Phelan is bringing it back — back to where most people want it.

PHELAN

The ball has not been so visible in recent years with shrub growth. And motorists heading up or coming down the Fore River bridge risk an accident looking at the ball instead of the road.

When it was at City Hall, children delighted in seeing their reflection in the mirror-like polished granite which led to it being called the "Gazing Ball."

Since it was moved to the rotary, children have been deprived of that fun. There's no way they could safely get through the traffic to get to the ball.

Many have long urged the ball be brought back to City Hall. Among them is Joanne Swingle Hennigan, granddaughter of Jonathan S. Swingle, owner of Swingle's Quarry, who donated a 25-ton block of granite from which the ball was cut.

Most Quincy Point residents, however, would like to keep it at the rotary.

But Quincy Point is known not for granite but for those great ships — like the Lexington, Massachusetts and the Quincy — that sailed through the Fore River bridge and out to the Pacific to play a major role in winning World War II.

A nautical remembrance at the rotary would be far more an appropriate tribute to Quincy Point's great shipbuilding history.

And back at City Hall, the ball would be seen close-up by tourists, visitors, residents — and the kids — in tribute to Quincy's famed granite industry.

Right there in the center of Constitution Common, surrounded by the Walk of Names, shrubs and flowers, it would be the Crown Jewel.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the first fire station in Atlantic that was built on Newbury Avenue in 1890. Built to house horse-drawn fire apparatus the Fire Department was forced to move to a new station when they purchased new larger engines in 1927. Since then this building has been used for a variety of activities. It was home to the DAV, a dance studio, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and as a community meeting hall for many other groups for almost 75 years. Today, it is home for a Marine Corps Veterans organization. The street going off to the right is marked Madison St. on the postcard. It has since been renamed Kendall Street for the well-known Dr. Walter Kendall whose Atlantic Street estate included the famed Kettle Bowl formed by glaciers during the Ice Age. Criticizes Phelan On Funding Of School Project

Long ago, someone said good politics is good government, or maybe it was vice versa. Either way, back in day when politicians knew what they were doing, the recent uncovered crisis in funding for the new Central Middle School would have been avoided.

The mayor seems to be saying Quincy isn't to blame. At least that's what I think he's been spinning recently. The blame game is apparently focused on blaming state officials.

Apparently, for some years now, everyone assumed the Quincy High School/Central Middle School projects were combined, although the state never thought that. The mayor says the state doesn't understand the whole picture. He still seemingly believes this because Central was on the priority list and was eligible for the 90 percent reimbursement way back when, and it still is today. However, there is a big difference between being eligible and a priority in 1997 and possibly again in 2003 and getting the application in on timely manner and getting written approval. Whoever heard of an oral agreement or verbal understanding in government? Former Mayor James Curley would surely have demanded signatures on paper.

Now, our mayor wants everyone to get together to figure out a resolution for this problem. Perhaps if the mayor's office share more information with the school committee and city council, we wouldn't be in this fix today.

Also, instead of assuming, which is not smart, we should have demanded things like this in writing.

The mayor is a lawyer but apparently forgot his lawyer hat when it came to the application. The mayor is not a spinmaster, which his cable TV show displayed quite well too.

We wouldn't have this mess to fix today if the mayor had share more information with others and if he had demanded Central's 90 percent plan in writing from the state.

Thanks to what wasn't done, Quincy taxpayers will foot a much larger bill for a new Central Middle School. Hey, here's a good question for City Hall folks, "What's 90 percent of nothing?"

More Volunteers Needed For Quincy Historic Sites

There are opportunities for volunteers to help out at various historical sites in Quincy during the upcoming tourist season.

A recruitment open house will be held Wednesday, March 23, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the National Park Visitors Center in Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The sites involved are the Adams National Historical Park, United First Parish Church, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and the Josiah Quincy House.

Volunteers are also needed by Discover Quincy, the organization promoting tourism.

For more information, contact Jennifer Logue at Discover Quincy, 617-657-0527 or Melissa Burnham at the Visitor Center, 617-770-1175.

3 Atherton Hough Scholarships Available

Graduating seniors from Quincy public high schools and college students who attended the Atherton Hough Elementary School are invited to apply for three scholarships offered by the Parent Teachers Association.

The Edward Baccari, William Nugent and James "Red" Riley Scholarships each are in the amount of $100.

Applicants must have attended the Atherton Hough School for at least three years and should submit their names, addresses. phone numbers, years of attendance and the names of their intended colleges to the Quincy Education Association, 590 Hancock St., Quincy 02170 by May 1.

Names will be drawn by lottery at the Quincy Education Association's annual meeting May 25.

The much discussed elementary school lunch program starting date was postponed until October after the City Council and School Committee were unable to come to an agreement on the appropriations.

School Committee Vice Chairman James McCormick said the program at Snug Harbor School was in jeopardy because of the refusal of the City Council to fund the program for the full request of $30,000.

Ward 1 Councillor Edward Graham, in whose ward Snug Harbor was located, opposed the lunch plan because of its limited scope and the fact that it would cut out the physical education program at the school since the meals would be served out in the gym.

LAYOFFS AT THE SHIPYARD

The 7,485-man work force at the General Dynamics shipyard would be reduced by 150 to 200 because of "schedule problems" and an "imbalance of the work force."

Pipefitters, electricians and sheet metal workers were scheduled to be laid off, while there was a recall for 50 painters, and the short-term need for more welders and shipfitters.

A spokesperson for General Dynamics said that the layoffs were not the result of the completion of the Navy Landing Dock Pensacola which was to be delivered to the Navy next week.

BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald noted that permits for 45 new dwelling units were granted this month, for total building costs of $515,818.

Among those approved were an 11-unit on Chester St. by Armando Agnitti; an 11-unit on Walnut St. by Fred Gardiner and an 18-unit on Centre St. by Richard Buccheri.

DeMOLAY DAY FOR CITY GOVERNMENT

Members of the Old Colony DeMolay "took over" city government this week as part of DeMolay Week proclaimed by Mayor James McIntyre.

Robert Morgan Jr., served as mayor, with Bryant Carter, Jr. as superintendent of schools; Alex Bezanson as auditor, Daniel Lundberg as city clerk; John Campbell as chairman of the Board of Assessors; David Carter as fire chief; Wesley Woodward as police chief; and Joseph MacRitchie as executive secretary.

March 19 At Boston Symphony Hall

Two NQHS Students Selected To Play At All State Concert

Two North Quincy High School students have been chosen to participate in this year's All State Concert to be held at Boston Symphony Hall on Saturday, March 19.

Sara Chung and Joseph Pratolongo will perform with 500 of the most talented musicians from across the state. Chung is a flutist and Pratolongo is a tenor vocalist.

The concert, sponsored by the Massachusetts Music Educators' Association, will feature musicians ranging from singers to band, orchestral and jazz specialists. They represent excellence in achievement and are known as Symphony Hall Scholars.

Students achieve the status of Symphony Hall Scholars by going through two rigorous auditions, including one at the district level where more than 4,000 students are represented. If recommended, students move to the All State audition, where more than 1,000 students compete for the honor of performing at Symphony Hall and being named a Symphony Hall Scholar.

JOSEPH PRATOLONGO and Sarah Chung, North Quincy High School students, have been selected to participate in this year's All State Concert, sponsored by the Massachusetts Music Educators' Association. Along with 500 other talented musicians, Pratolongo, a tenor vocalist, and Chung, a flutist, will perform at Boston Symphony Hall on March 19.

Wollaston Garden Club Vies In Spring Flower Competition

The Wollaston Garden Club will compete with three other clubs in Class 106 for the Club Competition Award in the New England Spring Flower Show at Bayside Exposition Center in Dorchester.

The theme of the competition is "On Wedding Style — Vera Wang," and it will run for three days beginning Friday, March 18, and ending Sunday, March 20.

The design will be a vignette depicting a wedding ceremony setting in an area eight feet high by seven feet wide and six feet deep.

Wollaston's lead designer, Cynthia Lewis Antonopoulos and her design team of Pat Artis, Ruth Griffin, Marina Kelly and Cindy O'Meara, have spent months researching Vera Wang's style as well as possible wedding vignettes and constructing the setting.

Lately, their focus has been on all the details and the spectacular floral arrangements.

Persian Purim Holiday At Beth Israel March 24

Congregation Beth Israel, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point, will present a "Persian Purim Holiday Celebration" Thursday, March 24, at 6:30 p.m.

The program, with features for the family, includes Persian music and fine Persian cuisine, a clown, prizes for children in costume, souvenir Persian cookbook, Megillah reading and other activities.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $7 for children and $30 for a family.

Rabbi Shmuel Bronstein notes that Purim is a holiday on which Jews exchange gifts of delicacies, aid the poor and feast on superb dishes interspersed with wine.

The holiday, he adds, celebrates the palace intrique in ancient Persia which almost resulted in the annihilation of the Jews during the reign of King Achashverosh (Xerxes). The Jews not only survived, he said, but triumphed because of their unity and commitments to their identity as a practicing Jewish community.

For tickets or more information, contact Rabbi Bronstein at 617-653-8795 or www.quincyshul.com.

'Glaciers In Quincy' Subject Of Environmental Treasures

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures program Sunday, March 20, will hark back to the time when glaciers covered the area that is now Quincy.

The free tour, entitled "Glaciers in Quincy," will begin at 2 p.m. with a slide show and talk by Dr. Phil McLaren, geology professor at Eastern Nazarene College.

Following the slide show, Dr. McLaren will conduct a walk through Merrymount and show examples of the impacts of glaciers on the landscape.

Participants will meet at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

Rain date is Sunday, April 3, at 2 p.m. Call 617-472-0799 after 1 p.m. on March 20 for rescheduling information.

For more information, call 617-376-1254.

Enrollment Period Underway For Beechwood Center Pre-School

Enrollment is now underway for Beechwood Community Life Center's summer and fall pre-school and fall kindergarten.

Parents of prospective students are invited to drop in at 440 East Squantum St. between 10 and 11 a.m. any Tuesday for enrollment information or a tour of the facilities.

Individual tours can also be arranged by calling 617-471-5712.

A series of parent informational programs are now underway to acquaint them with the expanding age-appropriate curricula, staff and individual learning plans.

SHARRON BEALS

"Expanded programming, curricula and professional trainings have established Department of Education standards in all preschool classrooms," said Sharron Beals, executive director of the Early Childhood Education Center.

"Beechwood has long had a full-day accredited kindergarten, Our lead kindergarten teacher, who has been teaching at Beechwood since 1990, holds a Department of Education credential to teach kindergarten through grade three,"

Four years ago, Beechwood won a grant award for the Center's Language Literacy Curricula for all age groups: Infants, Toddlers, Pre-School and Kindergarten classes.

Emily Sexton 50th Student At Linden Ponds Restaurants

Emily Sexton of Quincy, a junior at Cardinal Spellman High School. went to work at Linden Ponds in Hingham the other day and received a gift basket on her first day of work.

Emily was the 50th student from a local high school to land a job waiting on and busing tables in the Fireside Restaurant and Harbor Cafe at the campus for folks 62 or older.

"What an exciting way to start," she said. "My grandfather heard about the many exciting job opportunities for student at Linden Ponds and suggested I apply.

"I'm so glad I did because I look forward to meeting new friends and the many people who live at Linden Ponds."

Linden Ponds has students from seven different high schools working as waitpersons, bus people, dishwasher and other food preparation positions, including cook's assistant.

They are from Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree, Hull, Spellman, South Shore Vocational Technical and Boston College High Schools and Notre Dame Academy in Hingham.

"I didn't realize how much money I was spending on my house."

Glendon Crowell enjoyed his house in Quincy until he realized how much it was costing him. Then he discovered a smarter way to retire at Linden Ponds, the South Shore's newest active community for people 62-plus.

"I didn't realize how much money I was spending on my house until I gathered all of my bills together," says Glendon. "Now that I live at Linden Ponds, I was able to cancel all the services—electricity, gas, house maintenance—and it feels good."

The monthly service package at Linden Ponds streamlines all of your monthly bills, so you just have to write one check a month. It includes property taxes, gas, heat, electricity, A/C, sewer, water, trash collection, cable television, 24-hour security, home and grounds maintenance, and much more.

It's no wonder so many people from Quincy are making the smart decision to move to Linden Ponds.

We are coming to your town to talk about the Linden Ponds lifestyle. Call now to reserve your seat at our next informative luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. We'll also send you a FREE Information Kit.

Coughlin Pushes Zoning Change For West Quincy Parcel

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin wants to ensure that a city-owned parcel of land abutting the Highpoint complex in West Quincy will remain as open space.

At a recent city council meeting, Coughlin introduced a measure which would change the zoning of the 22-acre parcel of land from Planned Unit Development to Open Space.

Highpoint developers deeded the land to the city in 2004 as part of a special permit that was agreed upon by both parties. The city paid $2 million to Highpoint developers in exchange for the land and environmental cleanup of the parcel.

KEVIN COUGHLIN

But Coughlin said he is concerned about what he describes as vague language contained in the special permit that may allow the city to utilize the land for "other municipal or non-profit uses."

"I think this language needs to be tightened up a bit," said Coughlin. "I'm hearing from abutters that they want to make sure this parcel stays as open space. It is sufficiently vague enough to allow for some other use and I want to shut the door on that."

The proposal was placed in the city council's ordinance committee. The planning board also would be required to hold a public hearing on the matter and issue a recommendation to the city council.

Coastal Commission Seeks Photos For 05' Beach Guide

Park Department Accepting Applications For Field Permits

TOM KOCH

The Park Department is accepting applications for field permits for the spring and summer seasons.

All applications are subject to availability and approval of the Park & Recreation Board.

The Board's policy is to first accommodate the Quincy Public Schools' athletic program, followed by the city's various youth leagues and finally permitting the many adult organizations that apply for fields.

Thomas P. Koch, Executive Director of Park, Forestry & Cemetery Departments, asks that residents be patient and give the department the necessary time to prepare the fields, a labor that will be no small task considering the mark this past winter has left on the city's parks.

"We are coming off a very difficult, snowy winter that just doesn't seem to want to quit," said Koch. "All the snow and ice must melt and the fields need to dry out before Park Department crews can begin to prepare them for the upcoming baseball, softball, soccer and lacrosse seasons. I ask all our residents to stay off the fields until we have an opportunity to prep them for use."

Koch cited premature use as an obstacle to the department's efforts and hope that residents will cooperate with his request. Early use of the fields is disruptive to turf growth and can jeopardize the conditions for the rest of the season.

"We can't control the fact that our fields are resting under a blanket of snow," he said. "Reaching out to residents and receiving their cooperation will certainly assist in our efforts and ultimately enable us to provide quality athletic facilities for all to utilize. I realize it's been a long winter and people are anxious to get out, and we appreciate everyone's patience with us."

For more information or to request a permit applications, contact the Park Department at 617-376-1251.

Manet Health Center Walk Against Violence June 4

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board at Tuesday's meeting granted a request from the Manet Community Health Center for a one day general license for the annual Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence, second annual Father's Day Celebration and Walk June 4 at 10 a.m. at Pageant Field.

Thomas Clasby and Cynthia Sierra told the board that the group began with a "White Ribbon" campaign geared toward men's violence against women."

The two mile walk will begin at Pageant Field and circle the Veteran's Memorial Stadium and return to Pageant Field.

Sierra said the the walk is to celebrate and honor fathers and to raise awareness of the mission of the campaign against violence.

The White Ribbon Campaign began as grass roots urging men of all ages to take a stand and to work with women in the efforts to end violence.

Honorary co-chairman include Norfolk County District Attorney William R. Keating, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti, and Mayor William Phelan.

Other endorsers include the Mayor's Commission on Women, Manet Community Health Center, Inc. Keating's office, DOVE, Asian Task Force Against Domestic Violence, Quincy Housing Authority, Bellotti's office, South Shore YMCA, Quincy Public Schools, Police Department, South Shore Mental Health Center, Eastern Nazarene College, Community Action Programs, Department of Elder Services and Womens Place Crisis Center.

North Quincy High Team 7th In Academic Decathlon

Led by senior Eva Yung, who won silver, bronze and brass medals, the North Quincy High School team captured seventh place in a field of 16 in the Academic Decathlon State Finals at Walpole High.

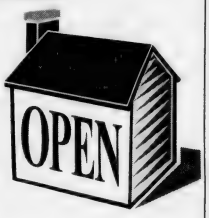
Actually, the Raiders finished fifth among the large schools but two teams from the small school division managed to outpoint them and set them back to seventh place overall.

Yung was the high scorer for North, winning her silver medal in the Language and Literature exam, a bronze medal for her speech and a brass ward for Art.

Junior Lisa Luo had the second highest point total for the team and earned the highest team score for Interview.

Junior Caitlin Saia had the third highest point totals and a gold medal in Art. Junior Peter Phan was fourth highest point-getter and Henry Lo fifth with a team-leading tally for Essay.

Senior Matt Palmer won three bronze medals in Economic, Social Science and Language and Literature as well as a brass in Math. Senior Christina Lam recorded strong in Interview, Speech and Essay.



Junior Stephen Wong led the team in the Math exam, senior Ted Muir earned a brass medal in Match and scored high in Interview and senior Rita Wang won the Coaches Medal for dedication and team spirit.

Alternates on the North Quincy team included David Chan, Ada Chen, Sara Chung, Victor Li, Vincent Li, Vicky Liang, Dawn McCauley and Candy Wong.

Support for the team came from Angela Miller of the Art Department; Sarah Huber, Danielle Rinella, Mark Scanlon and Michael Connors of the Social Studies Department; Richard Kenneally for the Music Department and Michael Jorgensen of the English Department.

Katherine Constantopoulos, a former team member, now a junior at Boston University; and Donna Bean and Melinda Ofria of Boston Financial Data Services also participated in the team's preparation.

'Healthy Kids Vacation Camp' Provides Fun For All

Thirty eight kids recently attended a three-day Healthy Kids Vacation Camp at Wollaston Congregational Church, where they made nutritious snacks, learned about a healthy lifestyle and enjoyed all kinds of fun activities.

During February school vacation, kids attended the three-day event, which was partially funded by the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance, South Shore Hospital and Shields MRI of Massachusetts.

On day one, children enjoyed Rosalita's puppet show and made their own puppets as well. On the second day, kids took classes on yoga and eating health snacks. They were given the opportunity to make pumpkin cookies and smoothies as part of an attempt to enjoy nutritious snacks.

On the last day, children listened to healthy messages about smoke-free homes and participated in skit-writing and filmmaking activities. Their skits were filmed by Quincy Access Television and will be shown this spring.

Children also had the opportunity to learn about animals during the exhibition called "Creepy Crawly Critters" held at Parish Hall in the church. Bonnie Main from Creepy Crawly & Company visited the church and showed off some of her animals, including a 15-foot python snake.

Rev. Mary Louise Gifford, pastor at the Wollaston Congregational Church, thanked everyone who was involved in the event and said she hopes to undertake a similar camp next year.

"We would love to do it again - the kids had so much fun," she said.

that working together we will end up with a Quincy High School that the community can be proud of.

"We want to build a high school that is acceptable to the state and the community, and funded at 90 percent," he said.

Constructing a new high school without a 90 percent reimbursement from the state is not workable given the city's financial status, he said.

Originally, the city received approval to build a new high school on Faxon Field and renovate the existing high school to become Central Middle School.

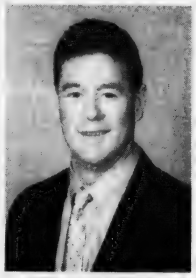
But environmental hurdles have delayed that plan for two years.

Instead, architects presented an alternate plan that would allow the city to sidestep many environmental permitting issues.

According to the new proposal, the existing high school would be partially renovated and become part of the new high school. The Center of Technical Education would be razed to make way for another high school building. The current Quincy High School is not located on Faxon Field, but the Center for Technical Education is.

A new Central Middle School would be constructed on Faxon Field near Southern Artery.

On Tuesday, Phelan would not rule out the new proposal, saying the city must work with SBA officials to come up with the best plan for Quincy.



"It's not time to close doors," he said. "We owe it to everybody to build a school that is the best school."

Phelan said the city will focus on the environmental issues at the Faxon Field site and how they fit into a plan to build a new high school.

A letter released from Katherine Craven, SBA executive director, essentially throws cold water on the new proposal.

TIM CAHILL

WILLIAM PHELAN

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

MICHAEL McFARLAND

Craven said the new project is a "substantial change in scope" and would not qualify for 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

The project application materials originally submitted to the Department of Education (DOE) for the high school project were site specific to Faxon Field, Craven states.

Instead, Quincy should expect a 40 to 80 percent reimbursement from the state if it pursues the new proposal, said Cahill.

From a financial standpoint, Quincy's best option remains the construction of a new high school at Faxon Field, said Cahill.

"Some people are trying to change the rules after the fact to get this money and it can't be done," he said.

"If we allowed all these projects to change and still get the 90 percent we wouldn't have enough money to open the list in 2007," said Cahill. "We will use Quincy's ruling as a model for the rest of the state."

Cahill suggested it is in Quincy's best interest to move forward with the original plan as quickly as possible.

"It will be the last school in the history of this state to get the 90 percent reimbursement, it's quite an accomplishment," he said.

Cahill said his office will assist the city in any way it can to obtain the necessary environmental permits to build a high school on Faxon Field.

"We will do everything we can to help with the process. I think the environmental issues can be solved," he said.

Meanwhile, the Central Middle School portion of the plan continues to generate controversy after Craven ruled that the project would not qualify for 90 percent under any circumstances because the city never applied for it before a moratorium on new projects was put into effect in 2003.

And Cahill continued to fuel the debate by suggesting that Quincy could have applied for the 90 percent reimbursement for Central before the 2003 moratorium closed the door.

"It appears to me that they (city officials) were told not to apply in 2003 because the moratorium was put in place," said Cahill. "Prior to that, the applications could have been submitted.

"This project has been on the table since 1997. There's a good possibility that prior to the moratorium, in 2001 or 2002, it could have been applied for," he said.

But Cahill said a Central Middle School project was still very much in the planning stages and contingent upon an approved high school plan.

If the city had stepped up the pace on the high school project it may have had a chance to apply for Central, Cahill said.

City and school officials have said they were told by DOE that Quincy could apply only for one project prior to the moratorium.

Phelan, accused by some of mishandling the project, conceded on Tuesday that he would have tried to speed up the application process for the school plans.

"Knowing back then what I know now, I would have done things a lot differently," he said. "I would have tried to file an application sooner."

Phelan also produced documents from DOE which highlighted an understanding between state and city officials regarding funding for the school projects.

Phelan last week received a letter from Wulfson stating that both projects were eligible for 90 percent when the city council approved the mayor's August 2003 request to issue a $110 million bond for the plan.

Wulfson also said the state never set a deadline for submitting applications for the school projects.

According to city officials, the state implemented the moratorium almost instantly, giving Quincy virtually no time to submit an application for Central.

Wulfson said the high school project was eligible for grandfathering prior to the moratorium, but he does not mention Central.

Further complicating the issue was the state's move to transform the School Building Assistance program, previously run by DOE, and rename it the School Building Authority under the direction of the Treasurer's office.

In addition, legislation establishing the 90 percent reimbursement for school projects, called the Joyce amendment, was repealed along with the agency changes.

The change in law "was not anticipated by any of us at that time," Wulfson wrote to Phelan.

New SBA legislation, drafted in 2004, states that projects allowed after the July 1, 2007 moratorium is lifted will be eligible for 40 to 80 percent reimbursement.

Losing the 90 percent reimbursement for Central could inflate the city's pricetag by millions of dollars, depending on several cost factors.

Sen. Michael Morrissey said he supports SBA's ruling regarding the Central project, but parted ways with Cahill on the matter of whether the high school plan is site-specific.

"SBA has ruled on Central and I believe that to be the case," said Morrissey. "But I find it hard to believe that we are stuck to Faxon Field. If we want to build a new high school we should be allowed some flexibility."

Morrissey said the city stands a chance of prevailing if it chooses to fight the ruling in court, but the issue could take years to resolve and not address the matter at hand: building new schools.

"If the city wants to litigate the matter it might win, five years from now," he said.

Shaken by revelations about state funding constraints for the school projects, the school committee was expected to discuss the latest developments and draft a new plan of attack.

School Committee Vice Chairman Mike McFarland said it is important for school officials to meet with the architect and re-examine Quincy's options.

"It has been clearly stated that Quincy High is before us," said McFarland. "I don't want to start fighting with the state on this, it's fruitless. They have clearly stated the facts."

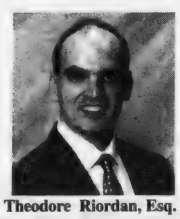
School Committee member Elaine Dwyer said the group needs to review all options regarding the placement of a Quincy High School on Faxon Field.

"I'm not willing to delay or jeopardize the high school over a battle with the state," she said. "But I think it is important to move ahead quickly and find common ground."

The school committee is expected to schedule a Building Needs subcommittee meeting to address the school projects, she said.

Environmental concerns at the Faxon Field site will continue to remain a concern with committee members, she said.

"If the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is willing to give us any relief on the wetlands issue, then we can bring this information to the architects and move from there," said Dwyer.



The DEP is soon expected to rule whether the wetlands can be classified to a lower standard, thus making it easier for the city to build on the Faxon Field site.

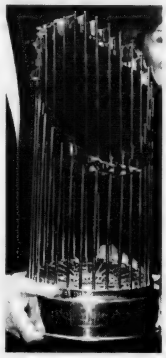
Red Sox World Series Trophy To Visit Quincy Next Monday



After waiting 86 years, Red Sox fans in Quincy will finally get to see the World Championship Trophy close up next Monday, March 21.

The trophy will be on display at Quincy High School from 12:15 to 2:15 p.m. after which it will be at City Hall from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Both events are open to the public free of charge.

State Treasurer Tim Cahill, Mayor William Phelan and the Quincy legislative delegation of Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps Ron Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Bruce Ayers will host.

The tour of the 24-inch sterling silver trophy through as many of the state's 351 communities as possible is sponsored by the State Lottery in partnership with the Red Sox.

"Like the Red Sox, the Massachusetts State Lottery is synonymous with success," said Cahill, whose Treasury Department has jurisdiction over the Lottery.

WORLD SERIES TROPHY

"This unique partnership between the lottery and the Red Sox provides a wonderful opportunity for us to personally visit the very same communities which benefit from the success of the Lottery."

So far, the trophy has visited 110 communities in the Bay State.

"Last year was truly memorable for our Red Sox," said Morrissey. "The trophy will add to memories that will last a lifetime."

"The Red Sox gave us a truly historic season last year," said Mariano. "The trophy tour allows Quincy fans of all ages to take part in this history."

"This trophy symbolizes a lifetime of faithful many Quincy residents and we are glad to play a role in sharing it with our residents," said Phelan.

"The Red Sox proved that nothing is impossible and made the 2004 season one for the ages and what a thrill for the fans of Quincy to have an opportunity to share in this legendary accomplishment," said Tobin.

"It is a thrill to have the trophy in Quincy," said Ayers. "It's another historic event for the City of Presidents."

14 Residents On Curry Dean's List

Fourteen Quincy residents were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Curry College in Milton.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Pull Over And Let Emergency Vehicle Pass

A deputy chief approached me the other day, asking whether I'd be willing to write a little something on the proper response for the public when they are approached in their vehicle by an emergency vehicle.

Like myself, the deputy has been with this fire department for close to 30 years, and he has apparently noticed an increased failure of the public to respond properly to oncoming emergency vehicles. So I submit here, for all of us, a little RMV-101 review of what the law requires of the public when approached by an emergency vehicle.

Mass. General Law-Chapter 89, Section 7A states:

"Upon the approach of any fire apparatus, police vehicle, ambulance or disaster vehicle which is going to a fire or responding to a call, alarm or emergency situation, every person driving a vehicle on a way shall immediately drive said vehicle as far as possible toward the right-hand curb or side of said way and shall keep the same at a standstill until such fire apparatus, police vehicle ambulance or disaster vehicle has passed."

There's a thought process in the fire service that we're not doing anyone any good if we cannot arrive at a scene safely ourselves, prepared to take control of an emergency situation. Getting to a scene in a timely and safe manner is a priority. With the apparent increase in the amount of traffic on the roads today, doing so has become a greater challenge.

Included in that law, is that portion which states: "No person shall drive a vehicle within 300 feet of any fire apparatus going to a fire or responding to an alarm . . ."

While following behind a piece of apparatus, you don't know where it is going or when it will stop. The officer takes deliberate care in placing the apparatus strategically at a scene. Personnel are disembarking while focusing on sizing up the situation and obtaining needed equipment. That law is in effect and that space is designated to assure their safety at that scene. Once again, if the personnel cannot approach that scene safely, the whole purpose of our response, to help others, is threatened.

Kindly adhere to the letter of the law when approached by an emergency vehicle and following that vehicle once it passes. It is our earnest intention to respond and offer quality care and attention at an incident and time can often be a determining factor in success or failure. We need your cooperation in allowing us to do our job safely and quickly as well. Pull over and allow the vehicles to pass by safely. Adhere to that designated distance. Someone's life may depend on your cooperation!

Thank you for that cooperation!

Yvonne Girard Sales Associate At Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc.

Art Foley, Broker/Owner of Century 21 Annex Realty, with offices in Hanover and Quincy, announces Yvonne Girard has joined the company as a sales associate based in the company's Hanover office.

Girard, a Quincy native who lives in Weymouth, began work as a Century 21 Annex Realty agent after receiving her real estate license from Annex Real Estate School in 2004. Prior to this, she spent 20 years working in management and billing positions in the medical field.

"Yvonne has proven to be a hard-working, dependable addition to our team," Foley said. "Her keen interpersonal skills, market knowledge and motivation will benefit her customers."

YVONNE GIRARD

Girard enjoys exercising and spending time with her family, including her five grandchildren.

Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., offers comprehensive real estate services to the South Shore with a staff of more than 50 professional Realtors.

For more information about Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., or its services, including sales, rentals, appraisals, property management, continuing education programs and free notary services, call the Quincy office at 617-472-4330 or toll-free 800-345-4614, the Hanover office at 781-829-4210 or toll-free 800-207-8647 or log on to www.C21Annex.com.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop April 2

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, April 2, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy.

All potential first-time homebuyers are invited to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be prequalified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend a free Introductory Session to evaluate credit history and determine level of mortgage readiness. It's strongly suggested attendees obtain a current copy of their credit report.

The next Introductory Session will be held March 28 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy. Call in advance to register or discuss dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person that covers the First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, the Introductory Session and all workshop materials. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer Workshop April 2, 9

Quincy Community Action Program, Inc. will hold a free, two-session first-time homebuying workshop April 2 and 9.

The sessions will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the fourth floor conference room of QCAP, 1509 Hancock St. They are open to everyone regardless of income, credit rating or downpayment availability.

Workshop speakers are practicing real estate professionals. Participants receive a workbook with valuable web site and other reference material.

Participants who attend all sessions will obtain a certificate at the end of the course, which is a prerequisite for downpayment closing cost assistance, as well as favorable soft second and Mass Housing mortgages.

For more information and to register or learn of future workshops, call Rona W. Goodman at 617-479-8181, ext. 172 or visit www.qcap.org.

Jack Conway, Red Sox Radio Partners

The Red Sox Radio Network has again signed Jack Conway & Co. to an advertising contract for the upcoming season of Boston's World Champion team.

Marshfield resident Joe Castiglione will be the Conway Country radio voice for the broadcast series of Red Sox games on WEEI, 850 AM. WEEI Account Executive Matt Walsh tied up the sponsorship with Marie Fricker, Conway's advertising director, for the package of 15-second spots on Red Sox weekend home games.

"Having Joe Castiglione do the broadcast announcements for us is a home run," said real estate company founder Jack Conway, who was a Boston sportswriter before his days in real estate. "The listening audience for the Red Sox home games is fantastic, and by using radio, we can reach loyal fans not only in their homes, but in their automobiles as well," Conway added.

The campaign will run from April 16 to Oct. 2 and then, providing that the Sox do well, the radio partnership will continue through the playoffs and, it's hoped, another World Series.

Radiator Tips

Q. I recently moved to the Northeast and purchased a converted loft that is heated by an old radiator system. While it seems to give off plenty of heat, the radiator makes all sorts of funky noises from time to time. Can I fix this problem without having to call in a repair person? — Charles M., Boston

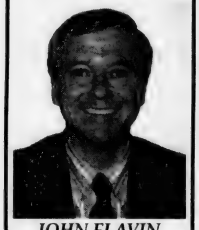
A. Keeping an old steam radiator system in top shape is practically an art form — one that in many areas of the country is slowly becoming a lost art as the number of experienced steam-heat repair professionals diminish. Luckily, you're in an area where hot-water and steam heating systems are still fairly common, and a good number of pros are available to fix problems that arise.

The problem of noises — banging noises, mostly — coming from a radiator is one that can likely be resolved on your own. Simply adjusting the height of the unit at one end may be all that is needed.

Check the support legs at the bottom of the radiator. If there are bolts in the legs that can be turned to adjust their height, great. If not, you'll need shims (basically, thin pieces of wood or metal) to make this adjustment. Next, check the type of pipe system: a one-pipe radiator has a single pipe (usually located near the bottom) for both the steam and condensate to enter and exit; a two-pipe system has a pipe near the top (for steam to enter) and a pipe near the bottom (for condensate to drain).

What's the difference? If your radiator is a one-pipe system, you need to tilt it slightly to allow condensed water to drain out through the pipe. If it's a two-pipe system, water must drain into a special trap that allows it to cool down before being drained. So, locate where the condensate actually drains before shimming the unit.

The tilt itself should be very slight. A good rule of thumb is that radiators should pitch about 1 inch every 10 feet toward the trap or pipe. Your radiator is probably not 10 feet long, so measure its length and adjust accordingly (i.e., a 3-foot-long radiator warrants about a 1/3-inch pitch).



Open the radiator's steam valve fully (place a bucket or towels beneath it and be careful — its hot), then tilt the radiator up toward the trap or pipe by either turning the height adjustment bolts on the legs or inserting shims of appropriate width underneath the legs. Close the steam valve.

If the height adjustment doesn't resolve the noise issue, don't lose heart. Old systems often develop a lot of problems due to excess silt and corrosion. The trap or pipe could be clogged; the supply pipe's valve could be partially closed, blocked or deteriorating; the air vent may be installed incorrectly. In these cases, a professional should come in and inspect the building's entire system, in addition to your radiator.

American Cancer Society Extends Deadline Until Friday For Daffodil Days

Due to recent winter weather, the American Cancer Society has extended the order deadline for daffodils, the first flower of spring that represent hope in the fight against cancer, until Friday, March 18.

Funds raised from the American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days provide hope for the future, progress toward a cure and answers to cancer questions and concerns.

Massachusetts residents who purchase daffodils support vital American Cancer Society research, education, advocacy and patient services.

A bouquet of beautiful, fresh-cut daffodils cost $7. For $20, you can purchase a Gift of Hope, which provides anonymous daffodil bouquets for cancer patients in local hospitals or nursing homes and supports the Society.

There is a minimum order of 10 bunches of daffodils for delivery; individual bunches can be picked up at convenient locations in your community.

To place an order, contact Elise Kerrigan at 508-897-4343 by Friday, March 18.

American Cancer Society programs that benefit from funds raised include:

• Road to Recovery -- Volunteer drivers provide rides to those who are undergoing treatment but do not have transportation.

• Hope Lodge – For those who need to temporarily relocate for those treatments, the Society's Hope Lodges provide a home away from home for patients and their family members.

• Look Good…Feel Better — This program brings trained, volunteer cosmetologists to the aid of those women whose cancer treatments result in hair loss and other changes in her appearance.

• Reach to Recovery and Man to Man -- Trained breast cancer survivors or prostate cancer survivors provide support to women newly diagnosed with breast cancer and men newly diagnosed with prostate cancer. Along with encouragement, they offer information about the relevant disease and its treatment.

The American Cancer Society's toll-free information line, 800-ACS-2345, and website, www.cancer.org, are both available 24 hours a day and provide information about cancer and patient services.

Blood Drive March 28 At Quincy Point Church

The American Red Cross will hold a blood drive Monday, March 28, from 1 to 7 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

To donate blood through the American Red Cross, donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in general good health. Donors can give blood every eight weeks, or six times a year. Walk-in donors are always welcomed.

In the United States, blood transfusions are needed every two seconds for transplant surgeries, trauma patients and those receiving treatment for life-threatening illnesses. The only resource for those in need is a volunteer blood donor. Over 1,500 pints of blood must be collected everyday across New England just to meet the basic needs of area patients.

For more information regarding eligibility or to find out where to donate, call 1-800-GIVE LIFE.

From Start To Fitness

by Andrea Wyatt M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Staying Active in Bad Weather

Q. During the warmer months of the year, my children enjoy riding their bikes, playing sports with the neighborhood children, using inline skates and running around outside. As a result, they are more fit, energetic and alert at school and home. However, the complete opposite is true during colder months when they are unable to play outside. I can barely get them to walk the dog. Do you have any suggestions for keeping my family active when they can't go outside?

A. Staying active throughout the year can be a challenge, especially when you have to adapt to changing seasons. Whether it's snow and ice, rain or extreme heat or cold, environmental conditions can influence your willingness and ability to stay active.

However, with some creative thinking, you can develop activities that the family can enjoy year-round. Here are some tips:

• Try to mimic the activities your children enjoy in a different environment. Find a place where your children can ride their bikes indoors. Look for indoor skating and bike parks and activity gyms that offer everything from batting cages to rock-climbing walls. This may take some time and effort, but it will be well worth it.

• Find a fitness facility that offers activities for the whole family, including age-appropriate activities or a specific area for members your children's age. If available, use the facility's swimming, basketball or other programs.

• Create activities that can be done at home. DVDs and videos that teach a particular activity such as martial arts, yoga or dancing can be fun for the whole family. Develop fun ways to exercise, such as creating an obstacle course in the basement or staging push-up, sit-up or jump-rope contests. Use what resources you have to encourage movement.

The good news is that with a little creativity, you and your family can keep moving and have fun until the warmer weather returns.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@ hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Dentistry for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE DIRTY TRUTH

Dirty teeth can pose a bigger health problem than most people might suspect. In fact, researchers report that germs found in dental plaque can migrate to the lungs and cause potentially fatal pneumonia in elderly nursing home patients. While the study that led to this finding was small, the researchers said they found clear evidence in eight patients who developed pneumonia while in the hospital that had originated from their own dental plaque. Of the 49 patients, 28 had germs known to cause respiratory disease in their dental plaque samples. This is the first study to establish an unequivocal link between dental hygiene and respiratory infection. This study established the need for the elderly to maintain clean teeth and dentures.

Good oral hygiene – including brushing at least twice a day and flossing – will help eliminate plaque and tooth decay. Let us show you how to care for your teeth. By having regular checkups, you can avoid many problems and spend fewer dollars. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where all the members of our staff are dedicated to serving you. We will be happy to answer any questions you may have. Our concern is your comfort and confidence – our goal is to help preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Dental plaque reforms on the teeth within 24 hours of the teeth having been brushed and flossed.

MITE HOCKEY

Matt Hannon scored a hat trick to power Bruce Ayers Club to a 10-2 win over Hayes' Dream in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division action.

Eddie Riley and George Thurston each added two goals and John Palisi, Bryan Ayers and Adam McCormack had one apiece. Brendan Cox had an assist.

For Hayes' Dream, Patrick Quirk and Brandon Beal scored.

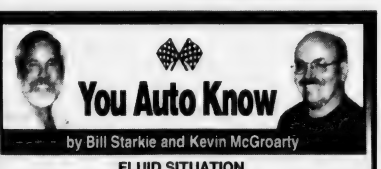
Basic Boating Public Safety Course Begins Saturday



The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, announces the first of three basic boating public safety courses will be held Saturday.

Scheduled for three consecutive Saturdays, the course will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club. Two additional courses will be held April 16, 23 and 30 and May 14, 21, 28.

The course is designed for citizens of all ages. All members of the boating public are welcomed to attend regardless of boating skills. Completion of the course by youthful boaters between the ages of 12-16 allows them to legally operate a motorboat without adult supervision.

All members of the public who successfully complete this course will be issued a Massachusetts Environmental Police Basic Boating Safety Certificate. These courses are provided at no charge to the public.

For course information or to register, contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police Department, Boat & Recreational Vehicle Safety Bureau, 1019 Route 132, Hyannis, MA 02601, at 617-727-8760 or 508-790-9360.

FLUID SITUATION

Brake fluid may be colorless and odorless when it is new, but it takes on a smoky gray color as it ages. This change of color is due to contaminants from rubber seals and rubber-lined brake hoses. The characteristic color should help you identify this liquid should you ever find fluid leaking on your driveway. Brake fluid can lead from a failed brake line or a caliper, in which case you may spot the fluid on the inside of the wheel. Although it eventually evaporates and leaves little trace behind, this does not mean that you should dismiss the situation. Instead, have the brake system checked immediately. The last thing you want are failed brakes.

For your safety, it is important that your braking system is serviced properly. Our customers continue to tell us they find our professional, ASE Certified service staff to be superior. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is proud of that, and we want you to know we will continue to work toward improving our record. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: Brake fluid has a bit of a soapy feel.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Have you ever had the terrifying experience of running out of gas on a busy road or highway? There you are – hoping you can at least coast to the curb – with horns honking, people yelling and perhaps a policeman saying, "How come?"

Let's take this situation and think about the possible kinship between this traffic problem and the moral and spiritual situation many people find themselves in today. There are many people who do not have any power within themselves. They can be pushed and pulled around. As far as their own motive power is concerned they are helpless. Sadly, they have developed nothing which makes life go for them.

Beware of emptiness. Whether the emptiness is emptiness of thought, or emptiness of heart, or emptiness in life, be sure that it is just as unnecessary as for any of us with normal common sense to allow ourselves to run out of gas. . .

Quincy Medical Center Installs New PET-CT Scanner For Advanced Cancer Care

Quincy Medical Center recently installed a new mobile PET-CT scanner, combining the two leading imaging technologies within a single study for detecting cancer.

"PET-CT imaging is rapidly becoming the gold standard for diagnosing and treating patients with cancer," said Douglas Burd, MD, chief of radiology at Quincy Medical Center. Computed Tomography, or CT, uses X-rays to produce a detailed image of the body's structure, while Positron Emission Tomography, or PET, a nuclear medicine technique, measures tissue function to detect minute differences between diseased and healthy tissues.

When used together, PET and CT reveal a complete picture - providing both the organ's structure and function in one image.

"PET-CT scans can provide complete information regarding the exact location, size, nature and extent of cancer - anywhere in the body," Dr. Burd said.

In many cancer cases, PET-CT offers a non-invasive and precise method to detect and stage cancer tumors and to measure a tumor's response to treatments.

PET-CT also may be used to assess ideal points for biopsy and to explore the necessity of surgery, radiation therapy or other interventions.

All scans are performed at Quincy Medical Center and are read by board certified radiologists on staff at QMC.

In 2002, QMC became one of the first hospitals on the South Shore to introduce PET scanning technology.

PET-CT is the latest in QMC's efforts to bring advanced imaging and an enhanced level of diagnostic services to South Shore residents.

In August, QMC unveiled a new, $2.7 million Computed Tomography Suite, featuring a state-of-the-art CT Scanner with advanced multi-slice scanning to capture higher quantities of more detailed images in a shorter time frame. The new scanner's advanced software package enables radiologists to reconstruct an image for a clearer view and conduct multiple tests from a single scan.

"This technology often eliminates the need for a patient to return for additional scanning and provides our physicians with more precise data to make an even more accurate diagnosis," Dr. Burd said.

In addition, a second CT Scanner also was installed to further meet patient demand, which has grown 12-14 percent in the past two years.

For more information about PET or for referral information, call the Quincy Medical Center Physician Referral Service, toll-free, 24 hours per day, at 877-479-CARE.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services.

The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community. At QMC, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine, and psychiatry.

Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work with community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Disappointed about something that didn't go your way? Cheer up. Look at the reasons it happened, and you could find a valuable lesson about what to do (or not do!) the next time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to do some reassessing of plans and goals — even how you considered redoing your bathroom. The point is to be open to change if change can improve things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Take some time to learn who is the right person (or persons) to approach and discuss your ideas with for your new project. Also, reserve time to prepare for an upcoming family event.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Dealing with a demanding situation, as you recently did, could drain much of your own emotional reserves. Take time to relax and indulge yourself in some well-earned pampering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The regal Lion might feel that she or he is above emotional displays. But showing your feelings can be liberating for you, and reassuring for someone who has been waiting for you to do so.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An emotionally needy person might make more demands than you can cope with. Best to ask for some breathing space NOW, before resentment sets in and makes communication difficult.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An unexpected spate of mixed signals could cause serious schedule setbacks. Best to focus on straightening everything out as soon as possible and get everyone back on track.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be aware that someone in the workplace could try to use a disagreement with a colleague against you. If so, be prepared to offer your side of the story with the facts to back you up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected challenge to a previous decision can be unsettling. But your reservoir of self-confidence — plus your loyal supporters — should help carry the day for you. Good luck.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While the idea of making some sort of major move in the near future continues to interest you, don't overlook a new possibility that could be emerging closer to home.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be careful not to base an upcoming decision on gossip or anything you might hear if it can't meet provable standards. That's true regardless of whom the source might be.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might still need to do some solid reassessing early in the week before you can close that sensitive situation. A new job-related opportunity could present itself later in the week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are extraordinarily sensitive to people's feelings, and you're always ready to offer comfort if necessary.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

To Christine M. Kenney of Quincy in said County, Countrywide Home Loans of VanNuys in the State of California, respondents; and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Wayne S. Axworthy of Roslindale in the County of Suffolk representing that he holds as joint tenant an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated in that part of Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, called Squantum, being Lot 4 on a plan entitled "Richards Park, Squantum, Quincy, Mass., Ernest W. Branch, C.E., dated April, 1913", and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, in Plan Book 67, Plan 3229, being bounded and described, according to said plan, as follows:

WESTERLY by Lot 3, ninety (90) feet;

NORTHERLY by Sunrise Road, fifty-five (55) feet;

EASTERLY by Lot 5, ninety (90) feet; and

SOUTHERLY by land now or formerly of Timothy F. Callahan, fifty-five (55) feet.

AREA containing 4,950 square feet of land, according to said plan.

This conveyance gives the grantees, their heirs and assigns forever, the right to use the portion of the beach on Richards Park in common with other owners of lands on Sunrise Road setting forth that he desires that – all – of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than five hundred thousand ($500,000) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Norfolk Probate & Family Court, 35 Shawmut Road, Canton, MA 02021 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the fourth day of April 2005, the return day of this citation.

Martell of Weymouth in said County, Rosemarie Hyland of Garden Cove in the State of California, Shari Ann Pratt of West Wareham in the County of Plymouth, Thomas D. Pratt of Forestdale in the County of Barnstable, respondents; and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Patrick J. Ward, Administrator and Sole Intestate Heir of the Estate of Barbara A. Ward, that the Decedent holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

Single family house located at 31 Burns Avenue, Quincy, Massachusetts and as more fully described in Certificate of Title No.: 63220, Book 317, Page 20, Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, as follows: A certain parcel of land situate in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth, bounded and described as follows:

NORTHWESTERLY by Burns Avenue, shown on the plan hereinafter referred to, fifty (50) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by lot numbered 7, shown on said plan, one hundred eighty two and 42/100 (182.42) feet;

SOUTHEASTERLY by land now or formerly of Henry M. Faxon, fifty (50) feet; and

SOUTHWESTERLY by lot numbered 5, shown on said plan, one hundred eighty-two and 77/100 (182.77) feet.

Said parcel is shown as lot numbered 6 on a plan drawn by W.G. Ford, Surveyor, dated 10/26/1926, as approved by the Land Court, filed in the Land Registration Office as No.: 11395D, a copy of a portion of which is filed in Norfolk Registry District with Certificate No.: 9508, Book 48 setting forth that he desires that – all – of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than one hundred ninety-five thousand ($195,000.00) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

II, both on the front lines and on the homefront."

Prizes will be awarded in each age division of the contest, with winners receiving their honors at the USS Salem's upcoming anniversary celebration, to be held Sunday, May 15, from noon to 4 p.m.

The essay contest is just the first in a series of events and promotions designed to raise awareness of "Kilroy Was Here" and Quincy's role in launching the phrase. Logue credited Quincy residents Frank and Kathy Hogan for suggesting last fall that the city play up its Kilroy connection.

Since then, a committee comprised of representatives from Discover Quincy, the USS Salem, the Hogans and Quincy Public School teacher Ron Adams have been meeting to plan ways in which the city could spotlight its role in the Kilroy story.

JENNIFER LOGUE

Other events and promotions planned for the coming months include:

• A Kilroy photo contest: Be on the lookout in the coming weeks for a special "Kilroy Was Here" flyer in The Quincy Sun. "We hope residents will take this flyer with them on their travels and take a photo of Kilroy in fun, famous and interesting locations," said Michael Condon, director of the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum aboard the USS Salem. "We'll do an exhibit of collected photos and post them online at www.whereiskilroy.com." Prizes will also be awarded for Most Exotic Location, Most Remote Destination and more.

• Ship-Naming Campaign: The Kilroy committee plans to launch a campaign to ask the Secretary of the Navy to name a ship the USS Kilroy Was Here. "The 60th anniversary of the end of World War II would be an appropriate time to recognize the tremendous morale boost 'Kilroy Was Here' provided to the Allied ward effort," said Logue, who noted that the USS Salem will be printing pre-addressed postcards requesting the name that residents can mail to Navy Secretary Gordon England.

• Postage Stamp Campaign: Postcards are also being printed to urge the U.S. Postmaster General to issue a "Kilroy Was Here" stamp as part of its World War II series.

• USS Salem Anniversary Celebration: Kilroy will be featured at a special May 15 celebration marking both the anniversary of the Salem's commissioning as well as the 10th anniversary of the ship's opening as a museum.

"The essay contest is really a kick-off to what we hope will be a fun and educational campaign celebrating Quincy's unique role in the 'Kilroy Was Here' phenomenon," Logue said.

For more information on the essay contest or other Kilroy events and activities, call Jennifer Logue at 617-657-0527 or Michael Condon at 617-479-7900.

"Based on letters the city received in 2003 and 2004, it is clear an application for Central was not filed," said McCauley. "Should an application have been filed along with the application for Quincy High School?"

McCauley said the Quincy High School and Central Middle School projects were pushed by the mayor's office as a package deal because the city council approved a $110 million bond for both plans in August 2003.

McCauley said he is concerned whether the city's failure to apply would be costly for Quincy taxpayers.

Delahunt Transportation Plans OK'd By U.S. House

The U.S. House has approved transportation legislation, championed by Cong. William Delahunt, aimed at improving public transportation in the Quincy area.

One section of the bill appropriates $2 million to add a third high speed catamaran to expand commuter ferry service from Quincy and Hull to Boston.

The new ferry would also provide seasonal service to the Boston Harbor Islands national park.

A second appropriation of $9 million for Hingham Marine Intermodal Center Improvements to provide direct access from the Hingham Shipyard to the MBTA.

This would enhance access to Logan Airport and serve as a gateway to the Boston Harbor Islands and the Adams National Historical Park sites.

"Traffic congestion is bad for business, bad for conservation and bad for public health," said Delahunt. "It makes all the sense in the world for the Bay State to conceive of maritime antidotes to clogged roads."

The transportation measure now goes to the Senate.

ST. BONIFACE CHURCH

For Clinic, Neighborhood Center

Manet Health, YMCA Consider Buying St. Boniface Church

By TOM HENSHAW

The Manet Health Center and the South Shore YMCA are considering the purchase of the former St. Boniface Church in Germantown as a clinic and neighborhood center.

"We are evaluating the property now," said Toni McGuire, the CEO of Manet Health, "to determine the uses that would be of the greatest benefit to the community."

"We're excited about the possibility," said Ralph Yohe, president of the South Shore Y, which runs the nearby Germantown Neighborhood Center. "It would be ideal for a health center and neighborhood center."

But, he added, "we still have a long way to go."

The last mass was celebrated at St. Boniface Sunday, Jan. 30, and Coldwell Banker was hired to broker the sale of the 47-year-old building with 30,000 square feet of land at 360 Palmer St.

The church building carries an assessed valuation of $1,078,600. The rectory is being retained by the Archdiocese of Boston for parish administration offices and an outreach center.

"We've had quite a bit of interest," said Theresa Donovan, who is handling the brokerage for Coldwell Banker. "We've had about 15 showings so far. We have a month and a half left to show."

The prospectus from Coldwell Banker said all offers will be submitted to the Archdiocese for review and consideration "based on proposed use, price and contingencies."

"We should be finished with our evaluation by the end of April or the beginning of May," said Manet Health's McGuire. "I think the Church will be looking for a decision by the middle of May."

She said the Manet Health Center and the South Shore YMCA have done "a lot of social and health services together but never in the same building."

The Germantown Neighborhood Center currently operates at the Snug Harbor School at 333 Palmer St.

"We need more space," said Yohe. "Locating in the church would be ideal. It's not far away from Snug Harbor where the Center has developed a close relationship with the school kids and the staff."

He said the Y has worked with Manet before, "but not extensively."

"With a better facility, we could do a lot more," he said.

St. Boniface was twice a victim of diocesan reconfigurations in the Boston Archdiocese.

In the late 1990s, it was merged with Our Lady of Good Counsel in Merrymount and renamed St. Elizabeth Seton Parish.

Last month, the two former churches were united with Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck as Holy Trinity Parish. Blessed Sacrament and Our Lady remained open as churches.

Contingent On 90% Reimbursement From State

School Committee Approves Revised H.S., Central Plan

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Despite warnings that the plan could lose 90 percent reimbursement from the state, the school committee agreed to pursue a revamped school project that includes a new Central Middle School and partially renovated Quincy High School.

And city officials, led by Mayor William Phelan and City Solicitor Monica Conyngham, vowed to press their case for the 90 percent to the School Building Authority (SBA), which oversees the disbursement of hundreds of millions of dollars in state funding for school projects.

On a 6-1 vote Monday night, the school committee's Building Needs subcommittee agreed to forge ahead with the project provided it receives 90 percent reimbursement from SBA.

"Working together as a community, I'm confident that common sense will prevail and we will be able to build a school that is beneficial to the students, neighborhoods and the city," said Mayor William Phelan, chairman of the school committee. "Certainly, I think it's fair to say that everyone wants what's best for the students, and that's why this option remains the best plan."

The move comes despite warnings from Treasurer Timothy Cahill, whose office oversees SBA, that the plan would not be eligible for the 90 percent reimbursement because it represents a dramatic change in scope compared to a previous plan that

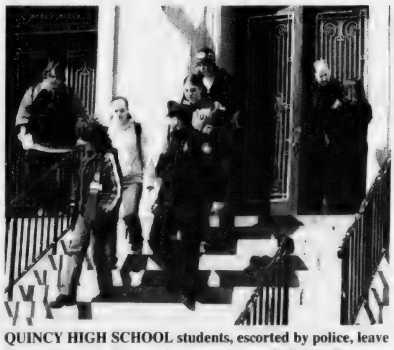
Phelan Announces Increased Police Presence, Other Measures



Security Stepped Up At High Schools

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday several new initiatives designed to boost security at the high schools after a gun-wielding intruder allegedly threatened a female student in a hallway at Quincy High School last week.

Phelan said the school department has already doubled the number of security personnel at Quincy High, assigned a full-time police officer to the building, and planned to implement a new telephone system that will alert parents of any emergencies.

In addition, the city plans to hire a consultant to study

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL students, escorted by police, leave the building last Friday after a gun-toting individual entered the building and allegedly threatened a female senior. At presstime, the suspect was still at large, according to police. Mayor William Phelan on Tuesday announced several new initiatives designed to boost security at the high schools.

$70,000 In Funds Allocated

19 New Housing Units For Father Bill's Place

Quincy's elected state delegation announces that the Center for Community Recovery Innovations Inc., an affiliate of MassHousing, has voted to commit $70,000 to Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore in Quincy.

The funds will be used as a one-time event to create 19 sober, affordable, single-room occupancy units for men at Father Bill's Place in Quincy. In partnership with Father Bill's the creation of these units will begin this month and full occupancy is expected by April.

"It is vital that those who are homeless or facing homelessness have an affordable place to live in order that they can regain their lives and place themselves on the road to recovery," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

Rep. Ron Mariano said the construction of the new units reflects a commitment by the state delegation to build on the progress made by Father Bill's Place regarding homelessness.

And Rep. Stephen Tobin said: "It is a blessing that with this funding many facing tough times and possible homelessness may have the option of finding refuge at Father McCarthy's House and an opportunity to get their life back on track."

Rep. Bruce Ayers added: "During these tough economic times it is important that we allocate the necessary funding to provide for the homeless to allow them an opportunity to recover from unfortunate hardships."

Granite Ball Heading Back To City Hall

THE 11-TON famed Granite Ball is lifted from the Fore River traffic rotary last Thursday in the first step to return it to City Hall where it originally was. The ball was loaded onto a flatbed truck to take it to Barre, Vt., for repairs and repolishing. On its return, it will be placed at Constitution Common at City Hall. The ball was dedicated there as a gift from the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association in 1925. It was moved to the Fore River rotary in 1937.

THE PEDESTAL AND foundation join the ball on the flatbed truck for the trip to Barre, Vt., for refurbishing. Following repairs, the ball will be placed on Constitution Common at City Hall where the World War II statue now stands. The statue, as originally planned, will be moved to restored Merrymount Park.

City Slow To Pay Medical Bills, Say Firefighters

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The Quincy Firefighters' Association is considering legal action against the City of Quincy for claims that the city is not promptly paying the medical bills of firefighters injured on duty, according to the union president.

At Monday night's meeting of the city council's public safety committee, councillors heard complaints from firefighters who say they have been hounded by collection agencies regarding unpaid medical bills. Some bills have gone unpaid for many months, or in some cases, years, they said.

The city is required to pick up the tab if a firefighter is injured on duty. The Fiscal 2005 budget contains a $55,000 line in the fire department's budget for such expenses.

"(The city) is paying the bills but they are waiting until the eleventh hour to pay them," said Union President Tom Bowes. "There has to be a better way to do things."

On-the-job injuries range from back sprains to torn rotator cuffs and strained elbow tendons, said Bowes.

Councillors heard from firefighter Christopher Barry, an eight-year veteran who said he has been receiving collection notices for $2,500 in unpaid medical bills that should have been picked up by the city.

"We need to know the city is going to back us up every time we go to an emergency," said Barry. "Will my credit be adversely affected?" he asked. "It's distracting and I find it offensive."

Kevin Tape, a four-year veteran of the fire department, highlighted the city's failure to pay a $78 bill for medical treatment stemming

Meeting March 31 On Wollaston Beach Rehab

The state Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) will conduct an informational meeting on the status of the Wollaston Beach Rehabilitation Project on Thursday, March 31 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll School, 225 Fenno St., Quincy.

Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers and Stephen Tobin are expected to attend the meeting.

Morrissey said DCR representatives, along with their contractor, S and R Construction Enterprise, will present an outline of the project's timetable and will be available to answer questions from neighbors and abutters.

Quincy's St. Patrick's Day Menu

A few tid-bits from the Quincy Partnership's 9th annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon:

Real estate developer-manager Dan Flynn who co-emceed the event with City Clerk Joseph Shea reminded the near 300 that filled the Quincy Elks Tirrell Room that the political barbs, jabs and pot-shots were just in fun. But he didn't sound too sure.

FLYNN

SHEA

"They say there are no reprisals but I haven't been able to get a building permit since last year," he quipped.

Most of it was in fun. But some of it, well . . .

Mayor William Phelan got off to a slow start but picked up speed.

PHELAN

"We had a Mayor of the Day contest," he announced. "It was won by a boy named Danny in the Quincy Point area."

Phelan then produced a doctored photo of himself standing tall beside the figure of a little boy with his political thorn, Councillor Dan Raymondi's face super imposed.

He held up another photo: "And there he is sitting at the mayor' desk."

Raymondi, who almost ran against Phelan two years ago and is still considered a potential mayoral candidate, was on vacation and not present.

Phelan took a shot at State Treasurer and former city councillor Tim Cahill over the latter's statement that the proposed new Central Middle School is not eligible for 90 percent state reimbursement.

Phelan, who has proposed a $400 tax rebate to seniors living in Quincy for more than 20 years, offered Cahill a slice, saying he needs it to remind him where he's from."

Phelan also wondered what other officials would spend the $400 on if they were eligible for the rebate. He suggested some might spend it this way:

Councillor John Keenan: Plastic surgery so people would stop confusing him with Jim Mullaney.

Councillor Frank McCauley: To buy the unsold copies of his Quincy political history book.

State Senator Michael Morrissey: Mooring fees for his boats.

Rep. Ron Mariano: To pay for all the postage on the letters he sent to the Department of Education. (His one letter to the state School Building Authority seeking information on a revised plan led to discovery a new Central School was not eligible for 90 percent state reimbursement.)

Sheriff Michael Bellotti, who in recent years has moved up into the headliner act at the luncheon was in his usual good form with Phelan one of his targets.

BELLOTTI

Picking up on the 90 percent reimbursement issue, Bellotti said that was why Phelan "had 10 percent of the snow removed in the city this year. He thought the state was going to do the 90 percent."

In his "Good News, Bad News" routine Bellotti added: "The good news is that schools are being built and funded all across the commonwealth. The bad news is none of them are in Quincy."

Bellotti then produced a make believe coupon made out to the City of Quincy "entitling you to 90 percent off ANY PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDING."

That had Phelan leaping on stage to accept the coupon and pose for a photo with Bellotti.

Getting back to his "good news, bad news":

"The good news: Highpoint. (The tall buildings apartment project on Quarry St. with stone-like exterior.) The bad news: I lost 10,000 votes. People thought I was bringing a jail to Quincy."

Bellotti paid tribute to Frank McCauley's long distinguished political career and noted that he was retiring.

"But there were signs he was slipping," Bellotti noted. "He knocked on a couple hundred doors and kept asking 'Do I live here?'"

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis put on a slide show on "Politics Make Strange Bed Fellows" that slid here and there. School Committee Vice Chairman Mike McFarland got off some Irish jokes.

DAVIS

McFARLAND

Former Councillors Greg Hanley and Joe Newton were among those attending. Old friends said they were happy to see them. And happier that they weren't called on to reprise their old act that almost got the hook. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin was there, too. But no one asked him to sing.

Shea read a supposed letter from Patriots quarterback Tom Brady who has lived in a Marina Bay condo a few years but is leaving.

In the letter he complains he had to put up with high taxes, coyotes and being accosted on election day while he contributed such things to the city as hosting a party for the Quincy Police Department. (The shooting celebration night.)

"But I never got a Tom Brady Day from the city. What did Derek Lowe (who did get one) ever do for the city?"

Shea went into his traditional "Amazing Shea-Zac" ala the late Johnny Carson routine, answers before questions. Among them:

"Sand, salt, shovel."

"Three things Quincy didn't see this winter."

Flynn had a question ribbing some of the city employees in the audience: "If you don't do anything all day, how do you know when you're done?"

Overall, it was a fun time.

But with a serious side.

The event netted the Quincy Partnership approximately $2,500 estimates Tom Koch, who chaired the luncheon with Partnership colleagues Bob Galligan and Joe Shea.

KOCH

It could be used, he notes, for the finishing touches to the Partnership committed large decorative granite fountain that will be a focal point in the restored Merrymount Park.

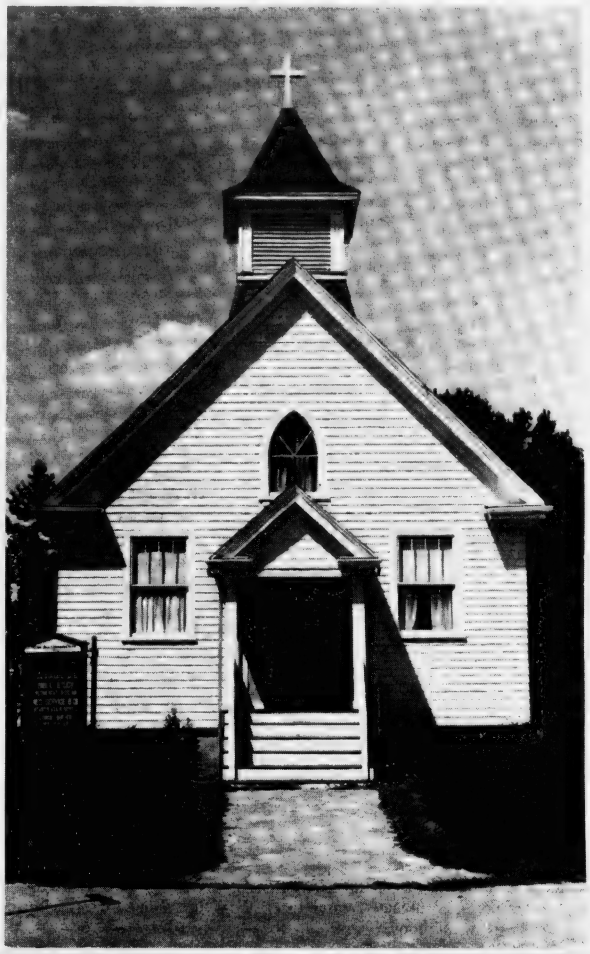
Or go to the next cultural project the Partnership will undertake.

They've already made a number of cultural contributions to the city. Like:

Commissioning the bronze statues of John Adams and Abigail Adams with John Quincy Adams as a boy, uplighting United First Parish Church, Thomas Crane Public Library, Old City Hall and the Adams Academy, home of the Quincy Historical Society, all of which are historic sites. And they have provided those attractive, inviting "Welcome To Quincy" signs you see at entrances to the city.

They do a lot. And they do it quietly, without fanfare.

And, so, we would like to tip our hat once more to the members:



Ed Keohane, chairman; Joyce Baker, Richard Barry, Mark Bertman, Bob Curry, Dan Flynn, Bob Galligan, Tom Galvin, Tom Koch, Mike McFarland, Jim Mullaney, John O'Connor, Marianne Peak, Maureen Rogers, Joe Shea, Don Uvanitte and Sandra Williams.

Well done!

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1972 postcard view of what was known then as the Adams Shore Community Church on the corner of Albatross and Pelican Roads in Adams Shore. Over the years the denominational affiliation of this church has changed several times. It began in 1917 as an evangelical prayer group inspired by the then popular Billy Sunday. They first met upstairs in the old Folsom's Market on the corner of Sea and Lee Streets. The pastor and church members then built this building with a small loan and their own handiwork. It later became a Congregational church and then United Methodist. Most recently it was known as the Adams Shore Bible Baptist Church, but now it has merged with the Tri-Town Baptist Church in Hull. Shuttle service is provided from here to Hull on Sundays. The future of this now unused building is uncertain. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Ayers Presents State House Citation

Capt. Jason Oberton Cited For Afghanistan, Iraq Duty

Rep. Bruce Ayers recently recognized Captain Jason Oberton with a State House citation.

Oberton, who lives on Sonoma Road in Squantum, served his first tour of duty in Afghanistan as a platoon leader of 32 soldiers and supported a civil military task force. His tour of duty was eight and a half months and he served as lieutenant during his tour.

In March of 2003, three weeks after Oberton returned home, he was sent on his second tour of duty to Iraq. During his six months of service in Iraq he was promoted from lieutenant to captain. While in Iraq he was an operations officer in a task force in Fallujah. His unit raided black market operations and worked to arrest senior Ba'ath party officials.

Upon return, Oberton took command of the 972 Military Police Company in January of 2004. He works full time as the Army head recruiter for ROTC in Connecticut. Captain Oberton was married on July 3, 2004.

Ayers congratulated Oberton and thanked him "for his bravery and dedication to protecting our country."

Ayers has sponsored and co-sponsored several pieces of legislation extending benefits to soldiers and their families during their tour of duty.

They Should Apologize

When President of Harvard University Dr. Lawrence Summers indicated that "the search for truth" is welcomed even in questions of women's abilities, he is totally in line with Harvard's motto: Veritas, which is "the search for truth."

Therefore, Dr. John Silver, former President of Boston University, is right on the dot in requesting that the Presidents of MIT, Princeton and Stanford — all of them women — ought to apologize to President Summers for what they said about him, rather than he apologizing to them for his remarks about women.

Council Approves New Addition At Quincy Hospital

This Week
1961
44 Years Ago

The City Council passed loan orders totaling $1,525,000, which, in effect, gave its stamp of approval to a proposed $1.2 million addition to Quincy City Hospital.

A loan order for $850,000 along with an expected $400,000 in federal aid was earmarked for construction of an X-ray department, a nursery and a special care unit at the hospital.

Councillor George G. Burke opposed the hospital order, saying that the city had more pressing needs, like a new City Hall.

Also included in the $1.5 million loan order was $225,000 for a North Quincy branch library, $150,000 for a new Atlantic fire station, $150,000 for streets and $150,000 for sewers.

PRINCIPALS INTERVIEWED

The School Committee interviewed seven candidates for the post of principal at Quincy High School where both Principal George A. Wilson and Asst. Principal Leland H. Anderson were retiring.

Six of the candidates already were working for the Quincy public schools – Dr. Robert P. Fox, Edmund J. King, Dr. Arthur Christie, John Chruciel, Frank Kerwin and George C. Young.

The seventh candidate was Paul Kirsh of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., a doctoral candidate at Harvard.

Pemberton Mills Disaster Topic Of Irish Storyteller At Library April 3

Grammy-nominated storyteller Sharon Kennedy will retell the Pemberton Mills Disaster Sunday, April 3 at 2 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The free event for adults and teens is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

In January 1860, the Pemberton Mill in Lawrence, Mass., collapsed, killing 88 immigrant workers, most of them Irish. In a dramatic, one-woman show for mature audiences, the story of this tragedy is told through the lives of the Callahan family – mother, father, and three daughters, all working in the mill. Other characters brought to life include brickmasons, engineers, and stockholders who testify in court about the faulty construction of the mill – and who is to blame.

Kennedy is a modern-day seanachie, or Irish storyteller, keeping the tradition of oral history alive by touring libraries, schools and theaters performing spoken-word pieces for audiences of all ages.

SHARON KENNEDY

Kennedy also entertains the younger set with children's folktales, a talent that earned her a Grammy nomination in 1998 for "The Patchwork Quilt," a collection of children's stories from around the world. She has won two Parents' Choice Gold Awards and was included in Yankee Magazine's annual listing of 60 people who give New England its flavor.

Kennedy has an M.Ed. in reading and early childhood education. She teaches storytelling and children's literature for Salem State College, Lesley University and Tufts University.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Spring Concert April 1

Maria Droste Services Fashion Gala April 14

The Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services will present a fashion gala "Totally Captivating" Thursday, April 14, at Lantana in Randolph.

The 6:30 to 10 p.m. event will feature both the women and men's collection by Boston designer Denise Hajjar.

Karen Donnellan and Patricia Queeney are co-chairing the evening.

KAREN DONNELLAN

PATRICIA QUEENEY

Local residents and business figures will be among the volunteer models. Among them: Taylor Flavin, Julie Westwater, Sharon Ryan, Carol Simmons, Maralin Manning, Jennifer Logue, Sarah Houghton, Jody Gallery, Louann Kevaney, Maureen McGuire, Denise Spillane, Kim Barry.

Male models will include Paul Flavin, Frank DeLuca and Richard Welch.

Susan Canavan of Aura Salon in Quincy will add cosmetic touches for the women models.

In addition to the fashion show and food, there will be a raffle and silent auction.

The Maria Droste Services agency is staffed and operated by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd and clinically certified professionals who serve as volunteers.

Since opening in Quincy Center in 1992, as a community counseling service, the agency has provided support to individuals, couples and family groups in need of counseling.

An adjustable fee scale is based on each client's ability to pay. Fund-raising activities such as the fashion show makes this possible.

For more information about the agency or for tickets for the fashion show, call the agency at 617-479-5686.

Advance reservations are necessary. No tickets will be available at the door that evening.

Tom Galvin Guest Speaker

Quincy's Granite Topic At Beechwood Breakfast

The history of Quincy's famed granite will be the topic of Quincy historian Tom Galvin at a 9 a.m. current events breakfast Wednesday, April 6, at Beechwood Community Life Center.

Galvin, whose "Scenes from Yesterday" is a postcard weekly feature in The Quincy Sun, will illustrate his talk with slides.

A guest at the breakfast will be Joanne Swingle Hennigan, granddaughter of Jonathan S. Swingle, owner of the famed Swingle's Quarry, deepest at 345 feet of all the Quincy quarries.

TOM GALVIN

Swingle donated the 25-ton block of granite from which the 11-ton polished Granite Ball was cut.

The ball was presented to the city June 25, 1925, to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625.

The Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association designated it be placed outside City Hall. It was moved from there to the Fore River traffic rotary in 1937 and is being returned to City Hall.

Both Galvin and Mrs. Hennigan are among those who have advocated its return.

The breakfast is open to all but because of space limitations, reservations are necessary and may be made by calling the Beechwood Center at 617-471-5712.

5 Residents on Dean's List At Bryant College

Bryant College in Smithfield, R.I., announces five Quincy residents on the Dean's List for the Fall 2004 semester.

They are: Bonita W. Yip, Wing Y. Chan, Linda Y. See, Melissa L. Spezzano and Paul Vu.

Applications Available For Rotary Club Scholarships

The Quincy Rotary Club is accepting scholarship applications from North Quincy High School and Quincy High School students.

Each year, the Quincy Rotary Club awards about 20 academic scholarships to deserving high school seniors from Quincy public schools.

Each of the 20 $1,000 scholarship awards is intended to support an applicant's commitment to continuing his or her education in technical, college or university programs.

Applicants are evaluated on the basis of having distinguished themselves academically, and in terms of their contribution to school and community.

Application forms are available from the scholarship chairperson at each school, and must be submitted no later than April 5.

Easter Egg Ring

Every Easter it was always traditional for all of our family to receive an Easter egg ring that our mother would bake for us. I have tried to keep this tradition by baking each of our children this delicious treat.

The nice thing about having this ring, is number one, there are hard boiled eggs on top that you can have. Then the delicious anise flavored slice of the ring you can enjoy with tea or coffee. And it can be made way ahead and refrigerated.

Today's recipe makes either one large ring using 4 eggs, or two smaller ones using two or three eggs placed on top.

Easter Egg Ring

1 stick butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
3 beaten eggs
3 1/4 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon anise oil (can be purchased at most stores) or 1 1/2 teaspoons anise extract
2, 3 or 4 eggs (not cooked)

In a bowl, mix the melted margarine or butter with the sugar until blended

Add the beaten eggs, the flour, milk and anise gradually blending until the mixture forms a dough that isn't sticky. (add more flour if it is.)

On a floured board, knead the dough until smooth. Make a circle (like a wreath) and place is on a slightly greased cookie sheet.

On top of the ring, place the uncooked eggs nestled around the ring, and securing them with thin pieces of dough across both sides.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for 25 to 30 mnutes.

Make an icing with powdered sugar and milk and a smidgen of the anise flavoring. Brush on top. Add colored decorative candies on top. Refrigerate until ready to use.

Happy Easter!

Quincy's State Delegation Tells Council:

Local Aid Level-Funded For City In Fiscal 2006

Quincy can expect a small increase in state local aid for Fiscal 2006, the city council was told Monday night.

Quincy's state delegation presented its annual overview of the state's fiscal status and gave councillors a preview of what they can expect for local aid during the upcoming fiscal year, which begins on July 1, 2005.

According to Gov. Mitt Romney's proposed 2006 budget, the city can expect approximately $34 million in local aid, a marginal increase over last year.

But Sen. Michael Morrissey told the council that those numbers are preliminary and will change somewhat during budget deliberations. Overall, however, Quincy can expect a slight increase at best, he said.

"People may have this perception that happy days are here again," said Morrissey, "but it's simply not the case."

The numbers are still down dramatically when compared to 2002, when Quincy received about $40 million in state local aid. The numbers have dropped ever since: the city received about $38 million in 2003 and $33 million in 2004.

Rep. Stephen Tobin said the current state budget is heading for a $600 million deficit, which will put a further crimp in efforts to secure more local aid.

"Even with slight revenue growth we see it being eaten up by health care costs," said Morrissey. "We will see little growth in state programs.

"We will continue to fight for local and it's a high priority with the state delegation. But we don't print money," he said.

Rep. Ron Mariano said the state delegation will continue to fight for MWRA rate relief for residents.

And Rep. Bruce Ayers said legislators will continue to work with the state on the Wollaston Beach rehab project, as well as push State Police to increase police presence along the beach during the summer months.

STEPHANIE AND CASSANDRA Swanson, ages 15 and 11, display some of the palm crosses, palms and pine boughs from Union Congregational Church in Wollaston. The church made use of pine boughs, a Newfoundland tradition on Palm Sunday. More than 100 palm crosses were distributed to area nursing homes by the church.

Three Arrested On Drug Charges At Presidential Estates

Three individuals were arrested last week in connection with an alleged drug dealing operation at Presidential Estates in Quincy Point.

On March 15, Police arrested Eddy Elcindor, 25, of Randolph, Andre Jones, 20, of Lynn, and Tasha Allen, 20, of Canton, after seizing drugs, a handgun and a large amount of cash at 83 Presidential Estates, Unit 2.

Elcindor and Jones pled innocent and were held on bail pending the outcome of a court hearing on April 8. Allen pled innocent and was released on personal recognizance pending an April 8 pre-trial conference.

Quincy Police Drug Control Unit, with the assistance of Braintree Police, served a search warrant at the residence and found 10 grams of crack cocaine, marijuana, a handgun and 50 rounds of ammunition, along with $30,000 in cash.

Police said the arrests broke up a sizeable drug ring, and credited concerned residents with ending the two-month investigation. The seizure put a significant dent in the cash flow and drug inventory of the distribution network, police said.

Planning Board Approves Downtown Zoning Changes

Mayor William Phelan's plan to revitalize the downtown area took an important step forward when the planning board recently approved several zoning changes to Quincy Center, including a measure that increases the maximum building height in specific areas to 15 stories.

Phelan has made downtown revitalization a hallmark issue of his second term as mayor.

"For the first time, we have the tools to make plans for downtown revitalization a reality," said Phelan. "The confluence of zoning changes, infrastructure improvements and financial incentives will allow us to achieve what has been talked about for decades. The overall impact of the possibilities cannot be overstated."

The rezoning measure also requires the approval of the city council. The proposal was introducted to the council last month and is currently being reviewed for consideration.

Phelan said he hopes to work with the council in an effort to bring much-needed zoning changes to the downtown area.

"There are a series of historic steps that we can take together that will help create jobs and reduce the tax burden on our residential neighborhoods," said Phelan.

Also part of the package is a proposal for the implementation of a District Improvement Financing (DIF) designation for the downtown, a new measure approved by the state to encourage "Smart Growth" initiatives.

Phelan said he plans to introduce the DIF legislation in the near future.

City Slow To Pay Medical Bills, Say Firefighters

from his possible exposure to blood borne diseases while assisting a victim in a 2003 automobile accident. Tape tested negative for disease, but the bill still lingers and he has been contacted by a collection agency, he said.

Bowes said there are several other outstanding bills pending before the city.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell agreed that firefighters should not be receiving medical bills and collection notices.

George Clark, the city's special counsel in the solicitor's office, characterized the current bill payment system as "imperfect," and said the city is working diligently to clear up the problem. Payment of medical bills should take only a few months to resolve, he said.

"If there is a problem with a bill, send us the bill and I will address it," he said.

Clark said the city handles thousands of bills and some may fall through the cracks.

He suggested that some firefighters are not bringing the problems to the attention of the legal department, causing lengthy delays.

"If bills are out there and they are not being brought to our attention it can be a lengthy process," he said.

But Bowes said firefighters have been persistent with the city.

"The reason why this has become a problem is we have brought these bills to the city's attention and nothing has been done about it," he said. "Maybe they are just waiting to save a little money, but they are doing it at our expense."

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, chairman of the public safety committee, called the current system "broken," and urged the city to step up its efforts to rectify the problem.

"Clearly, there is a breakdown in the sytem and we have hard-working public safety officials whose credit is being affected adversely," said Raymondi. "We need to do a better job. We need to send a message to all city employees that the City of Quincy cares about them and is concerned about their well being. And if they are injured on the job we will support them."

Raymondi scheduled a follow-up meeting on April 19 to get a better handle on the number of unpaid bills. A third party administrator has been invited to attend the meeting also.

He is hopeful that all parties can come up with a solution.

"Every time we shine the light on this problem the bills are cleaned up, but after awhile we are back to the same thing again," said Raymondi. "Let's come up with a policy change that will guarantee that these bills are cleared up."

March 28 At Marina Bay Clock Tower

Lt. Col. Orson Swindle Speaker At Memorial Service For Vietnam Veterans

Vietnam veteran and Federal Trade Commission member Lt. Col. Orson Swindle, aviator, United States Marine Corps retired, will be the featured speaker at the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces annual Memorial Service to be held Monday, March 28 at 3 p.m. at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower, across from 500 Victory Rd., Marina Bay.

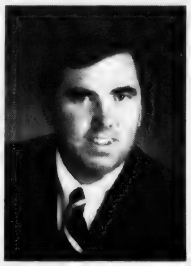
Swindle is a former marine aviator and Prisoner of War for six and a half years in the infamous Hoa Lo Prison, or "The Hanoi Hilton."

Governor Mitt Romney and Mayor William Phelan are scheduled to address the veterans as they proclaim "Capt. E. Alan Brudno Day" in Massachusetts and the City of Quincy.

Capt. Brudno is a 1958 graduate of North Quincy High School and Class of 1962 graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Capt. Brudno was a Prisoner of War for seven and a half years. He received the Silver Star and two Purple Hearts.

Joseph H. Brooker, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans, has invited many federal, state, county and city officials, as well as several military and color guards. Combined bands and Junior ROTC units from North Quincy High and Quincy High School have also been invited.

There will be a fly over (missing man formation) from Otis Air Force Base.



In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be moved to the North Quincy High School auditorium at 3 p.m.

Morrissey Calls For Probe Of Directory Assistance Charges

Sen. Michael Morrissey has asked the Department of Telecommunications and Energy to investigate telephone directory assistance charges in the Commonwealth.

With the implementation of new voice activated technology many customers have experienced difficulty in obtaining the desired phone number. The computer often cannot understand the caller's voice or gives them an incorrect number.

Calls are counted toward a customer's record even if they do not produce a result and customers will be charged for such calls if they are over their limit of 10 free calls per month.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

In addition, Morrissey said, the new automated procedure calls into question several service quality issues including the promptness of the answered call and the ability to speak with a live person.

"While it is inevitable that new technologies will be used they should not come literally at the expense of the customer as is happening now," said Morrissey.

He also suggested that customers with continued problems should be given rebates or credits toward futher directory assistance calls.

Lena Yuen On Dean's List

Lena Yuen of Quincy has been named to the dean's list at the University of the Sciences in Philadelphia for the fall semester.

Yuen is an occupational therapy student.

Quincy Medical Center To Be Colon Cancer Awareness Zone

The American Cancer Society and Quincy Medical Center are forming a Colon Cancer Awareness Zone to increase screening rates and public knowledge of the dreaded disease.

Quincy Medical Center will become a Colon Cancer Awareness Zone for five days from Tuesday, March 21 to Friday, March 25.

March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month nationally and Mayor William Phelan has proclaimed March 21-25 Colon Cancer Awareness Week in Quincy

The week of activities is designed to answer common questions about colon cancer and underscore the importance of early detection.

There will be educational lectures at QMC and a staffed information table offering the latest in screening guidelines as well as clinical education seminars.

The American Cancer Society estimates that 145,290 Americans will be diagnosed with Colorectal cancer in 2005 and 56,290 will die. 1,380 in Massachusetts.

If you are interested in establishing a Colon Cancer Awareness Zone, call the ACS at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

'On The Spot' College Partnership Successful At Quincy High School

"On the Spot," a partnership of 10 area colleges to interview potential student recruits, has been pronounced a success at Quincy High School in this, its third year.

Thus far this year, 35 per cent of Quincy High School seniors have participated in this interviewing process and 97 per cent of those have been selected to the college of their choice.

Partner colleges include UMass-Boston, Wentworth Institute, Massasoit and Bunker Hill Community Colleges, Fitchburg State, Mount Ida, Eastern Nazarene, Newbury, Bay State College and Ben Franklin Institute.

Juniors who are interested in this program should pick up a brochure in the main guidance office.

To Promote Nutrition, Healthy Lifestyle

Point Webster Students Hold Tasting Party

Strawberries and carrots were among those selected as Point Webster School students' favorites during a Healthy Choices Tasting Party held recently at the school.

The 6th grade tasting party is part of the school's commitment to promoting nutrition, fitness and healthy choices for its students.

Point Webster's entire 6th grade class participated in the event, using their math, research and communication skills to learn and to teach others about the benefits of fruits and vegetables as part of a health diet.

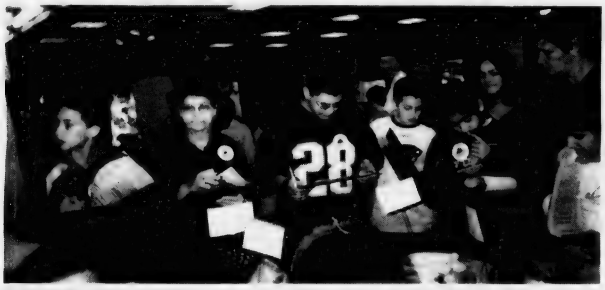
In preparation for the tasting party, students selected fruits and vegetables from Roche Bros. Supermarkets, a longtime business partner of the Point Webster Middle School. With the help of the school's teachers, students researched their fruits and vegetables in the school's Media Center and through hands-on learning activities.

Students and Roche Bros. staff divided the fruit by color and created tasting stations where samples were available.

Each station provided tally sheets, allowing visitors and students to rank their favorite fruits and vegetables. Some students were awarded prizes donated by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for their hard work.

The tasting party was also made possible with the help of Point Webster School Principal James McGuire and 6th grade teachers, including Charlene Bernick, Peter Conroy, Thomas DiTullio, Cynthia Gurwitch, Carolyn Treacy, and Health Choices Program coordinators Barbara Driscoll and Patricia O'Brien.

Community Police Officers James Dentremont and Ralph Radzevich also attended the event.



The results of the Tasting Party will be displayed at Roche Bros. Supermarkets.

STUDENTS AND FACULTY evaluate the nutritional value of various fruits and vegetables at a tasting party held in the Point Webster Middle School Media Center. The entire 6th grade class participated in the event.

SIXTH GRADE STUDENTS Christina Elisio, Diamela Kodra and Marya Ibraham, along with teacher Thomas DiTullio, browse the fruits and vegetables during a recent tasting party held at the Point Webster Middle School.

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Kesaris family, who owned the Clam Box on Quincy Shore Drive for 37 years were turned down twice for a beer and wine license by the License Board two years ago.

But Tuesday, amidst a lengthy objection from Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, and several abutters whose concerns included traffic, rowdiness and intoxicated persons, the board voted 3-2 in favor of the new owners, Bryan and Todd Schwanke.

The motion was made by Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and seconded by Jay Duca, director of inspectional services.

They voted in favor along with Chairman Joseph Shea.

Voting against the request was Police Chief Robert Crowley and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell. Both said they had concerns over the traffic and the speed in which most vehicles attain.

Some of the conditions that went with the favorable vote included the serving of the beer and wine inside the building only and not out on the patio.

Atty. Louis Cassis told the board that there would be a three and a half foot wrought iron fence installed. There would be no bar, and only persons dining there would be able to purchase beer and wine. He added that the beer and wine would be served in cups designating what brand and distinguishing them against soft drink cups. Cassis said also, that there would be a limit of two drinks per person.

Gutro said that on March 31, a meeting is scheduled regarding the renovation of the Wollaston Beach area which would "drastically transform the roadway." And thus make is safer he said. He suggested that the owners come back at that time for their request.

Gutro said he felt "offended procedurally" because he hadn't been notified by the owners or Cassis about the application for the beer and wine license.

Cassis said he had apologized to Gutro, but said he didn't have a feeling that he was an "obstacle." He also said he wasn't aware that Gutro had to be notified before the application was made.

Gutro told the board that "nothing had changed" since the Kesaris family applied for the license - that there were the same concerns about the traffic.

Shea referred to the first time the Keraris family applied back in March, 2003. The request was denied by a 5-0 vote.

Then in June, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) disapproved the actions of the License Board and recommended that the license be granted.

But Shea said in September, 2003, the board again rejected the request with a 3-2 vote.

O'Connell said if this request were made after that Wollaston Beach project is completed which Gutro projected would take from 18-24 months, O'Connell said he would have voted in favor. He called the area at the present time, a "dangerous place."

Crowley said he did not think the area was conducive to serving of beer and wine. His concerns were traffic and speed on the roadway.

Cassis related Quincy Shore Drive to Hull where restaurants that sell beer and wine are notable with virtually no problems.

Also in answer to the abutters who live near the Beachcomber and said they are "tired of persons intoxicated" in the parking lot. bCassis said no one will be able to purchase a second drink unless they are still eating.

Shea, who called the business a 'seasonal one" where it opens in March and closes in November, read a list of resstrictions which include some of the conditions already agreed by Cassis.

They include no bar, and beer and wine served only with food at the counter, no glass bottles, drinks served in a cup, different from soft drink cups, door monitors to see that no one leave the premises with a drink.

Also no more than two drinks per person while they are eating, and no signs depicting beer and wine.

Also that trash be picked up daily, and that the license board will review it from time to time.

The hours of operations will be from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and according to Cassis, there will be no change in the menu.

Scheele said that when the renovation of the beach is completed, that the owners may be able to come before the board for an extension of their premise to include the patio.

Cassis said the new owners are "exptrememly qualified" and noted that their experience include employment at Chili's, Legal Sea Foods, and for Human Resources at Bertucchi's restaurant.

The Kesaris family has been helping the Schwanke's for the past two weeks in training at the restaurant.

ST. ANN SCHOOL students celebrated St. Patrick's Day last week by entertaining classmates, parents and teachers with an Irish step dance demonstration. Among the performers were, from the left, Nicole Forbes, Alex Odegaard and Nona Henry.

Baby Sitter Training Offered By Red Cross

The American Red Cross will hold a baby sitter's training course for 11 to 15-year-olds Wednesday and Thursday, April 21 and 22, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Security Stepped Up At High Schools

ways to improve security at the high schools, he said. The city would seriously consider any recommendations made by the consultant, he said.

Phelan also said school officials are taking steps to reduce the number of entry points into the high schools.

"We want to ensure that Quincy High School and all the schools are safe for everyone," said Phelan. "We have to be pro-active, and we are taking steps to make make that happen."

Last Friday, at approximately 11 a.m., a female senior on the second floor accidently bumped into a man who allegedly told her "you shouldn't have done that." She said she saw a handgun tucked under his waistband, according to police. The man, described as a black male, age 19 to 22, with a thin build and short, dark hair, fled out the Woodward St. exit of the building, said police.

The incident forced police and school officials to lock down the school for the remainder of the school day.

Police Chief Robert Crowley said he looking for tips from high school students to help track down the suspect. He said there is a possibility that other students may have information about the incident, but are afraid to come forward.

"Sometimes kids are afraid to say anything," said Crowley. "But students must know that we will keep their identity confidential. If anyone knows anything about this incident we hope they would contact their teachers or school security."

Crowley said approximately 15 police officers descended upon the high school less than four minutes after the incident was reported.

As police scoured the school and surrounding area, nervous students called their parents on cell phones, informing them of the situation. Many parents wanted their students dismissed for the day and picked them up from school. The rest of the students remained in the building until the school day ended at 2:30 p.m.

Crowley said he was pleased with the police response to lock down incident. "Everything went according to plan," he said.

He suggested that the school's security plan can be improved, however.

"There is always room for improvement," he said, noting that police do not know how the intruder entered the high school.

On occasion, students leave ajar side exits while they leave and re-enter the building, he said.

The incident came just one month after a grenade hoax shut down the high school. Two days prior to that, students discovered a threat to blow up the school in restroom.

Two students, Joseph Berlo and Joshua Majorowski, both 17, were arrested after they were indentified as having talked about planting a grenade at the Center for Technical Education. They are awaiting trial on charges of possession of a hoax device, making threats and disturbing a school assembly.

School Committee Approves Revised H.S., Central Plan

has already received funding approval.

But Phelan said he, city officials and the state legislative delegation will try to "convince" SBA officials that the project remains Quincy's most viable option. He said the new proposal would allow the city to begin building a new high school this summer. All other options push back the high school project by several months or years, he said.

Phelan stressed that obtaining the 90 percent reimbursement rate is "imperative" to the success of the project.

On Tuesday, a spokesperson in Cahill's office reaffirmed the treasurer's opinion.

"The treasurer's position has not changed regardless of what happened at the meeting," said Eileen O'Connor, spokesperson in Cahill's office. "The SBA made a decision and the treasurer stands behind that decision."

School committee members moved quickly to schedule a meeting of the Building Needs subcommittee after Cahill said last week that the new proposal was unlikely to receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

In an interview with The Sun, Cahill said the high school project is site specific to Faxon Field.

Cahill backed a ruling issued recently by Katherine Craven, executive director of the state School Building Authority (SBA), that the city would lose the 90 percent reimbursement if a new high school was moved off Faxon Field, the original site for the project.

"If you move off that site you are taking a chance," said Cahill.

The new proposal calls for the construction of a new high school at the site of the existing high school coupled with a new building on Faxon Field. A new Central Middle School would be built on Faxon Field near Southern Artery and Russell Park.

But this project constituted such a radical change from the city's original proposal that Craven ruled it was too great to warrant the same reimbursement rate.

According to the city's original proposal, which was approved by the school committee and city council in 2003, the existing high school was scheduled for renovation to become Central. A brand new Quincy High School was scheduled to be built on the site of the current Center For Technical Education.

But the city's original plan became bogged down due to several environmental hurdles stemming from the existence of wetlands at Faxon Field. As a result, city and school officials have been exploring alternative plans for the Quincy High School/Central Middle School projects.

Phelan and Conyngham said the new proposal would face fewer environmental roadblocks because it has less impact on the surrounding neighborhood and nearby wetlands.

Cahill urged city officials and elected school officials to redouble their efforts to obtain the necessary environmental permits to build on Faxon Field. He said his office will work with city officials to obtain the necessary permits from the state Department of Environmental Protection and the federal Army Corps of Engineers.

After the meeting, most school committee members said they were willing to give the city a chance to plead its case, but said it is important for school officials to have a fall back position.

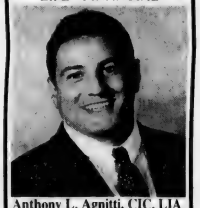
"I understand this is the preferred plan by professional educators but if it is not eligible for 90 percent it won't be built," said School Committee member Ron Mariano. "I think the city's basis for appeal - using the opinion of bond counsel and the city solicitor - is flawed. We may not agree with the SBA's decision but we have to live with it."

School Committee member Jo-Ann Bragg cast the lone vote against the proposed plan, calling it a "waste of time."

"We know for a fact that the original plan is eligible for 90 percent," said Bragg. "Our state delegation worked very hard to secure the 90 percent for this project. This vote is contrary to what we've voted on many times in the past."

Bragg said she is frustrated because committee members were told that several options would be unveiled to the public. To date, only two options have been presented, she said.

"The mayor has been very persistent with option two," she said. "I'm very disappointed that only two options have come before us. I would like to see architects come back with a variety of plans."



The vote came after committee members tabled a motion made by Mariano reaffirming the city's original plan to renovate the existing high school to become Central Middle School.

Committee members said there is a good possibility that Mariano's motion will be revisited if the city fails to obtain 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

"I'm not fighting this in court and dragging this out," said School Committee member Elaine Dwyer. "I prefer the new plan, but if the answer comes back that they don't have the 90 percent, then they don't have my vote. I'm not willing to jeopardize the high school project."

COA Names Noonan Chairman For 25th Year; Kearns Bows Out

John Noonan was elected chairman of the Quincy Council of Aging for the 25th consecutive year while, at the same time, the Council lost one of its most effective members with the retirement of Frank Kearns.

Noonan was first appointed to the COA in 1972 by Mayor Walter Hannon and has been reappointed by Mayors Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Frank McCauley, James Sheets and William Phelan.

Kearns, who is retiring after spending the greater part of his life championing the elderly, is 93 years old and a resident of the Marina Bay Skilled Nursing Rehabilitation Center.

He served a number of years as a commissioner on the Quincy Housing Authority and as a member of several other city boards and was named Citizen of the Year by The Quincy Sun.

"Frank would welcome hearing from his legions of elderly friends," said Noonan. "Visiting hours are from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Frank says he has never seen a strawberry frappe he didn't like."

Other officers reelected included John Molloy, vice chairman, and Mary Kay Bamford, secretary. New members of the Council on Aging appointed are Arthur Kennedy and Jay MacRitchie.

Kennedy, who succeeds Kearns, is a U. S. Army Air Corps veteran of World War II who retired in 1986 as human resources director after 30 years with AT&T-Verizon.

JOHN NOONAN

Director Tom Clasby and Nancy DiPaolo, executive administrator.

Married with seven children and a graduate of Boston College, he was production coordinator for the Army Air Material Command and later sales training director for McKesson-Robbins Pharmaceuticals.

MacRitchie, an attorney, was named executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, a post formerly held by the retired John Mather. He was a member of the City Hall legal staff for the past 23 years.

Also serving on the Council on Aging are:

Kathy Quirk, Mary Vallier, Al Farquhar, Mark Carey, Ken Tarabelli, John Chen, Dr. Joseph McDermott, Gerard Weidmann, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Noonan reviewed progress made by the COA in the past 25 years under the leadership of former Director Brian Buckley, current

NHS Homebuyer Workshop April 2

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, April 2, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy.

All potential first-time homebuyers are invited to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be prequalified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend a free Introductory Session to evaluate credit history and determine level of mortgage readiness. It's strongly suggested attendees obtain a current copy of their credit report.

The next Introductory Session will be held Monday, March 28 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy. Call in advance to register or discuss dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person that covers the First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, the Introductory Session and all workshop materials. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

QCAP Homebuyer Workshop

Quincy Community Action Program, Inc. will hold a free, two-session first-time homebuying workshop April 2 and 9.

The sessions will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the fourth floor conference room of QCAP, 1509 Hancock St. They are open to everyone regardless of income, credit rating or downpayment availability.

Workshop speakers are practicing real estate professionals. Participants receive a workbook with valuable web site and other reference material.

Participants who attend all sessions will obtain a certificate at the end of the course, which is a prerequisite for downpayment closing cost assistance, as well as favorable soft second and Mass Housing mortgages.

For more information, call Rona W. Goodman at 617-479-8181, ext. 172.

THIS IS A HAMMER

Preparation Is Key in Flood Zones

Q. I recently bought a home near a river that sometimes overruns its banks in springtime. While the builder assured me that the house is located beyond the 100-year flood mark, I still worry about floodwaters reaching my property. Is there any way to prevent this, or to minimize damage? — Sally in Georgia

A. Preventing floodwaters from reaching your home can be a hit-and-miss proposition. There's only so much that can affordably be done by individual homeowners to control the amount of water that reaches their property in a natural event like a spring flood. Beyond that, the city, county or state may be the only ones capable of diverting the water.

Long-term prevention measures may give you some peace of mind. First, make sure your property already has good drainage — that water from sprinklers or rain filters through the soil or drains away quickly. Test this simply by walking out on the lawn the day after a rainstorm; if the ground feels spongy or water wells up around your feet, then you may have a problem and should contact a landscaping professional.

If the river threatens your property, short-term emergency measures can be taken to keep the water out of your house, such as stacking sandbags at the perimeter. The local government may also attempt to divert the water by moving large amounts of earth into the water's path or digging shallow channels. How well these methods work depend on the river's whims — sometimes the water will push all manmade efforts aside.

If this happens, have a disaster plan in place and ready to implement. Your home's insurance policy should be reviewed now to make sure full flood coverage is included. Develop an evacuation plan for your family so that you can exit the house quickly and safely should the need arise. Store nonperishable food and water on an upper floor, where it can be accessed after the floodwaters recede.

If flooding becomes a possibility, move any irreplaceable valuables (heirlooms, photographs, etc.) and paperwork to an upper floor or away from the property completely. Place a suitcase with a change of clothes, toiletries and important documents (like your homeowner's policy) near the front door, so you can grab it and leave quickly if necessary. Contact relatives or friends ahead of time to arrange a place to stay, if possible.

If a flood occurs, follow the instructions of local authorities. Evacuate if ordered, and don't put yourself in danger to save a few objects. When the flood has passed, return to the house as soon as the authorities allow it to begin cleanup, and contact your insurance company quickly so that any damage can be noted and professional repair crews can be put to work before further problems (such as mold) take hold.

RECKLESS OPERATOR, DRUG DEALER APPREHENDED

On Thursday, March 17, at about 3:15 p.m., Quincy Police dispatch broadcast that a stolen motor vehicle was seen in the area of the Ryan Parkway.

Officer Dan Parisi responded to the area with other units. Officer Parisi observed a vehicle similar to the description of the stolen vehicle, make a sharp and erratic turn into the parking lot of Blockbuster Video. Officer Parisi, suspecting that the driver made the turn to elude police, entered the lot to find that an elderly man had narrowly missed being struck by the suspect's vehicle.

Officer Parisi spotted the vehicle traveling northbound on Hancock St. As he pulled up closer to the vehicle, Officer Parisi activated his blue lights and siren. When the suspect's vehicle fled, Officer Parisi notified dispatch of the direction the vehicle was traveling. Although the suspect committed numerous traffic violations in his attempts to escape the police, Officer Parisi's use of the radio helped stop this vehicle safely.

Officer Dan Flaherty stopped the vehicle, which turned out not to be the stolen vehicle, and both officers apprehended the suspect. The officers detected a strong odor of marijuana inside the vehicle and then discovered two large envelopes containing about one pound of marijuana. Numerous pills, including Clonazepan, were found in the vehicle.

Officer Flaherty gave the suspect his Miranda rights and obtained additional information that will be helpful to other investigations.

In summary, Officer Parisi's observations and actions, with the assistance of Officer Flaherty, led to the safe apprehension of a reckless operator and drug dealer.

Nice work!

Local Red Sox Fans Eye Baseball's Biggest Prize

By CHRIS POISSON

It may have been 86 years but it was well worth the wait for Red Sox Nation in Quincy.

Residents of all ages, fashioning their Red Sox apparel, posed for close-up pictures with the World Series trophy Monday when the Red Sox World Championship Trophy Tour docked in the City of Presidents.

The trophy stopped by Central and Atlantic middle schools and Quincy High School earlier in the day before arriving in City Council chambers at City Hall for a couple of hours in the late afternoon.

Sponsored by the Massachusetts Lottery in partnership with the Red Sox, the tour plans to visit each of the 351 cities and towns in the state. It has already reached more than 100 communities, as well as other stops in New England, California, Florida, Georgia, New York and the Dominican Republic.

State Treasurer Tim Cahill, Mayor William Phelan and the city's legislative delegation of Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Ron Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Bruce Ayers hosted the visit.

"The purpose of the Lottery hooking up with the Red Sox for the World Series Trophy Tour was to visit as many towns as possible," said Eileen O'Connor, spokesperson for the Treasurer's Office. "Quincy is one of many places to benefit from the partnership and I hope people got a chance to go see it and take pictures."

"It's exciting," Phelan said. "The residents of Massachusetts and Quincy waited a long time to see the World Series trophy. It's wonderful that the Red Sox in conjunction with the Treasurer's Office are bringing it to all the towns. So many people are enjoying it."

The children were impressed with the looks of the trophy, which stands 24 inches tall, weighs 35 pounds and features 30 pennants for each team in baseball.

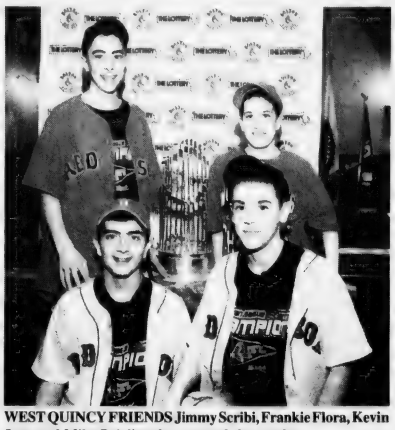
"It's shiny and nice looking," said 11-year-old Peter Campbell of Quincy.

"This is my first time seeing it and it's awesome," said 7-year-old Garrett Kulig of Quincy who came with his brother, Colin, 11, and friend, Troy Shepherd, 7.

Tim Nazzaro, 9, of Quincy said he was so excited he worked up a sweat. He also offered his prediction of the upcoming Red Sox season. "I think they'll probably repeat and it will be humiliating for the Yankees," he said.

Longtime Sox fans, seniors Betty Powers and Norma Baratelli of Quincy said they couldn't believe they saw the trophy in person.

"We're thrilled," Betty said. "It's real. We can see it in person. We couldn't wait to see it. It's very nice that it came to Quincy."



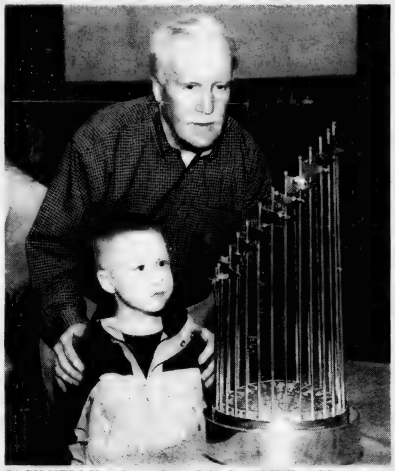
"I hope they win it again then we can come back here next year," added Norma.

Bob Foley, 76, who coaches the Keohane team in Quincy Youth Baseball's Cal Ripken League, said the kids will enjoy the trophy as much as his generation.

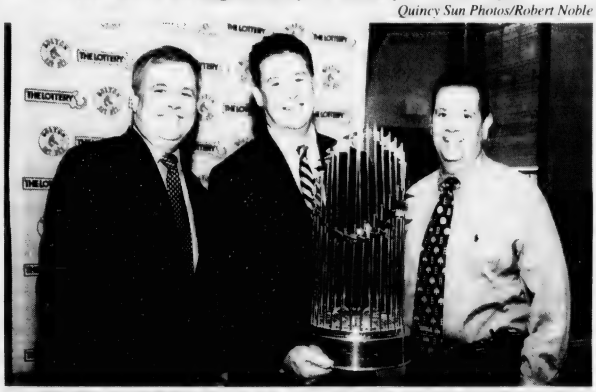
"It's great to see it at my age," he said. "It's a marvelous thing. The kids will enjoy it a lot, too. Hopefully they'll get to see another one sooner than I did."

Red Sox Nation has many memories of the historic season. Don Duggan, 63, of Quincy, said what he'll remember the most is sharing the experience with his son.

"The best part was having my son enjoy it as much as I did," he said. "And he didn't have to wait 63 years. So many people enjoyed it. The way they did it, coming back to beat the Yankees and sweeping St. Louis. It was well worth the wait."



WEST QUINCY FRIENDS Jimmy Scribi, Frankie Flora, Kevin Jago and Mike Prioli gather around the trophy.



ERIC BEATO and daughter, Carolyn, 22 months, pose with the trophy.

JACK KELLY and grandson, John David Kelly, of Squantum view the trophy up close.

JOHN MacFARLANE, 8, of Quincy counts the number of pennants on the World Series trophy.

THE WORLD SERIES Trophy held by Jarod Remy leaves City Hall Monday afternoon where it was on exhibit for the public. Remy, son of Jerry Remy, former Red Sox player and broadcaster, is part of the Red Sox World Championship Trophy Tour sponsored by the Massachusetts Lottery in conjunction with the Red Sox.

KATHY NAZZARO of Adams Shore brought her 9-year-old triplets Shane, Tim and Linsey and 7-year-old Mike to the see the trophy Monday in City Council chambers at City Hall.

SO MUCH COLD AIR

If you are going to inflate your tires and look to the pressure indicated on their sidewalls for guidance, you should know that the number indicated on the tire is its maximum inflation pressure, not the pressure recommended by the car manufacturer. Those who operate their vehicles under normal conditions are advised to follow the fire inflation recommendations found in their owner's manuals, on the label in the glove box, or labeled on the doorpost. Tire inflation is a matter of great importance, as it greatly affects the handling of the vehicle and tire wear. When gasoline prices are high, it should also be noted that maintaining proper tire inflation plays a big role in achieving optimum gas mileage.

Checking your tire pressure on a regular basis makes sense. It will save you money and aggravation. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is very proud of our ASE Certified technicians and of the equipment they have on hand to properly service every system of your car. Whether your car needs new a tune-up or major repairs, see us first. If you are in the market for superior service that you can count on, then see us today at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: Tire pressure should be checked every time engine oil levels are checked, about every third fill-up.

Safety Tips For Easter Egg Hunts

Easter is Sunday and many Americans will indulge in chocolate bunnies, jellybeans and dyeing eggs.

The Stop & Shop offers these tips to make your Easter egg hunt is a safe one.

"Eggs are an important staple of the Easter holiday," said Paulette Thompson, Health and Wellness manager for Stop & Shop. "Just a few safety precautions can make all the difference."

Stop & Shop reminds customers that safe food handling should be a priority, especially during the Easter holiday. As people busily prepare and decorate their Easter eggs, Stop & Shop offers the following safety tips to keep consumers aware of the dangers of food-borne illness that are often overlooked during this hectic time.

Egg Tips

Proper refrigeration, cooking and handling should prevent most egg safety problems. Stop & Shop offers some safety steps you can take at home to ensure an "egg-cellent" holiday:

• Don't eat raw eggs.

• Refrigerate eggs: Take eggs straight home and store them immediately in a refrigerator set at 40 degrees or slightly below. Store them in the grocery carton in the coldest part of the refrigerator and not in the door.

• Use eggs within recommended times: Use raw shell eggs within three to five weeks. Hard-boiled eggs will keep refrigerated for seven to 10 days. If eggs crack on the way home from the store, break them into a clean container, cover it tightly and keep refrigerated for use within two days.

• Handle eggs safely: Wash hands, utensils, equipment and work areas with warm, soapy water before and after contact with eggs. Don't keep eggs, including Easter eggs, out of the refrigerator more than two hours. Eggs kept at room temperature for more than two hours lose moisture and become susceptible to bacterial growth.

• Cook eggs: Eggs should be cooked thoroughly until yolks are firm. For hard-boiling eggs, cover eggs in a saucepan with water and bring to a boil. Turn off heat, cover and then let stand for a half hour.

Now that you've properly hard-boiled your eggs, check and make sure there are no cracks. Color only uncracked eggs. If you want to eat your dyed eggs later, use food coloring or specially made food-grade egg dyes. If eggs crack during dyeing, discard them. Also discard any eggs that have not been refrigerated for more than two hours.

If you are hiding eggs, pick the hiding places carefully. Don't hide them too far in advance; they should be hidden and found within a two-hour span. Try to avoid locations where the eggs could come in contact with dirt or animals. Make sure to refrigerate the eggs after they have been found.

Cancer Society Program Helps Cancer Patients 'Look Good, Feel Better'

The American Cancer Society's Look Good...Feel Better program is a unique event designed to help patients maintain their personal appearance while undergoing treatment for cancer.

The free program features cosmetologists leading group sessions, providing tips and practical techniques for coping with hair loss and changes in the skin that often result from chemotherapy or radiation therapy.

There will be a Look Good...Feel Better session Monday, April 4, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the South Surburban Oncology Center, 700 Congress St., Quincy.

Stronger Arms and Shoulders

Q. What can I do to help tone and strengthen my arms and shoulders? I currently work out three days a week and have seen progress in my lower-body strength, but seem to be much weaker in my arms and shoulders. Spring is approaching fast and I want to be able to wear my short-sleeve shirts. Help!

A. Strengthening and toning the muscles of the upper body can be a challenge for many people. Although we use our arms and shoulders for basic everyday tasks such as taking a bag out of the car, lifting a briefcase or pocketbook, or even placing a box on a shelf, often our upper bodies are not nearly as conditioned as our lower bodies.

Most people have a stronger lower body because we depend on our legs to walk or run, climb stairs, bend and support our body weight throughout the day.

That being said, there still are ways to improve the strength of your arms and shoulders.

Evaluate your current fitness program and identify the exercises that require you to use your arms and shoulders. If you find that the majority of your workout consists of lower-body exercises, then a slight change in adding two or three upper-body exercises could help you begin to see results.

Exercises such as the chest press and lat pull-down (back) utilize your arms, but they are not exercises that focus on the arms or shoulders alone. Specific exercises such as a bicep curl (front part of arm), shoulder press and triceps push-down (back of arms) will help focus on strengthening the arms and shoulders.

If you find after looking at your program that you are already performing two or three exercises for your arms and shoulders, then you may want to look at the amount of weight (intensity), the number of repetitions performed and your exercise technique. Each of these factors plays a big role in seeing progress.

To find if you are exercising at the correct intensity, determine the number of sets and repetitions you would like to complete. Then choose a weight that will begin to fatigue your muscles during the last three or so repetitions. For example, if you choose to complete two sets and 15 repetitions, pick a weight that becomes challenging around the 12th or 13th repetition.

Also, consider the length of time you have been performing your current exercise routine. If you have been doing the same routine consistently for more than three weeks, it may be time to progress to a more difficult intensity or to add an additional set of exercises.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

MOUTH-WATERING FACTS

Normally, the salivary glands produce about two pints of saliva daily, which is 99% water. The other 1% is made up of proteins, calcium, and other substances that contribute to the complex and vital mix. Saliva protects the teeth and lubricates the mouth. It buffers mouth acids and regulates acid balance in the mouth. It provides the environment in which tooth minerals can be replaced, and, surprisingly, it is part of the immune system, containing antibodies that fight microbes. It also initiates the first step in digestion, helping to break down starches and fats. All of which is to say that dry mouth, or xerostomia, is a condition that should be diagnosed and treated effectively to preserve your health.

Be sure to ask us if you are concerned about any oral condition. Nothing can take the place of a healthy set of natural teeth. Teeth are meant to last for a lifetime. They will take care of you, if you take care of them. If you need answers to questions about any dental health care issue, don't hesitate to contact us at 617-479-6220. We will discuss all of your options with you. Our recommendations for dental treatment are always in the best interest of the patient. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Chronic dry mouth can cause severe tooth problems.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A pesky health problem should clear up soon. Meanwhile, travel — both for personal as well as for business reasons — is strong in the Aries aspect this week, and well into the next.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Look for Bovines to be on the move this week, whether it's traveling for fun or for business. Other "moves" include workplace adjustments and, for some, relationship changes.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Geminis who have just gone through a hectic period involving job and/or family matters might want to take some well-earned time out to relax and restore those drained energy levels.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A romantic situation seems to have stalled, just when the Moon Child was expecting it to go forward. Could be a bad case of miscommunication going on. Talk it over openly and honestly.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Showing a genuine interest in something that's important to a friend, family member or colleague could open a communication line that had been pretty much shut down for a while.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Making a potentially life-changing decision takes as much knowledge as you can gather, plus determination and patience. Take your time working it out. Don't let anyone rush you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You should be back on schedule and heading in the right direction after clearing up a misunderstanding. But there could still be some setbacks. If so, correct them immediately.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A business matter keeps you pretty busy, but try to squeeze in time to be with family as well as close friends. You need the good vibrations you get from people who care for you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Investing in an attractive prospect (business or personal) with little or no information can be risky. Avoid future problems by getting all the facts before you act.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close to you might have an unexpected reaction to a decision you feel you're prepared to make. Listen to his or her point of view. It could prove surprisingly helpful.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't give up yet. That once warm personal relationship that seems to be cooling off fast could recover with some tender, loving care, and who better than you to provide it?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Career matters are strong this week. You might want to enter a training program to enhance your skills. Also, consider getting professional help in preparing a brilliant resume.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of respecting the feelings of others, which is one reason people feel comfortable having you in their lives.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

First Church Of Squantum

A Roman Catholic Mass of the Lord's Resurrection will be celebrated Easter Sunday morning at 11:30 at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Road.

The Mass, sponsored and organized by the Friends of Star of the Sea, will be the first time a Catholic Mass will have been celebrated in Squantum since the suppression of Star of the Sea Church in October 2004.

"The displacement felt by many Star of the Sea parishioners during Christmas was just too much for some to bear," said Sean Glennon, co-chairperson of the Friends of Star of the Sea. "We didn't want to go through that again, especially on Easter."

"The purpose of this Mass is to help keep our faith community together," said Maureen Mazrimas, co-chairperson of the Friends of Star of the Sea.

As for the validly-ordained Catholic priest who will preside over the Mass, the Friends of Star of the Sea have recruited Fr. Terry McDonough, a married Catholic priest who resides in Duxbury with his wife and two children.

"In view of a shortage and unavailability of celibate clergy, the use of married priests to provide pastoral-Sacramental ministry to Christ's faithful is a measure that is valid, lawful and appropriate for our time," said Fr. Delmar S. Smolinski, JCL, SWL, Canon Law consultant for CITI Ministries.

An offertory collection will be taken up at the Mass. If Star of the Sea is reopened in some capacity, the collection money will then be given to the archdiocesan fund for sick and retired priests, as is the custom at every church on Easter Sunday. Otherwise, the money will be evenly distributed among charitable organizations in the area.

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Sacred Heart Parish

Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, announces its celebration of the Sacred Triduum (The "Three Days"), the "high holy days" of the liturgical calendar.

The evening Mass of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. on Holy Thursday, March 24, followed by Eucharistic Adoration in Our Lady Chapel until 11 p.m.

The Liturgy of Good Friday will be celebrated at 3 and 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday, March 25.

The solemn Easter Vigil will begin in the darkness of Holy Saturday night, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. with the blessing of the new fire and the procession of the paschal candle into the church. This night, the Elect and Christians from other denominations formally will enter into the life of the church through the Easter sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation and Eucharist.

During these Three Days, the parish will celebrate the Liturgy of the Hours, the church's official daily prayer, with Morning Prayer at 9 a.m., Mid-day Prayer at noon and Night Prayer on Holy Thursday at 10 p.m. and on Good Friday at 9 p.m.

Our Lady Chapel, the parish's daily Mass chapel, will be open throughout the Three Days for private prayer.

Sacred Heart Parish also will hold a blessing of Easter food baskets at 12:15 p.m. on Holy Saturday afternoon. This traditional Eastern European custom is growing in popularity among Catholic parishes around the country.

Easter Sunday Masses will be celebrated at 7:45 a.m., 9 a.m. (with the youth choir), 10:30 a.m. (with the adult choir) and at noon. There will be no 5 p.m. Mass.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

EASTER TRULY BRINGS WITH IT SYMBOLS OF REBIRTH. Here are some of those symbols which we all recognize as part of our Easter celebration. Perhaps you would want to share them with your children to help them understand the significance of the symbolism of this beautiful season of resurrection and new life... EASTER EGGS: Ancient Egyptians believed the universe was created from an enormous egg. From ancient times eggs have been symbols of fertility and have been planted along with seeds to insure a good harvest. LILIES: The Spring flowers represent the new life that is happening all around us. Nature is awakening from the death of winter, and it celebrates by bringing into bloom some of its most beautiful flowers. NEW CLOTHES: Many people wear new clothes on Easter to symbolize the new life that they have received with the Risen Christ... AND THE EASTER BUNNY? How did he ever get into Easter? Well, the Easter Bunny is a Christ-symbol. He is the giver of gifts, the bearer of new life, for this is the time of year when rabbits give birth to their young in the wild. Jesus Christ, by his rising from the dead, now gives us a gift of new life with Him and through Him, and in Him in heaven.

May this Easter, wherever you worship, bring all of you and your families genuine Christian happiness. A JOYOUS EASTER TO ALL!

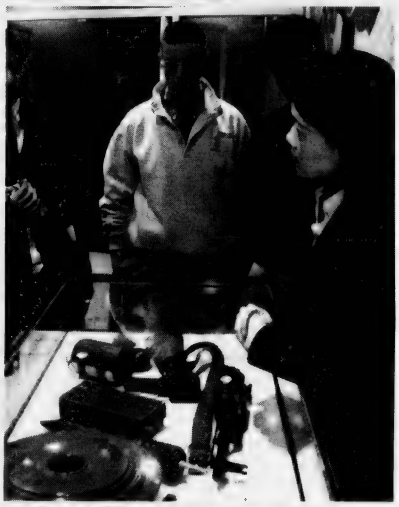
Quincy Youths Visit New York City

Three Boston College High School students from Quincy were among the 55 students who recently took a one-day bus trip to New York City.

Seniors Kevin M. Barry and Michael J. McGarty along with sophomore Alexander M. Miner took part in the trip that was sponsored by the Model United Nations Club but was open to all BC High Students.

The trip included a tour of the United Nations headquarters and Security Council, a briefing about the death of Yassir Arafat by Gregory Levey, representative of the Permanent Israeli Mission to the United Nations, a viewing of land-mine artifacts, the Norman Rockwell Golden Rule mosaic mural and the portraits of past UN Secretary Generals.

A special treat was a visit to the Reuters News Headquarters in Times Square and a meeting with the CEO of Reuters America, Phillip Lynch, a BC High graduate of the class 1978.



The students had a little free time in Times Square, followed by a visit to the Christmas tree at Rockefeller Center and the trip concluded with a prayerful visit to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Nicholas Argento, chairman of the BC High Social Studies Department, and two members of the Social Studies department, Sheila Chrestensen and Christopher Martell, led this annual trip to the UN.

Boston College High School is a Jesuit, Catholic, college-preparatory school for young men founded in 1863. The school enrolls approximately 1300 students from some 80 communities in eastern Massachusetts.

BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH School students Michael J. McGarty and Alexander M. Miner, both of Quincy, view land-mine artifacts at the United Nations.

Retirement Board Approves Move, 5-0

Pension Payment Dispute In Superior Court

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The recent controversy surrounding how pension payments are divied up between the city and the Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) has moved to Superior Court.

And there are strong indications that the city may intervene in the case because hundreds of thousands of dollars in pension payouts are at stake.

At last week's meeting of the Quincy Retirement Board, members voted 5-0 in favor of appealing a recent decision by a state authority which ruled that the board unfairly billed QHA for pension payments over the past few years.

In a ruling issued last month, the state Contributory Retirement Appeal Board (CRAB) called the retirement board's method of assessing pension costs to the Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) "arbitrary and capricious," and ordered the recalculation of pension assessments issued to the authority.

CRAB ruled that the authority was being hit with pension assessments that did not properly reflect its number of employees. If allowed to stand, the ruling could save QHA nearly $500,000 a year, but the city would have to pick up the tab on the other end.

The retirement board, which controls the city's $250 million pension fund, agreed that it is not aggrieved by the latest decision; it will receive funds from the city and QHA one way or another.

The controversy involves how those funds are calculated between the two entities.

CRAB ordered the retirement board to switch its method of calculating pension costs from a "payroll" method to an "actuarial" formula.

The payroll method involves splitting the cost of the retirement system between the city and housing authority based on payroll. The actuarial method more closely reflects pension costs generated specifically by housing authority retirees, according to CRAB.

Before the latest decision, the retirement board believed it was acting within its authority. QHA appealed to CRAB after the retirement board was upheld by the Public Employee Retirement Administration Commission and the Division of Administrative Law Appeals.

A court fight will decide the issue once and for all, according to board members.

"We're not saying the city is right, or the housing authority is right," said George McCray, retirement board chairman. "We want to be fair to all parties, and this is the only way to do it."

While voting to appeal the decision, the retirement board urged the Phelan administration to get involved in the court fight.

"I would just hope the city becomes more involved in the process - it seems it has the most to lose," said McCray.

Retirement board member Roger Perfetti said: "We don't want to go down this road alone."

Up to this point, the city has not officially submitted an opinion on the matter, but Mayor William Phelan this week gave strong indications the city is ready to intervene if it sees fit.

"We will take any steps necessary to protect the city's rights," said Phelan.

At the meeting, Largey urged the board to appeal the decision, saying it would have an "enormous" financial impact on the city if it were allowed to stand.

"We're ready to be very aggressive in promoting the city's case," he said.

QHA did not make a presentation at the meeting, but the authority's board of commissioners issued a letter to the retirement board asking that the ruling stand.

In the letter, the board said inflated pension costs have sapped the authority's reserve fund. Changing the assessment formula would allow the authority to "replenish its reserves, restore its financial stability and use its funds for the affordable housing it is charged to operate and maintain," the letter stated.

"With the acknowledged affordable housing crisis, it would seem that housing funds should be used for affordable housing and not to pay the costs of city employee pensions," the authority's board of commissioners wrote.

In 1999, Quincy Hospital merged with the private Boston Medical Center and dropped about 1,000 employees from the city's ranks. CRAB ruled that the privatization amounted to an "extraordinary" event, and therefore the authority should not be forced to make up the accrued liability from hospital employees.

After the hospital was privatized, the authority began to pick up a larger chunk of the total payroll and was hit with bigger pension costs.

QHA's pension contributions ballooned 40 percent to $725,000 in 2002. That number rose to $924,000 in 2003 before Phelan opted to intervene.

Realizing the authority's plight, the city stepped in to defray some of the pension costs. But that financial arrangement did not continue.

Regardless of the decision, Phelan says he remains hopeful that the two sides can come to a mutual agreement regarding pension costs.

"Based on our past negotiations I don't think there will be much difficulty in reaching a resolution," said Phelan. "But whether we agree with the housing authority relative to that does not preclude the necessity to appeal this current decision."

SOUTHWESTERLY by lot numbered 5, shown on said plan, one hundred eighty-two and 77/100 (182.77) feet.

Said parcel is shown as lot numbered 6 on a plan drawn by W.G. Ford, Surveyor, dated 10/26/1926, as approved by the Land Court, filed in the Land Registration Office as No.: 11395D, a copy of a portion of which is filed in Norfolk Registry District with Certificate No.: 9508, Book 48 setting forth that he desires that – all – of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than one hundred ninety-five thousand ($195,000.00) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Norfolk Probate & Family Court, 35 Shawmut Road, Canton, MA 02021 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the twenty-ninth day of March 2005, the return day of this citation.

Witness, DAVID H. KOPELMAN, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this fifteenth day of February, 2005.

To Help Low Income Residents Build Computer Skills

Bank of America Foundation Donates $20,000 To QCAP

The Bank of America Foundation recently donated $20,000 to the Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. (QCAP) Learning Links Technology Center, which offers a range of technology opportunities to low-income Quincy and South Shore residents.

Paul Anghinetti, senior vice president and market manager for Small Business Banking, presented the award to QCAP's Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo.

"Bank of America is committed to promoting economic self-sufficiency in Quincy and throughout Massachusetts," said Anghinetti. "Learning Links provides the training and support people need to develop essential computer skills that lead to good jobs."

Since March 2004, Learning Links has provided free computer access for low-income South Shore residents who wish to learn basic computer skills or to use the Internet. The center is a place for people of all ages, who do not have computers at home or how cannot pay for an Internet connection, to build essential computer skills.

Learning Links services are provided free of charge to low-income residents.

Members have access to the center's 12 computers, email, Internet, and Microsoft Office software, as well as computer training courses and special activities. The center has a play area for children, so families are welcome.

"This donation will help us continue to provide people of all ages a comfortable and supportive place where they can build the computer skills needed to succeed in school, on the job, and in the community," said Strollo.

Neponset Riverwalk Meeting At City Hall April 4

Plans for a new five-mile riverfront pathway along the eastern shore of the Neponset River will be the topic of discussion during a special presentation on Monday, April 4 at 6 p.m. in the city council chamber, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The riverwalk presentation will be made before the Environmental Committee of the city council. Members of the Quincy Environmental Network and the Neponset River Watershed Association will be on hand to answer questions.

The riverwalk would significantly increase access to the Neponset shoreline for residents of the metropolitan Boston area. Many people already use the Neponset Greenway on the northern and western bank of the river for recreation, exercise and commuting. A trail on the opposite shore would open up these opportunities for many metropolitan residents.

For more information please contact the Neponset River Watershed Association at 781-575-0354 or rocklen@neponset.org.

Correction

A story in last week's Quincy Sun misspelled the name of a resident who spoke at the Quincy License Board meeting.

John A. Laukkanen of Woodcliff Road addressed the board during a request for a beer and wine license from Patrick and Dianne Mannion, owners of Mannion's Family Restaurant on Granite St.

The Sun regrets the error.

Council Wants More Assurance On Funding

Phelan Seeks United Front On School Plan

WELCOME BACK - The Rev. Michael Drea, a priest from St. Ann's of Wollaston on loan for the day to celebrate mass for former parishioners of Mary, Star of the Sea Church in Squantum, greets Easter worshippers at the door of Squantum Elementary School. Father Drea was permitted by Archbishop Sean O'Malley to officiate at mass after members of the closed parish announced plans to hold mass in the Protestant First Church of Squantum with a married priest at the altar. By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The Phelan administration and school officials are asking the city council for support as they move ahead with plans for a revamped high school/middle school project.

Despite warnings that the proposal would not receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state, Mayor William Phelan and City Solicitor Monica Conyngham pitched the $132 million plan to councillors during a special meeting of the city council Monday night.

Phelan and Conyngham characterized the revamped project as one that will more adequately address environmental concerns at Faxon Field and tackle the educational needs of students. In addition, the revamped project could begin as early as this summer, they said.

"We are right at the beginning of what could be a wonderful project for the students of Quincy," said Phelan. "It could actually be in the ground this summer. And now is the time we should be working together to make it a reality.

"I think it's important that as a city we work together to convince the state to provide us funding for the best project, not the second best project," he said.

Some councillors cast a wary eye on the new proposal, however, saying the city needs more assurances from the state before it moves ahead with the plan.

"The mayor wants to put forth a united front on this issue and I agree with him on that," Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said of Phelan. "The new plan appears to be the more palatable plan from an environmental and neighborhood perspective, but I'm not so sure it's the most viable plan."

Councillor John Keenan said the mayor is painting an overly optimistic view of the project.

"I just don't realistically think we can put a shovel in the ground this summer," said Keenan.

Keenan said the city's original $110 million financing plan earmarked for the new high school will need to be revisited if the city moves ahead with changes to the project. In 2003, the city council approved the bond for a renovated high school to become Central Middle School and a new Quincy High School on Faxon Field.

"Clearly, they will have to come back before the council to approve a new bond for this plan," he said. "There is a lot of work that needs to be done - I would like to see more alternatives with the additional land, more building plans, information about finances, reimbursement rates and making sure we provide a quality education to our students during the construction process."

The city's bond counsel, however, said the changes would not require an overhaul of the financing package.

At Easter Mass In Squantum School

A Ray Of Hope For Star Of Sea Parishioners

By TOM HENSHAW

What could have been an illicit Easter Sunday mass of desperation turned out to be a joyous spiritual occasion and a ray of hope for beleaguered members of the former Mary, Star of the Sea Parish in Squantum.

"It was fabulous, really great," said Maureen Mazrimas, co-chairperson of the Friends of Star of the Sea.

"It couldn't be better," added Sean Glennon, also a co-chairperson. "The turnout was out of this world."

Mazrimas said the number of worshippers who packed the gym at Squantum School was estimated at 700, judging from the number of people who took communion.

Glennon placed the attendance at between 700 and 800, most of whom stood around the walls of the gym and up and down adjoining hallways.

"We knew they wanted to come back," he said, "but we never expected so many. It was almost double the number we expected.

After 34 Years, Barbara DiNatale Steps Down

Quincy's First Female Police Officer Retires

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

One of Quincy's true pioneers is stepping down after serving the public good for 34 years.

Barbara DiNatale, the city's first female police officer, is closing the book on a distinguished career in law enforcement that paved the way for women in the Quincy Police Department.

"I tried to do my job well because I felt I had an obligation to do well for other women who might follow me," said DiNatale.

She was hired by the city in December of 1971, serving as an undercover detective in the department's drug unit. She moved to the department's juvenile division a year later and worked there for 13 years. From there, it was on to Quincy District Court to serve as one of the department's police prosecutors. She held that position for 19 years, retiring last month.

"When I was first appointed there were no provisions in the law for women to become a police officer," said DiNatale.

She was one of several females in Massachusetts looking to break into the ranks of municipal law enforcement. But strength, height and weight requirements had to be changed to allow women to apply for positions.

The matter was fought vociferously in the courts until the standards were eventually changed.

DiNatale said she became interested in a law enforcement career after learning about the job from four cousins who were police officers in Boston.

Some police officers were apprehensive about her arrival, she said. But they turned out to be more affected by it than her.

BARBARA DiNATALE as Quincy's first female police officer.

"It really didn't feel odd to me," she said. "I think it felt more odd for the men.

"It was an uphill battle, and I really didn't care what they thought about me personally, as long as I was doing my job as a police officer," said DiNatale. "I felt I had to prove myself, and there were people who were willing to give me a chance."

She credits former Mayor Walter Hannon, former Police Chief Francis X. Finn, and William Delahunt, the police department's legal counsel at the time, with helping her to knock down Quincy's gender barrier.

"Bill Delahunt brought it to the chief's attention, who then made it known to Mayor Hannon - everyone had to be on the same page for this to work," she said.

DiNatale said the courts have changed dramatically since she first began serving as a police prosecutor.

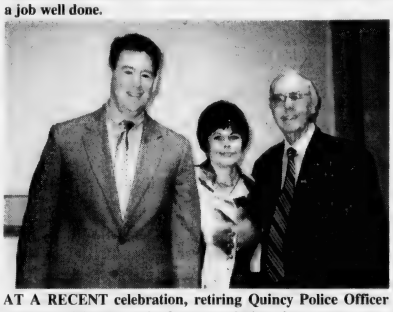
"Court are more community-based now," she said, "and they have more programs to deal with domestic violence and youth advocacy. They do a lot more to ensure that kids don't continue to wind up in the courts."

She said the change is a reflection of an overall shift in the role of law enforcement in today's society.

"Years ago, the police were known strictly as crime fighters where you catch 'the bad guys,'" said DiNatale. "But now we are reaching out to the community and focusing on crime prevention as well."

Judging by the outpouring of support from her friends, DiNatale's breakthrough can be deemed a smashing success.

Last month, more than 300 friends and supporters paid tribute to her by holding a retirement party at Lombardo's in Randolph.



"She did her job in a very professional manner, but she was also a very caring person," said Arthur Tobin, Clerk Magistrate at Quincy District Court. "During the course of her 19 years at the court, there was always some act of kindness from her for those who needed it. She touched a lot of people's lives through the years.

DiNatale's legacy continues as Mayor William Phelan recently made a concerted effort to hire more female police officers. The city recently hired several new female officers after the city requested a gender-specific civil service list.

"Detective DiNatale used the power of example for all of Quincy's police officers," said Phelan. "She had great integrity and conducted herself in a way that earned her the respect of all who worked with her. She will be sorely missed."

Credited With Hospital's Financial Turnaround

Schuster Leaving Quincy Medical To Head Emerson Hospital

Christine Schuster, credited with leading Quincy Medical Center from possible closure to a strong financial turn-around as CEO the past five years, is leaving to take charge of Emerson Hospital in Concord.

In a letter to QMC staff and employees, Tuesday Schuster, 44, said:

"With bittersweet emotion, I am today announcing my resignation at Quincy Medical Center (QMC). On July 1, 2005 I will assume the position of President and CEO of Emerson Hospital in Concord, Mass.

"It has been a tremendous privilege to lead QMC for the past five years. Together we have accomplished a great deal in bringing new services and higher standards for patient safety and quality of care to the community. I am very proud of what we have achieved.

"I know that while there will continue to be aggressive challenges, your steady focus on fulfilling the goals in our strategic plan will reap future success for the institution. While I am looking forward to the opportunities that lie ahead, I will deeply miss you all and will always hold QMC in a special place in my heart."

Quincy Medical Center, a 232-bed hospital, is a clinical affiliate of Boston Medical Center. Emerson hospital serves 25 communities in the 128 and 495 area. Emerson is closer to Schuster's home in Sudbury and she calls it "my community hospital."

Schuster has been CEO at Quincy Medical Center since May, 2000.

CHRISTINE SCHUSTER

Robert Curry, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said in a letter to the staff and employees the board in the next few weeks will name an interim President and CEO and launch an extensive search for a permanent leader.

Curry had warm praises for Schuster and her accomplishments at QMC.

"Christine has led QMC through a strong financial turn-around over the past five years. Her leadership provided a clear strategic roadmap which helped guide us to significantly reduce our losses, increase our patient discharges and raise the bar on our high standards for patient safety and quality of care.

"Among Christine's many accomplishments at QMC is our continued growth in new programs and services through our affiliation with Boston Medical Center. In particular, we have broadened our market share through new initiatives in women's health, geriatrics, vascular services and surgery, as well as the formation of the BUMG Internal Medicine practice in Quincy.

"Christine also spearheaded our outreach efforts to the Asian community, expanded the breadth and professionalism of our philanthropy program and helped reposition QMC in the community with strong representation in the South Shore Chamber and the Massachusetts Hospital Association.

"She was been a truly remarkable CEO and will be deeply missed by everyone in the QMC family and the greater South Shore region. I know that we are all very proud to watch Christine grow in her career, as she moves on to lead a community hospital that serves 25 towns in the 128 to 495 region.

"Please join me in wishing Christine all the best in her new position and thanking her for five very successful years at the help of QMC."

Prior to joining Quincy Medical Center, she served as President and CEO of Athol Memorial Hospital and Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of the Tenet Saint Vincent Healthcare System in Worcester.

Schuster served as the Director of Critical Care Services at the New England Deaconess Hospital. She also spent five years as a health care management consultant with Cooper & Lybrand.

Schuster received an MBA with honors from the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business and a BS in nursing from Boston University. She is a member of the Board of Trustees of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the Massachusetts Hospital Association.

For MHA, she serves as the Chair of the Clinical Issues Advisory Council, which provides advice and counsel to the Association on key medical, clinical and public policy issues.

For the South Shore Chamber, she serves as Vice Chairman of Government Affairs. Schuster also serves on the American Hospital Association Regional Policy Board.

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 30, 1820, Anna Sewell, author of "Black Beauty," is born in Norfolk, England. "Black Beauty" was the first significant children's story in the English language to focus on animal characters, establishing the precedent for countless other works.

• On April 1, 1877, ignoring the taunts of fellow miners who said he would only find his own tombstone, Edward Schieffelin begins prospecting for silver in present-day southern Arizona. Later that year, Schieffelin would find one of the richest silver veins in the West, which he named the Tombstone Lode.

• On April 2, 1917, Jeannette Rankin, the first woman ever elected to Congress, takes her seat in the U.S. Capitol as a representative from Montana. Her entrance was delayed for a month while congressmen discussed whether a woman should be admitted to the House of Representatives.

• On March 31, 1930, the Motion Picture industry formally adopts the Production Code to avoid government censorship. For the next three decades, the "Hays Code" imposed strict guidelines on the cinematic treatment of sex, crime, religion, violence and other controversial subjects.

• On March 28, 1947, the final episode of the long-running sci-fi series "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century" airs on CBS radio. Trapped in a collapsed mine in 1919, Buck Rogers mysteriously slept for 500 years, then woke to a strange new world.

• On March 29, 1973, two months after the signing of the Vietnam peace agreement, the last U.S. combat troops leave South Vietnam as Hanoi frees the remaining American POWs held in North Vietnam. The Vietnam War was the longest and most unpopular foreign war in U.S. history and cost 58,000 American lives.

• On April 3, 1996, at his isolated cabin near Lincoln, Mont., Theodore Kaczynski is arrested by FBI agents and accused of being the Unabomber, the elusive terrorist blamed for 16 mail bombs that killed three people and injured 23 during an 18-year period.

City's Population 90,000?

City Clerk Joseph Shea thinks Quincy's population could crack the 90,000 mark this year.

That would be an approximate 2,000 gain over the 88,025 shown by last year's city census.

Shea is encouraged by the rate of return of this year's census forms. Forty five thousand were mailed out Feb. 18 and some 28,000 have already been returned.

SHEA

"I think we can reach the 90,000 figure this year," he says. "If all the forms are returned, I would be pretty sure of it."

Shea notes that the census does more than just determine the city's population.

The information gathered also helps update voter and jury files, the pre-school age population and other demographics of statistical importance to the city.

To make it easier for residents to return the forms, Shea enclosed return postage paid envelopes.

He'd like to get them all back before the end of April.

Incidentally, among the forms already returned were two that had the office staff smiling.

One listed Chloe, a dog, as one of the residents of the household. The other had Chilly, a cat, as a resident.

But then, most people with pets do think of them as members of the family.

JO-ANN BRAGG is pretty much tied up in her tax consulting business at the moment and hasn't been able to give much time to a decision facing her about her political career.

SHEA

Bragg, who will be completing her third term (12th year) on the School Committee, is going to do one of three things:

Seek re-election to a fourth term, run for city councillor at-large or — retire from the political scene.

"Those are my three options," she says. "And right now I am not leaning toward any particular one."

She says she will get together with her campaign committee in April to talk it over and make a final decision.

It's hard to think she might retire. She's been a hard-working, respected member of the School Committee, always willing to take a stand on issues — no matter how controversial.

McFARLAND

If she does decide not to seek re-election that would mean two open school committee seats this year.

Vice-Chairman Michael McFarland long ago declared he will not seek re-election but run for the city councillor at-large seat Frank McCauley is leaving.

AS WE HAVE said before, once a Quincyite, always a Quincyite regardless of where they might go.

For example, this note from Larry Carter down in Kissimmee, FL:

"Although Jean and I moved from Quincy in 1982, we still consider it our home town. Our three children, Dick, Lynda and Dorothy, all products of Quincy public schools, now reside in New Hampshire, Tennessee and Virginia. And enjoy reading The Sun when they visit us in Florida where we moved to in 1997 from New Hampshire.

"I attended both Quincy High and North Quincy High, class of 1946. Should you decide to print this letter, we would welcome a note from anyone who might remember us. Looking forward to The Sun for another year."

(Larry's address: 1588 Parkgate Drive, Kissimmee, FL 34746.)

Incidentally, there are over 400 Sun subscribers in just about every state — including Hawaii and Alaska. All former Quincy residents still very much interested in what's going on "back home."

Friendly Visitors Sought For Seniors

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with the program coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

Safe Driver Course To Educate Elderly

A driver safety program especially designed for the elderly will be presented Tuesday, April 19, and Thursday, April 21, at the sheriff's office, 2015 Washington St., Braintree.

The two-day course, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day, is sponsored by the Quincy Council on Aging, Sheriff Michael Bellotti and the American Association of Retired People (AARP).

The cost is $10.

The program includes information on aggressive drivers, anti-lock brakes, car phones and how to adjust driving to age-related changes in vision, hearing and reaction. There will be no tests. To register, call 617-376-1506.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 real photo postcard produced for private use that shows the apparent subject posing at a quarry that became known as Echo Lake near Bower Road in Quincy Point. Long before this quarry existed, large granite boulders and surface stones found in this area of Quincy, known as the South Common, were used to build the King's Chapel on Tremont Street in Boston in 1749-52. It was the first building made from Quincy granite and it is still standing. Almost 100 years after the Chapel was built this quarry was opened using quarrying methods first developed in West Quincy. Although there is a lot of other stone outcropping on the South Common this was the only granite quarry opened in that part of the city. In the 1800s, a short railroad was built along Hayward's Creek to carry the granite from the quarry to the Fore River. The Fore River Railroad uses that roadbed today. First known as Wendell's Ledge and then Wendell's Quarry, this quarry became better known in the last century as Razzle-Dazzle or Echo Lake. Whatever its name, after the quarrying stopped it became a popular swimming hole for Quincy's youngsters. The open quarry, which was behind today's Wal-Mart, was eventually deemed a hazard and was filled in many years ago. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Chief Calls For State Police Aid In Shipyard Strike

This Week
1960
45 Years Ago

Police Chief William Ferrazzi called on Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to ask Gov. Furcolo for the assistance of the state police in handling the strike at the Fore River shipyard.

Earlier this week, there were tense periods when 200 supervisory workers stood around the shipyard gate, considering entering the yard, until they were sent home by management.

The chief noted that he had 70 policeman at the site, where locals 5, 90 and 151 had 200 pickets.

In the meantime, John Grogan, president of the Shipbuilders Workers Union, met in Washington with Eastern Congressmen. He told them that striking workers at Bethlehem plans at East Coast yards would return to work if President Eisenhower appointed a fact-finding board.

Congressman James Burke was told by representatives of the Labor Department that the President would not name a fact finder unless the request was made by both parties.

HISTORIC BOARD MANAGERS REJECT STATUE

D. Foster Taylor, chairman of the Board of Managers of Historic Places, opposed the proposal to erect a statue of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams.

"The Board of Managers of Historic Places desires to be recorded in opposition to the proposed erection of a statue memorializing Presidents John and John Quincy Adams for the reason that they are adequately memorialized at the present time," he said.

Taylor termed the project, which would be built by students' donations, to be in poor taste, too expensive and without a suitable site.

HERBERT BOOSTS SHORE PROJECTS

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert pushed for state funds to match the city's three quarter of a million dollars in proposed shore improvements at Adams Shore, Houghs Neck and Germantown.

The Herbert package included seawall construction at Braintree Ave. and Shellton Rd., rip-rap construction along Manet Ave. and at Snug Harbor, dredging at Bayswater, beachwork at Edgewater Dr. and a boat ramp at Nowe's Boat Yard.

Thanks Mayor Phelan For Decision To Return Granite Ball To City Hall

Thank you, Mayor Phelan. I have asked for the Granite Ball to be brought back to City Hall for at least nine years.

I am on the committee for the Granite Workers Park on Copeland Street in West Quincy. We had a lot of volunteers help to get this park together. We are now down to just three volunteers.

One volunteer comes from Brockton at least twice a week to work on the grounds. We have lots of visitors from out of town. I'm sure it would also be a treat for these people to visit City Hall to see the "Ball." Our committee collects donations for the flowers we plant in the park.

The three volunteers are Mr. Steve Cantelli, a teacher at Lincoln Hancock School, Barbara Persampiere of Brockton and myself. We welcome more volunteers. We have many brides and graduation pictures taken at our beautiful park.

Thanks again Mayor Phelan.

Build The School

The time has come to stop the name calling over the school plan. The time has come to build the high school. The children of Quincy deserve this new school.

Mayor Phelan did a great job stopping the school project from being built on the wrong location. The Site Committee should never have picked a toxic dump for a site to build a school for the children of Quincy.

The mayor will finish his great work by getting this project off the ground. With a new high school, the education system will be on the road to great improvements.

First Annual Cod & Flask Festival This Weekend At Common Market

The Common Market Restaurants will be turned into Quincy's first and only Icelandic dining place this weekend when the first annual Cod & Cask Festival features the food, drink and music of the North Atlantic isle.

The festival will celebrate sea food and beer Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2, at the restaurants, 97 & 110 Willard St., West Quincy, and culminate in the drawing of a winner of a trip for two to Island.

Highlights of the weekend will be the culinary efforts of Icelandic-born Chef Worly, once the chef for Vigdis Finnbogadottir when he was president of Iceland, and the Icelandic music of the jazz trio Guitar Islancio.

The weekendlong festival is sponsored by the Common Markets Restaurants, Icelandic Brand Seafood, Iceland Naturally (a government agency promoting Icelandic business) and Busch's Budweiser Select Beer.

Bud Select, a new low carbohydrate and low calorie beer, will be featured at Darcy's Pub at the Common Market Friday night when customers can listen to Irish music and will be eligible to win two Red Sox tickets.

The weekend schedule:

Thursday, March 31 - Private kickoff party hosted by broker SP Jackson, Icelandic Seafood & Budweiser for trade and customers with Guitar Islancio, hors d'oeuvres, open bar and giveaways followed by karaoke.

Friday, April 1 - Lunch in the Village Common Food Court with music by Guitar Islancio from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., free samples of Icelandic food specials and giveaways.

Friday, April 1 (after work/early evening) - Pub crawl in Darcy's Pub with music by Guitar Islancio from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., and giveaways.

Friday, April 1 (night) - Guitar Islancio music along with karaoke in The Cafe de Paris Lounge and giveaways.

Friday, April 1 (evening) - Budweiser promo and giveaways (with special feature Bud Select) in Darcy's Pub, Red Sox tickets giveaway and Irish music from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight with Denis O'Gorman.

Saturday, April 2 (afternoon) - Iceland's Chef Worly gives a cooking demonstration in the grille area of the Village Common Food Court, 110 Willard St.

Saturday, April 2 (evening) - Budweiser promo beer in Darcy's Pub and giveaways.

Saturday, April 2 (evening) - Guitar Islancio playing in The Cafe de Paris Lounge, giveaways, the winner of the trip to Iceland announced and late night karaoke.

To enter the trip to Iceland contest by visiting any of the Common Market's restaurants through 8 p.m. Saturday, April 2. It is sponsored by Icelandic Brand Seafood and Iceland Naturally.

Michael Ricca To Perform At Scullers Jazz Club April 12

MICHAEL RICCA

Singer and actor Michael Ricca, formerly of Quincy, will bring his solo cabaret show, "Take Me to the World," Tuesday, April 12, at 8 p.m. at Scullers Jazz Club in the Double Tree Guest Suites Hotel in Boston.

The single performance will feature the music and lyrics of Stephen Sondheim, with homage to Leonard Bernstein and Rodgers and Hammerstein, creating original interpretations of their music.

Ricca will present some of Sondheim's best known songs, including "Send in the Clowns" and "Losing My Mind," and examine what influenced him both musically and dramatically.

Since returning to the Boston area from New York several years ago, he has appeared at leading Boston theaters, including Huntington Theatre Company, New Repertory Theatre and SpeakEasy Stage Company.

April 12 At Roche Brothers Supermarket

Point Webster School Math And Science Fair

Point Webster Middle School sixth grade students will take over Roche Brothers Supermarket on Falls Boulevard during the school's second annual math and science program on Tuesday, April 12 from 9 to 11 a.m.

Students will tour the supermarket and receive instructions on how to estimate, calculate, count, measure and compare products.

A business partner of Point Webster School, Roche Brothers invites its shoppers and other community members to visit the supermarket's Quincy location and participate in the fun and challenging "real world" math and science activities.

The fair is held in part through the Parents in Partnership program to encourage learning inside and outside the classroom setting.

NQHS Choir In Concert For Tsunami Relief

The North Quincy High School Choir, under the direction of Timothy Carew, will present a memorial concert "The Storm is Passing Over: Songs of Courage, Love and Hope," Tuesday and Thursday, April 12 and 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The concert will be performed in memory of the victims of the tsunami disaster in Southeast Asia and North Quincy High School teacher Betty Cianci, who died recently.

Tickets at $6 each are available in the NQHS principal's office. One dollar of each ticket will be donated to UNICEF for the tsunami disaster relief fund.

Wollaston Garden Club Wins Blue Ribbon At Flower Show

A design vignette of a wedding ceremony setting reflecting the style of Vera Wang won a blue ribbon for the Wollaston Garden Club at the New England Flower Show the first time it ever entered the competition.

Cynthia Antonopoulos of Houghs Neck, whose previous experience was with the Museum of Fine Arts "Art in Bloom," was tapped as principal designer by Marina Kelly, the club's new president.

Antonopoulos said she spent hours reviewing bridal magazines, books on staging and internet web sites devoted to Vera Wang but the real inspiration came from a book on Kirigami, the art of Japanese paper cutting.

By incorporating Feng Shui principles of design, paper and spectacular floral arrangements, she created a design that reflected the simplicity and elegance of Vera Wang's design philosophy.

Antonopoulos and Pat Artis of Wollaston created the floral arrangements, while Marina Kelly, Cynthia O'Meara and Ruth Griffin aided in the design process.

Daffodils are chosen by the ACS because they are the first flower of spring and symbolize hope for a cancer-free world.

Quincy Hero's Great Nephew To Attend Caddy Memorial Service

A newly minted Marine second lieutenant will have a place of honor at 60th anniversary memorial services for Pfc. William R. Caddy Sunday April 3 at 12 noon at Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive.

He is 2nd Lt. Thomas Morse, great nephew of the Marine hero from Quincy, who was killed March 3, 1945, in the battle for Iwo Jima and won a Congressional Medal of Honor for his act.

Morse, 23, from Dunfries, Va., was recently commissioned a second lieutenant out of Officers Candidate School in Quantico, Va., and is about to enter training to be a pilot.

He is a natural to become a Marine flyer since his father, Commander Ralph Morse, was a Naval aviator who flew President Ronald Reagan about the country for five years.

Morse will be joined at the memorial ceremony by Mrs. Beatrice Bevans of Norfolk, the sister of Caddy for whom the Caddy Detachment, the Quincy Chapter of the Marine Corps League, is named.

Members of the Caddy Detachment who attend the memorial service are urged to wear their uniforms for the wreath-laying ceremonies at Caddy Park. All veterans of Iwo Jima are invited.

There will be a collation after the service at the Caddy Detachment, 111 Newbury Ave., North Quincy. Coffee and doughnuts will be served at the Detachment starting at 10 a.m.

Caddy's Congressional Medal of Honor citation, signed by President Harry S. Truman, tells of his "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty."

He was a rifleman with Company I, Third Battalion, 26th Marines, Fifth Division, when he threw himself on a Japanese grenade, absorbing the explosion with his body and saving the lives of his buddies.

"He gallantly gave his life for his country," concluded Truman.

Former Ward 4 Councillor Will Serve Four Months

D'Amico Sentenced To Prison On Corruption Charges

Former Ward 4 City Councillor Michael J. D'Amico was sentenced to four months in prison last week on charges of extortion and making false statements to the FBI.

D'Amico, 30, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Rya Zobel to four months in prison, followed by two years of supervised release. Judge Zobel also imposed a $5,000 fine.

D'Amico was convicted on June 8, 2004 by a trial jury of extortion and making a false statement.

According to testimony presented during the seven-day trial, D'Amico, while a city councillor, extorted $2,500 on or about Oct. 15, 2001 from the owner of a Quincy Dunkin' Donuts for the purpose of influencing a road reconstruction project that would benefit the store. The evidence at trial showed that D'Amico then deposited the money into his personal bank account.

FBI agents later questioned him about having taken the money, but D'Amico repeatedly denied ever having accepted it. Those denials formed the basis of D'Amico's conviction for making a false statement.

The evidence further showed that, after learning that he was the target of an FBI investigation, D'Amico then filed a sworn campaign finance report in which he made several false entries concerning the $2,500.

The case was investigated by the FBI and prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorneys Emily Schulman and S. Theodore Merritt in US Attorney Michael J. Sullivan's Public Corruption and Special Prosecutions Unit.

Inter-Agency Council To Meet April 19 At QMC

The Inter-Agency Council (IAC) of the South Shore will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, April 19, from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. in the McCauley Conference Center at Quincy Medical Center.

Dr. Lisa Gurland, director of Behavioral Health Planning and Development for the State Bureau of Communicable Disease Control, will speak on "Behavioral Health Issues Related to Disaster Response."

Registrations at $7 for members and $10 for non-members, are due by April 14 and may be made by calling Karen McKim and the Quincy Health Department, 617-376-1205.

MASS FOR MASS - Part of the assemblage, estimated at some 700, former members of the closed Mary, Star of the Sea Parish, await the start of mass under a basketball backboard in the gym of Squantum Elementary School, their church for the day. The priest, Father Michael Drea, was supplied by the Archdiocese of Boston for one day only. Quincy Sun photos/Noreen O'Shea

OLD FRIENDS and neighbors from the former Mary, Star of the Sea Parish renew friendships during mass at the Squantum School.

CO-CHAIRPERSONS of the Friends of Star of the Sea Maureen Mazrimas and Sean Glennon share a partial triumph before mass outside Squantum School.

A Ray Of Hope For Star Of Sea Parishioners

"We only ordered 200 chairs. We ended up getting more from the classrooms. We had to ask those who could stand comfortably to give up their chairs to the elderly."

Both Mazrimas and Glennon detected what they felt could possibly be a change of heart by Archbishop Sean O'Malley, who directed that Star of the Sea Parish be eliminated last October in an economy move.

Friends of Star of the Sea had originally planned to hold Easter Sunday mass in the Protestant First Church of Squantum with a married priest, Terry McDonough, officiating.

But Thursday night, three days before the mass, Glennon met with O'Malley, who agreed to supply a priest, the Rev. Michael Drea of St. Ann Parish, and allow a one-time mass in the Squantum School gym.

Deacon David Shoemacker of Sacred Heart Church and Seminarian Christopher Paladino were sent along to assist.

Father Drea pointed out after the mass that "the Archdiocese offered this (mass) for Easter Sunday only and that is what I have been told by Archbishop O'Malley's office."

As part of our agreement," said Glennon, "I get to meet with the Meade/ Eisner Committee."

The committee, headed by Peter Meade. executive vice president of Blue Cross/ Blue Shield, and Sister Janet Eisner, president of Emmanuel College, is looking into possible changes in the massive church closing program.

"That spoke volumes to me," said Glennon. "The Archbishop has a genuine concern for our case. Perhaps he will listen to our proposal to become a mission.'

The Friends have proposed that the former Star of the Sea Parish become a mission without a pastor and Sunday masses and other rites conducted by a visiting priest from one of the other parishes in Quincy.

No date has been set for the meeting with the Meade/ Eisner Committee, said Glennon, "but I hope to hear from them by the end of the week. I hope to meet with them in mid-April."

It was the first time that former parishioners had been together as a group since the last mass Oct. 24 at the church. Worshippers were scattered all over at Christmas, said Mazrimas.

"That was the impetus for the Easter mass," she said. "We met some weeks ago and found that about 28 per cent hadn't been to church since October and only 58 per cent went to church in a regular basis.

"To us, that was a huge figure. I think the Archbishop felt the need to do something. He saw that we were determined to have a mass on Easter Sunday. He saw we had a need to get together, that we needed a pastoral presence.

"We don't expect to have it again."

Mazrimas issued a long list of Squantum residents who helped to create the opportunity to hold the mass in their home territory and who prepared the school gym for service as a church.

There was a special thanks for the Rev. David Wood and the congregation of the First Church of Squantum, where the Friends have been holding their planning sessions since last fall.

"Without their help and support, we would not have had a place to meet over the last five months nor would we have had a venue to even contemplate a mass in the first place," she said.

"(They) exemplify the phrase, 'You will know they are Christians by their love.'"

The first mass in five months in Squantum was a joyous occasion with much hugging and flowing tears and youngsters chasing Easter eggs around the lawn after the mass like it used to be.

Sen. Michael Morrissey delivered a great furry white Easter bunny to the door. Sacred Heart, the welcoiming parish for displaced Star of the Sea parishioners, donated flowers. St. Mary's of East Boston loaned sacred vessels.

"There was great warmth," said Mazrimas. "It was absolutely incredible to watch all the people streaming down Huckins Avenue.

"In the space of an hour or an hour and a half, we turned the gym into a place of worship with all the trappings of a church, except for the statues and the stained glass windows."

Glennon said the mass lasted about an hour and a half.

"But no one noticed the time, it went so quickly," he said.

"Now, we are resting. We've had our spiritual high. We'll start up again tomorrow."

Sixth Annual Steven Barrett Memorial Blood Drive April 9

The sixth annual Steven Barrett Memorial Blood Drive will be held Saturday, April 9 from 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at St. Joseph's School Hall, 22 Pray St., Quincy.

Appointments can be made by calling 1-800-GIVE LIFE (448-3543) or visiting www.givelife.org.

Food is donated by local caterer Frank Brillo and souvenir T-shirts are given to all participants.

Steven Barrett was born and raised in Quincy, where he attended Quincy High School and graduated in 1995. He attended Westfield State College where he received a degree in criminal justice.

Barrett was about to become a full-time police officer after spending several summers working as an officer on Nantucket Island when he died in a car accident on Sept. 30, 1999 on the island.

He was 22 years old.

STEVEN BARRETT

"I used to call him 'The Mayor,' says his father, Chris Barrett. "In the passing of Steven, I found out about so many ways he would try to help people - so many things I was unaware of. He was the type of person that would do anything for anyone."

The tragedy happened just one day before he was scheduled to return home to walk with his family in a breast cancer awareness event in memory of his mother, who had passed away six years earlier after battling the disease.

Chris Barrett said he received letters from people he didn't even know after the accident, letters describing what a wonderful person his son was.

"Steven was a saint. He was just such a wonderful, loving boy. I can't say enough about him. And it's all the truth. He always showed what kind of a wonderful person he was in life, and everyone who knew him says the same thing.

"He had so much to give. He used to give blood and then tell me he felt really good after donating because it made him feel like he'd truly done something to help someone else."

The blood drive is held to keep Steven's memory alive.

"This blood drive means a great deal to our family," Chris says. "I've donated blood for many, many years and Steven used to donate blood as well. This drive is perfect for Steven's memory, because helping people is what Steven was all about."

Writing Workshops For Seniors Start April 13

Senior citizens, known to some as "the greatest generation," can learn to write their memoirs for their descendants in a series of five Wednesday workshops starting April 13 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St.

The series, called "Between the Lines: Capturing the Experiences of Life," is sponsored by the Quincy Department of Elder Services and the River Bay Club. Advanced registration and a $55 fee for the five sessions are required.

For more information, call the Department of Elder Services at 617-376-1506.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Occupancy And Exits At Nightclubs, Bars, Restaurants

I frequently consider assembly occupancies while I attempt to glean the intent of fire code and pass along what is expected of owners and managers who operate them.

Here I'm specifically speaking about nightclubs, bars, restaurants and alike. I feel the continuous need to educate owners as to the specifics of code and law as it applies to their unique premise. I'd like to take this opportunity to do so here as well.

Considering the tragedy that occurred in the Rhode Island nightclub a couple of years ago, it's a race to impress upon owners what the Mass. Comprehensive Fire Safety Code expects of them concerning life safety. In general, so much of code focuses on preparation in the event a fire occurs. It's not enough to encourage and maintain safe storage practices or to isolate potential ignition sources from combustibles.

Those in the know realize that all the inspections and all the applied preventive measures can't totally eliminate the odds of an accidental fire. Therefore, much of the emphasis in these occupancies is placed upon maintaining other safe practices to prepare to deal with a fire in the unlikely event one occurs. Here are some of those considerations that we ask owners to pay particular attention to:

Occupant load: The number of occupants that are allowed in an assembly occupancy is determined by many factors while one important consideration is the ability of a designated number of people to quickly vacate a building in an emergency. The number of exits, size of exits and their locations help determine how many people can occupy a room. That is why the building department and fire service place so much emphasis on owners and managers to comply with the designated occupant load of nightclubs. We expect them to act responsibly and honor the designated occupant load so that in the unlikely event of an emergency, a room can be vacated as quickly as it has been designed to do.

Exits: Exits as we consider them are comprised of three aspects. First is access. We attempt to educate managers to make certain there are no tables or storage blocking an exit door so that the access remains unobstructed. Secondly there is the exit itself, a door for instance. We look for it to operate freely, that it has the appropriate hardware, possibly panic hardware, and that it is not inappropriately locked or chained. The third aspect is the exit discharge, that portion past the exit leading to free access outside. Our emphasis on snow removal this winter, for example, expresses our concern for keeping that portion of an exit unobstructed.

Announcements: Typically, people are familiar with the way they enter a building with little thought to alternate means of exiting. That is why in an occupancy with entertainment, we remind management to make periodic announcements to patrons informing them of the whereabouts of all the exits.

Evacuation: We remind owners to instruct their help concerning their procedure to evacuate a building in the event of an emergency. I typically ask for a narrative confirming their policy that at the hint of fire or smoke, a building will be evacuated without hesitation or delay. I'm still concerned that an employee will discover a fire and then look for the manager. I've seen that written in a procedure. It's exactly what we want to avoid. Discovering a fire within a structure is an unusual event for an individual and many would look for a superior as they question their own judgment. We say, "You can't go wrong instructing people to immediate safety!"

Our Department has a great deal of admiration for owners who have expended the effort, time and money to offer patrons a safe premise for their entertainment. This article is written to remind them of the importance of continuing to do so while maintaining life safety considerations for those patrons.

We in fire prevention are here to answer any questions owners may have pertaining to code. Meanwhile, I assure you that we are here to help you maintain a constant level of consciousness for patron safety as well.

Thank you for your commitment to life safety.

PRINCIPAL NG

Kevin Ng Principal For Day At Squantum School

The next-to-last Friday in March was a special day for Kevin W. Ng.

On a normal Friday, he is a student in the fourth grade at the Squantum Elementary School.

On this day, he was the principal.

Kevin won a raffle for the title of Principal for a Day and the task of assisting Principal Donald Houghton in his duties, like delivering the morning notices and greeting the students over the intercom.

The PTO gave him a "goodie" bag filled with prizes while not forgetting his classmates and teachers who were presented with a special chocolate sundae treat.

A picture of Kevin at the principal's desk was framed and sent home with him at the end of the day and the two principals, Ng and Houghton, lunched together at Carmine's Cafe across the street.

All in all, it was a busy day for the young school chief.

"I had a lot of fun but I never knew how busy a principal's day can be," said Principal Ng.

Internet Classes For Beginners At Library

Two free Internet classes for beginners will be held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

"Introduction to the Internet", a hands-on class designed for people with basic computer and mouse skills, will be held Thursday, April 7, at 7 p.m.

"Beyond the Basics," which takes beginners to the next level, will be held Thursday, April 14, at 7 p.m.

Classes will be held in the library's Computer Lab. Space is limited. While not required, pre-registration will assure a spot.

For more information or to register for a class, call 617-376-1316, send an e-mail to quref@ocln.org, or stop by the reference desk on the second floor of the main library.

NQHS Senior Stay-Out Meeting Scheduled For April 5

A North Quincy High School Senior Stay-Out meeting will be held Tuesday, April 5, at 7 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Volunteers interested in helping with decorating can arrive as early as 5:30 p.m.

Parents of freshmen, sophomores and juniors are especially needed to volunteer to work the event, which takes place after the Senior Prom.

All NQHS senior students, whether they attend the prom or not, will be invited to the Senior Stay-Out 2005 — an all-night, substance-free party. The Stay-Out offers food, fun and a safe place to spend the night, all at no cost to the student.

For more information, call Jean Mackey at 617-479-9084 or e-mail Rngmstr25@aol.com.

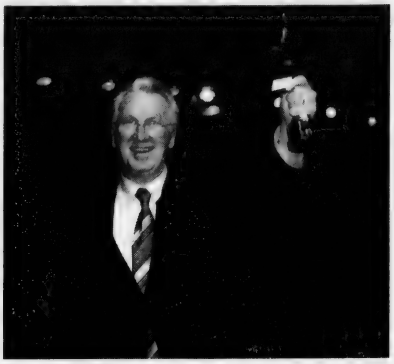
Century 21 Abigail Adams Takes Top Honors At Banquet

Century 21 Abigail Adams Agency Quincy office announces Sam Rounseville, Sandra Fennelly and Mary Driscoll were recently honored at the New England corporate awards banquet at the Boston Marriott Copley Place.

Rounseville and Fennelly are both long-time Quincy residents. Driscoll is a long-time resident of Marshfield.

Rounseville received the Century 21 Centurion Honor Society Member Award for sustaining high sales production over a five-year period. The award is considered a career achievement and represents one of Century 21's most elite awards nationwide.

Rounseville, known locally as Uncle Sam Rounseville for his volunteerism, will be formally inducted into the Society at the next Century 21 International Convention in Las Vegas. The award represents superior sales production for the 2004 calendar year.



Fennelly was honored with the Masters Diamond Award and Quality Service Award for her superior sales achievement last year.

"Not only is Sandra a gifted broker, she is a brilliant sales manager as well. We are truly grateful to have Sandra leading our sales team," said owner broker Jayne Magown.

"The Diamond Award together with the Quality Service Award represents top sales production and commitment to excellence. She is commended for continued dedication and professionalism in an ever changing industry," Magown said.

JAYNE MAGOWN (left) and Sandra Fennelly accept Century 21 Abigail Adams office President's Award and Centurian Award. Fennelly is sales manager in the Quincy office.

SAM ROUNSEVILLE receives the Century 21 Centurion Honor Society Member Award for sustaining high sales production over a five-year period.

Fennelly has been invited to the System's Top Agent Symposium 2005.

Located in the Marshfield office, Driscoll was awarded the Masters Ruby Award representing high sales achievement.

The Century 21 Abigail Adams team also took home the Quality Service Pinnacle and Centurion Awards. The two separate awards represent an elite level of service commendation and superior sales production. For this level of distinction, the company received the 2004 President's Award.

"Tonight was a night of momentous achievement," said Magown. "Each agent contributing to this company's success is deeply appreciated and thanked for all it takes to bring home these awards. I am honored to work amongst the best."

Established in 1979, Century 21 Abigail Adams has offices in Norwell, Marshfield and Duxbury.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Spring Into Fitness!

By Andrea Wyatt, M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

As we transition from sweaters to short-sleeve shirts, the warmer weather and longer days of spring provide a great opportunity to spring into great shape. If your New Year's resolutions to exercise and eat a balanced diet have faded, here's how to get back on track.

Developing a healthy plan for spring should begin with setting realistic goals. Evaluate your current lifestyle and identify where you can make modifications. Exercise, nutrition, stress and sleeping habits are areas that affect having a healthy lifestyle. Begin by setting realistic short-term and long-term goals within one or more of those areas. Short-term goals will allow you to see successes throughout your journey to reaching your ultimate long-term goal.

Once your goals have been established, it's time for an integrated approach to designing a fitness program. A well-organized program should include cardiovascular exercises, a strength-training program, flexibility and stabilization program, proper nutrition, adequate sleep and stress reduction. All of these aspects of fitness are equally important.

Toning your arms may be a desired focus, but strength training is only part of making that a reality. Strength training can help develop lean muscle, cardiovascular exercise and proper nutrition can help lower body fat, and a flexibility and stabilization program can help decrease injuries and increase the overall function of your arms. If one part of the puzzle is missing, it can keep you from seeing the results you desire.

Now that you've set your goals and developed a plan of action, it's time to surround yourself with ways to stay motivated and committed to your lifestyle modifications. The people, books, videos, foods and total environment around you should support and encourage your desire to reach your fitness goals. Accountability partners, exercise buddies and positive reading materials can help.

Make this a labor of fun by finding activities you enjoy and know you can continue long term. With warmer weather, take your workouts outside. Train to run a 5K race, or try something challenging and new.

Make this spring the beginning of a healthy lifestyle that can continue throughout the seasons.

Holistic Health Care Providers

By Dr. CHRISTINE HUBER

Americans who are increasingly disenchanted with managed care are turning in record numbers today toward holistic health care providers to stay well and also when they become ill.

The most commonly used services are chiropractic and massage, which account for half of all holistic office visits according to a recent study conducted by Beth Israel Deaconness Medical Center in Boston.

Patients and their families are coming to me for guidance and health services for anything from keeping well to helping them manage symptoms related to migraines, high blood pressure, asthma, allergies, chronic pain and childhood developmental delays.

In fact in 1997, adults paid 629 million visits to holistic providers in comparison to only 386 million visits to their primary care physicians. All segments of society apparently use non-traditional therapies, but the baby boomers (ages 35-49), who are college educated and have incomes that exceed $50,000, are the most likely to seek out such care.

The most popular health services and providers included: chiropractic, massage, therapy, acupuncture, biofeedback, relaxation, homeopathy and herbalists. Patients are more educated today and tend not to be satisfied with just one answer or solution to a problem. Interestingly, of the people who chose these therapies, over half of them paid for the expenses out-of-pocket to the total of some $34 billion a year.

The dramatic change in health care spending and patterns is a clear indication that Americans prefer providers or services that will support their body's natural ability to heal itself over invasive procedures or dangerous medications. They are also realizing that stress is one of the major causes of contemporary illness. Nearly 90 percent of symptoms can usually be traced back to this origin.

The weeks preceding tax season can be particularly stressful. Both accounting professionals and regular citizens have usually spent hours sitting or hunched over filing cabinets and computer screens, repetitively typing and entering data or searching for documents that they can't find. Over the next few weeks, I will probably see more patients with complaints like: carpal tunnel syndrome, headaches, stomach and mouth ulcers, muscle tension, and neck and back pain.

For more information, call Community Chiropractic at 617-689-0440, visit its web site (www.drhuber.info), or e-mail Dr. Huber at drhuber@verizon.net.

Annual Boston Heart Party At Granite Medical April 9

The seventh annual Boston Heart Party will be held Saturday, April 9, from 9 a.m. to noon at Granite Medical Group, 500 Congress St., Quincy.

The event encourages women to educate themselves about cardiovascular disease (CVD) and to attend a free CVD risk factor screening.

Sponsored by Pfizer Inc. and greater Boston's leading health care institutions and employers, the Boston Heart Party hopes to motivate more women in Quincy to know their numbers for blood pressure, cholesterol and glucose.

The free CVD risk factor screenings are open to all women age 35 and over in local communities through Mother's Day, May 8.

CVD is the leading cause of death among American women and men and kills nearly 500,000 women each year.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

VISIT YOUR DENTIST BEFORE YOUR OBSTETRICIAN

The surging hormones of pregnancy can affect the health of a woman's mouth. Throughout a woman's reproductive life, fluctuating estrogen and progesterone levels can cause the gums to react differently to the bacteria in dental plaque. Some women notice this connection between hormones and potential gum problems during their menstrual cycles. For others, the realization comes early in pregnancy. Beginning in the second or third month, 50%-70% of expectant mothers experience swollen, red, tender, and bleeding gums, known as pregnancy gingivitis. While pregnancy does not cause this condition, it can aggravate pre-existing gum problems. To minimize the risk that pregnancy gingivitis may present to both mother and baby, mothers-to-be should enter their pregnancy with healthy gums.

Most dental treatment can be safely completed during pregnancy. Poor oral hygiene habits such as not brushing and flossing, on a daily basis, make it easier for gingivitis to develop. A family history of dental disease can also be a contributing factor for the development of gingivitis. We utilize all available resources and procedures to provide the dental health care our patients deserve and expect. When was the last time you had a comprehensive oral examination? We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're here to help. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The bacteria in tooth plaque send out toxins that can cross the placenta, where they can restrict fetal growth and lead to low birth weight.

4-Under 68 Is 8 Strokes Better Than His Age

A Round Of Golf To Remember For Paul Kelly

Paul C. Kelly of Quincy and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., turned in his best Tiger Woods performance on the golf course.

At 76 years old, Kelly recently shot a 4-under-par 68 at Jacaranda Golf Club, East Course, in Plantation, Fla.

That's eight strokes better than his age.

"In the golf world, it is considered an enormous accomplishment if someone 'shoots their age,'" said his son, Paul S. Kelly. "In my 30-plus years playing golf, I never heard of anyone shooting this many shots below their age."

Kelly shot a 35 on the front nine and 33 on the back nine. He tallied five birdies (second, fourth, 12th, 13th and 15th holes), 12 par and one bogey (first hole).

His playing partners were Billy Lambert, longtime friend and owner of Lambert Fruit Company; Frank McDermott, friend and fellow member of Wollaston Golf Club; and Ted Connelly, longtime friend and partner in the Fallon Cups and Norfolk CC Member Guest Tournaments for many years.

Kelly was the 1994 club champion at Wollaston Golf Club and former club champion at Newton Commonwealth Country Club and George Wright Golf Club. He was also a CYO champ in 1943 and 1944.

He has shot his age multiple times over the past few years in Florida, and the last time he shot in the 60s was more than 50 years ago.

Kelly was a member of the Quincy School Committee in the 1970s and ran for councillor at-large, losing to Arthur Tobin, John Quinn and Joe LaRaia.

He was a long-term partner and workers' compensation attorney at Parker, Coulter, Daley & White law firm in Boston for 50 years. He is married to Grace "Hurricane" Kelly.

Presidents Poised For Postseason Play

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School baseball team has unfinished business to take care of from a year ago.

The Presidents — hosting a game in the tournament for the first time in 10 years — stumbled in the opener with five defensive errors and six base running miscues resulting in a 7-2 loss to Taunton.

With five returning starters, Quincy is poised to make a run for the Atlantic Coast League title and play well into June.

"We would like to go further than the first round," said head coach Mike Draicchio, who is beginning his sixth season at the helm. "Last year, the worst game we played unfortunately came in the tournament. We made mistakes when we weren't making them all year. It happens. But we don't want that to happen. We want to be able to make it and proceed to the next round."

Quincy opens the season today (Thursday) against Brighton at 4 p.m. at Adams Field. Next week, it faces three strong non-league opponents when it heads to Randolph Tuesday and hosts Hingham Thursday at 4 p.m. and Braintree Saturday at 11 a.m.

"We play them within two days of each other," Draicchio said. "That's going to tell us where we're at if we get those games in. The schedule we have this year is a lot harder than in the past. Some teams don't want to play you again and there are some teams you have to play to get to the level we want to get to."

To get deep in the tournament, the Presidents will rely upon their talented pitching staff, anchored by the three-man starting rotation of senior quad-captains John Folino, John Santon and Steve Sullivan. Folino, an all-star last year, is the ace.

"We have the pitching staff back which I think is the most important part," Draicchio said. "Those three pitched the majority of the innings last year. That's our strength."

Quincy also has an abundance of other arms in the bullpen, including seniors Tim Randall and Zach Eaton, juniors Matt Giordani, Joe Griffin and John Pelletier, and sophomores Steve Connolly, Matt Boyle and John Alexander.

Offensively, the Presidents are stacked at the top of the order with four players who hit over .300 last year. The likely order is senior quad-captain Steve Priscella leading off, followed by senior Ray Marchand, Sullivan and Folino.

"It's impressive to watch a guy like Steve Priscella, who is totally in the best shape I've seen of a kid coming in here because he worked out all year," Draicchio said. "Physically conditioned he's in awesome shape. And in the cage he's pounding the ball."

Draicchio said Alexander could possibly bat fifth as the DH. "After that, it's whoever we get into those other positions," he said.

The defensive lineup is still working itself out. In the outfield, Priscella will patrol center field after an all-star campaign last year and Santon will man one of the corners.

The other spot could be Folino, who played there for the Morrisette American Legion team, seniors Joe Salvucci and Mike Kearney, junior Dan Scribi, Eaton, MacPherson, Griffin or Boyle.

Marchand, who played second base last year, will most likely see most of his time behind the plate. Alexander and Randall can also catch.

Around the infield, Sullivan will start at first base and will be backed up by Pelletier and senior Ed Laura. Connolly will take the field at shortstop with Folino also capable of fielding that position.

Senior Kevin Larkin, junior John Orlando, Marchand, Randall, Salvucci and Giordani are capable of playing second and third base.

"Ultimately, the goal is to get back into the tournament," Draicchio said. "That's what we want to do. I can't predict anything other than that's where we want to be at. It's going to come about on how we work on a daily basis. Do I see the hard work? Every single day."

FORMER RED SOX pitcher Jim Corsi (far left) and Wally the Green Monster join Pine Street Inn Executive Director Lyndia Downey and Ninety Nine Restaurant & Pub President John Grady to launch an in-store drawing to benefit the Pine Street Inn. Five lucky customers will see the World Champion Boston Red Sox play the Tampa Bay Devil Rays on "Ninety Nine Night" at Fenway Park Aug. 30. Ninety Nine Restaurants, including the North Quincy restaurant, are selling tickets through April 3. Winners will be announced the following week. All proceeds from ticket sales will benefit the Pine Street Inn. Prizes include five pairs of Monster Seats for the Aug. 30 game scheduled at 7:05 p.m.

Seniors Warming Up For Annual Olympic Games

Seniors throughout Quincy and the South Shore are preparing for the 23rd annual Quincy Senior Olympics to be held in May at Beechwood on the Bay.

"We're resuming our Wednesday strength training classes and beginning in April, dedicating Fridays to fitness activities," said Maryann Mahony, coordinator of the Senior Center.

Beginning tomorrow (Friday), each Friday morning volunteer senior coaches will be at Beechwood to introduce and coach interested seniors in Olympic activities: 3 mile walk, shot-put, javelin, horse shoes, pitching and hitting indoors, basketball, free throws and darts.

Co-ed volleyball is held on Wednesdays and Fridays. There is no cost for the Friday fitness activities. Olympic planners are hopeful the "drop in and try" invitation will appeal to many seniors ages 55 and over who have yet to get active with the Olympics.

Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals said planning for the Senior Olympics is well underway, with Recreation Director Barry Welch, Council on Aging Director Tom Clasby and Mahony.

The Senior Olympics season begins May 4 with traditional senior fitness programming presented by Dr. Wayne Westcott, well known for his work with adults ages 50 and over.

The Senior Olympics are held May 16-23 with an awards night celebration May 25.

Quincy Medical Center and recently Boston Medical Center have been primary benefactors of the Senior Olympics, assisting with the costs of the 11-day city-wide event. The hospitals' identifying logo is worn proudly on the Senior Olympians' shirts.

Quincy Rotary Club each year supports as a sponsor and its designation is on each competitor's ID number card.

For more information about the Friday fitness activities or the Senior Olympics, call 617-471-5712 or stop by Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

Scott Flaherty On Hamilton Baseball Team

Scott Flaherty of Quincy has been selected to play on the Hamilton College men's baseball team for the spring season.

Flaherty, a first-year student, is a graduate of Quincy High School. He is the son of Ruth and Brian Flaherty.

Chamber Of Commerce Hosting Golf Tournaments May 25, June 3

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Road, Quincy, will host two golf tournaments Wednesday, May 25, and Friday, June 3.

The May 25 event will be held at Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills, Quincy. Scramble format, the tourney will tee off with an 8 a.m. shotgun start. There will be raffles, a silent auction and prizes. Cost is $195 per golfer, which includes continental breakfast and lunch.

The June 3 event will be held at South Shore Country Club, Hingham. Scramble format, tee times are 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. There will be raffles, a silent auction and prizes. Cost is $105 per golfer, which includes lunch and cocktail reception.

Reservations are being accepted on a first-come, first-serve basis. Golfers may choose one tournament and be placed on a "Hold List" for a second course. On April 12, remaining tickets will be released to members on the hold list.

For more information or reservations, call 617-479-1111 or visit www.southshorechamber.org.

You Auto Know
by Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroarty
COME RAIN AND HIGH WATER

If your vehicle is confronted with high water due to flooding, heavy rains, or winter snow thaws, you should be concerned with more than simply getting your carpets wet. Speeding through high standing water may damage your engine and other internal components. This can be ascertained by pulling the engine oil and transmission fluid dipsticks, as well as the differential plug. If the flue appears milky, diluted, beige in color, or no longer its original color, it is likely that the pans contain water. If so, the vehicle should be towed to an auto technician for a full inspection. Otherwise, driving the vehicle with water damage may cause irreparable harm to the internal parts, requiring extensive overhaul and repairs.

Pay attention to your vehicle's fluids, especially after you've driven through high water. It can save you much money in repairs. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, for most all of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts, and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: If the air filter on your vehicle should become wet, it must be replaced and the engine oil must be changed.

A Job Well Done

By SGT. DAN MINTON

On Saturday, March 26, at approximately 6 p.m., Officer M.J. O'Brien was traveling northbound on Palmer Street when he received a "Lojack" hit on his cruiser monitor. "Lojack" is activated when the owner of a vehicle with Lojack reports their vehicle stolen.

SGT. DAN MINTON

Officer O'Brien tracked the signal and located the vehicle on Appleton Street. Officer Simmons and William O'Brien (no relation) arrived at the scene. As the officers were inspecting the vehicle, a male party approached them and asked if there was a problem with the car.

When advised that the car was reported stolen, the male said that he had a fight with his girlfriend and that he was a co-owner of the car. Since his name was not on the registration, the male suspect was searched and handcuffed. During the pat/frisk, a large sum of cash was found on the suspect.

While awaiting a tow, Officer M.J. O'Brien began the inventory search and found $4600 inside the vehicle along with 4 small glassine bags containing a variety of pills. Based on the officer's training and experience, Officer M.J. O'Brien determined that the pills were packaged for distribution.

The vehicle was towed to the Quincy Police Department, where Sgt. Burrell, State Trooper Fallon and his K-9 partner, Richter, assisted in the search. Marijuana was found in numerous parts of the passenger area of the vehicle. Inside a pocket of a jacket, 4 glassine bags with Marijuana were found. Richter made several hits in the console and driver seat area.

The drugs and money, a total of $7,425, were seized as evidence. The owner of the vehicle was notified and she was reunited with her car.

This is just another example of our officers out there day and night making the streets safe.

Good work!

Phelan said any changes to the existing financial plan could impact the 90 percent reimbursement rate for the high school.

"The necessity of another vote by the council could have an impact regarding our legal interpretation of whether or not the high school would be eligible for 90 percent," said Phelan. "We have to be careful what we do. Notwithstanding that, we certainly want the support of the city council and want them to play an active role in moving this project forward."

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said city and school officials should hold public hearings on the proposal. "If the design changes, neighborhood concerns change," he said.

Councillors also expressed concern with a recent ruling by the School Building Authority (SBA), which decided that the new proposal would not be eligible for 90 percent reimbursement because it represents a dramatic change in scope compared to a previous plan that was approved by the school committee and city council.

SBA, which is overseen by State Treasurer Timothy Cahill, disperses hundreds of millions of dollars in state funding for school projects throughout Massachusetts.

To date, Cahill and SBA Executive Director Katherine Craven have stood by their ruling, but city officials vowed to press their case to the state.

Conyngham said she disagreed with SBA's asssessment that the project represents a dramatic change in scope.

"In my view, what we are doing is reconfiguring the buildings on a site," she said. "We are still at Faxon Field, we are still building a high school and we are building a middle school for the same number of students. In my view, this is not a major change."

When asked whether the city would sue SBA over the 90 percent reimbursement, Conyngham said it is "not my intent to pursue that as an option."

Conyngham said language in the new SBA legislation protects both projects for the 90 percent reimbursement, but acknowledged that SBA's ruling presents a roadblock. SBA has already decided that the Central portion of the project has permanently lost the 90 percent reimbursement rate.

Plans for a new Quincy High School have been in the planning stages since 1997. But several siting and environmental issues have prevented the city from moving ahead.

Conyngham provided councillors with a detailed presentation on two projects being considered by school officials, including "Option Two," which has received the most attention.

Option Two calls for the construction of a new high school at the site of the existing high school coupled with a brand new building at the location of the current Center for Technical Education on Faxon Field. A new Central Middle School would be built on Faxon Field near Southern Artery and Russell Park.

Option One, the other plan, calls for the construction of large high school building on Faxon Field along with a renovated existing high school to become a new Central. But the plan faces many more environmental hurdles and would impact the surrounding neighborhood to a greater degree, she said.

A large building poses security issues as well, she said.

Conyngham said another drawback to Option One involves situating middle school students between Quincy College students and high school students. Option Two separates the middle school students from others and gives them their own space, said Conyngham.

But Conyngham did say Option One remains on the table because, "I can envision getting this permitted."

Conyngham said if the city receives SBA approval on Option Two, some renovation and work can begin this summer on the existing high school. The project could move much more quickly under this scenario, she said.

Under Option One, the city cannot move forward until it secures the necessary environmental permits to build on the Faxon Field site. That process could be long and protracted, she said.

Conyngham said architects drafted several conceptual designs over the course of the past few months, but only two proposals emerged as viable options given the environmental hurdles at the site.

Monday night's meeting was attended by several local elected officials, including Quincy's state legislative delegation and the school committee.

Sen. Michael Morrissey said legislators worked hard to preserve both projects on the reimbursement list, but the SBA legislation appears to be subject to interpretation.

"I think both projects should be eligible for 90 percent," said Morrissey. "It's clear to me that the only alternative you have in front of you is to move ahead on the new high school at the Faxon Field site for 90 percent."

Rep. Ron Mariano, also a school committee member, said he raised questions about Option Two because of the obvious differences with earlier proposals.

"Of the two options it is preferable," said Mariano, "but it is not preferable if we don't get 90 percent."

And he lamented the lack of progress on the construction of a new high school. "It is my feeling that the educational needs of these kids are served by building a new high school," he said.

"We charge the treasurer with the decision making capability - it will be his decision," said Mariano. "He (Cahill) is the Treasurer of the Commonwealth - we would like him to be the treasurer of Quincy but it doesn't work that way."

Mariano said the state Department of Environmental Protection's recent ruling allowing the use of one additional acre of wetlands on Faxon Field would give the city more options for a high school project.

Rep. Stephen Tobin said he was "shocked" to learn of SBA's ruling on the school project and vowed to work with city officials going forward.

"I don't believe anything but Option Two ought to be considered satisfactory" for Quincy's taxpayers, said Tobin. "That's the project I'm going to fight for."

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi questioned whether the city was paying architects to draft plans that appear to contradict the city's 2003 bond proposal.

The city's architect has billed Quincy approximately $200,000 for work done thus far, including drafting architectural designs for Option Two. Those bills have not been paid, according to Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick.

The city has also signed a $2 million contract with Tishman Construction, the project manager for the high school project.

The city has also spent more than $2 million on previous architects for prior proposals.

At Faxon Field

DEP Gives City Additional Acre Of Land For HS Project

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city will have a bit more land to work with as it formulates a final plan for a Quincy High School/Central Middle School project on Faxon Field.

Last week, the state Department of Environmental Protection upheld a ruling by the Quincy Conservation Commission to lower the protection level of wetlands at the Faxon Field site planned for a new Quincy High. Lowering the standard allows the city to fill in approximately one acre of the wetlands for the school project, city and school officials contend.

But how the ruling fits into Quincy's plan to build a high school is still a mystery.

As was first reported in The Sun, the city's architects unveiled two possible options for the construction of a high school and middle school.

"Option One" would renovate the existing Quincy High School to become Central Middle School. The Center for Technical Education would be razed to make way for the construction of a large building along Coddington St., Woodward Ave. and Russell Park. The structure virtually wraps around the wetlands.

But Phelan and City Solicitor Monica Conyngham contend the plan is so intrusive on the neighborhoods and wetlands that it would create more environmental hurdles, thus delaying construction by months or even years.

If the city wants to destroy more than one acre of wetlands it would trigger a lengthy review by the Army Corps of Engineers. A review by that agency could take 24 to 30 months, according to city officials.

Instead, Phelan, Conyngham and Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro favor "Option Two," which calls for the construction of a new Central Middle School on Faxon Field near Southern Artery. The existing Quincy High School would be partially renovated, and another building would be constructed at the site of the Center for Tech Ed, to become the new Quincy High School.

It appears that the DEP ruling would have less of an impact on the "Option Two" proposal because the project calls for the construction of a less instrusive building near the wetlands and neighborhoods. It is less likely that the city would need more than the one acre of wetlands to build Option Two, according to the city. As a result, there would be no need to trigger a lengthy study by the Army Corps of Engineers, although the city still would need federal approval by the Army Corps.

At last week's meeting of the school committee's Building Needs subcommittee, members voted 6-1 in favor of Option Two, provided it receives 90 percent reimbursement from the state School Building Authority (SBA).

In recent weeks, SBA and State Treasurer Timothy Cahill, whose office oversees SBA, have indicated that Option Two represents a substantial change in scope from the city's original high school project, which was approved by the school committee and city council in 2003.

The school committee has given Phelan and Conyngham a few weeks to once again plead their case to the agency.

Cahill said the DEP ruling gives the city more incentive to pursue its original proposal because it would allow Quincy to utilize up to one acre of the wetlands.

"This is the last step toward moving ahead with the project that is eligible for 90 percent reimbursement, which is building a new high school on Faxon Field," according to Eileen O'Connor, spokesperson in Cahill's office. "All other projects have not been approved for the 90 percent."

But Phelan vowed to continue to pursue the 90 percent funding reimbursement for Option Two.

"Working together, I'm confident that we will find a solution that will result in the best plan for the neighbors, the students and the the city," he said.

Regardless of the final plan, the DEP ruling represents an overall positive development for the construction of a new Quincy High School, according to school committee members.

"I would characterize this ruling as a good thing because it gives us a little more space to work with," said School Committee Vice Chairman Mike McFarland. "I look forward to working with the architects on the best possible plan for a new Quincy High School."

Some committee members say they want the city's architect to draft new architectural designs reflecting use of an additional acre of wetlands.

"The DEP ruling is virtually irrelevant to what the mayor wants to do on Option Two," said School Committee member Ron Mariano. "We can rethink what Option One looks like with an additional acre of land. There has been no attempt to reconfigure the new high school with the extra acre of wetlands."

Mariano said Option One stands a better chance of receiving 90 percent reimbursement from SBA than Option Two.

The city applied to lower the protection level of the wetlands last year, arguing that the site held very little environmental value. The conservation commission agreed, but the decision was appealed to the DEP.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Stubborn as a mule." No one seems to know how or when the saying started. The Bible says something about it. In Psalm 32 we read, "Be not as the horse or as the mule which have no understanding." Maybe the saying comes from there. Some people are more stubborn than others. Stubbornness can be described as hard-headedness, hard to get along with, set in one's ways and so on. When one is in such a mood or has that attitude, it is often impossible to reason with that person. At such times 'they have no understanding' has special meaning. It takes patience to try to reach an understanding. When understanding is reached, stubbornness vanishes like a smoke ring. . . When two people hold opposing views, it is impossible to reach an understanding because neither one strives with understanding for an understanding. When an issue is big enough, it is important for at least one of the two 'stubbornheads' to have an understanding of the other person's lack of understanding. . .

Richard H. Murphy, 69

Navy Veteran

RICHARD H. MURPHY

Private funeral services for Richard H. Murphy, 69, of Quincy, a Navy veteran, were held recently.

He died March 20 at home after a long illness.

Mr. Murphy worked in the meat provision industry for many years, as a federal inspector for five years and as a supervisor for Colonial Meat Provisions in Boston for many years. He retired several years ago.

He was a veteran of the Korean War having served with the United States Navy. He served aboard the destroyer, USS Lowry.

In 1952, during maneuvers one night, Murphy was knocked overboard by a large wave and was alone in the water 500 miles off the coast of New Jersey. The wave came upon the ship so suddenly that crew members were not aware Murphy was missing.

Mr. Murphy spent more than 20 minutes in the rough 20-foot surf without a life jacket and suffering from a large wound to his head he received from the accident.

Luckily, Murphy spotted a passing vessel, the battleship USS Iowa. Crew members of the battleship heard Murphy's cries for help and spotted the young seaman. He was rescued by the Navy and required 24 stitches to the gash on his head.

Mr. Murphy credits the "Luck of the Irish" for his survival, and served his full four-year enlistment. He was honorably discharged in May of 1956.

He was a member of the Bay State Skating Club and received many awards for speed skating.

Born and raised in Boston, Mr. Murphy attended St. Augustine's Elementary School in South Boston, Boston English High School and Essex County Agricultural School in Danvers.

He lived in Braintree for many years before moving to Quincy 36 years ago.

Mr. Murphy is survived by his wife, Jane E. (Hudson) Murphy; a daughter, Robin L. Murphy-Brunick of South Boston; his father and stepmother, John H. Murphy and Alice Murphy of Braintree; a brother, Robert H. Murphy of Braintree; a granddaughter; and two great-grandchildren.

He was the son of the late Estelle (Prondak) Murphy and the grandfather of the late Jamie Brunick.

Arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Quincy.

Robert Dexter, 83

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An unexpected problem should be handled as quickly as possible so that it doesn't cause too much of a delay. Someone who knows what you're facing could provide needed advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unsettling situation seems to be taking forever to be resolved. Fortunately, your Bovine aptitude for patience is strong this week, so you'll be more than able to wait it out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Taking a stand against an uncalled-for situation involving a friend or co-worker isn't easy, but somehow you'll rise to the challenge and do it. Rely on advice from someone you trust.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There are still some questions on all sides that need to be dealt with in order to allow hurt feelings to heal. Get your workplace tasks done early so that you can devote more time to loved ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Consider a new spring makeover that will show all you Leos and Leonas in your best light. A new hairdo and some fashionable new clothes can help put a fresh glow on your image.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some stormy, emotional weather can blow up in the workplace when an irate co-worker has strong words for you. But if you believe right is on your side, you'll be able to ride it out.

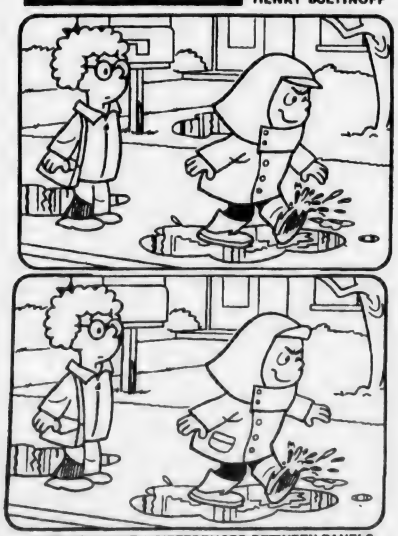
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Creating more balance in your life is especially important now so that you're not distracted when you get into projects that will make demands on both your physical and mental energies.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) As much as you enjoy being right when others are not, show your generous side by offering to use what you know to everyone's benefit. This way, you gain admirers and avoid resentment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good week for the Archer to aim at healing relationships. Whether it's at home, at work or among your friends, get everyone to set things straight and make a fresh start.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although you like things done your way, this is a good time to listen to ideas from others. You might even find yourself agreeing with one or more of their suggestions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor positive action to reclaim your ideas from someone who might want the glory without doing any of the work. Expect to find many people rallying to support you.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might feel uneasy about taking that step forward at work or in your private life. But who knows better than you that while treading water keeps you afloat, it doesn't get you anywhere.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of creating positive attitudes and making people feel good about themselves.

INVITATION TO BID INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS PURCHASING DEPARTMENT
1305 HANCOCK STREET
QUINCY, MA 02169

The City of Quincy invites sealed bids/proposals for furnishing and delivering to the City of Quincy:

PARK DEPARTMENT BEACH SAND CLEANER APRIL 12, 2005 @ 10:30 A.M.

Detailed specifications are on file at the office of the Purchasing Agent, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, between the hours of 8:30am and 4:30pm.

Bids must state exceptions, if any, the delivery date and any allowable discounts. Bids/Proposals must be in a sealed envelope (which is supplied). The outside of the sealed envelope is to be clearly marked "BID ENCLOSED" with time/date of bid call.

Firm bid prices will be given first consideration. Bids/Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until the time and date stated above, at which time and date they will be publicly opened and read. Late Bids/Proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

If applicable, bids shall be in accordance with M.G.L. Chapter 30B, Chapter 149 as amended, and Chapter 30, Sections 39A, 39B and 39F-R.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to accept any part of a bid or the one deemed best for the City and waive any informalities in the bidding if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)
"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. (Make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Thank you for all you mercy to me and mine Amen. Say this prayer 3 consecutive days and after that the request will be granted. the prayer must be published.

YMCA Learning Center Accredited By NAEYC

The South Shore YMCA Learning Center of Quincy has earned accreditation from the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC) — the nation's leading organization of early childhood professionals.

"We're proud to be accredited by NAEYC, and recognized for our commitment to reaching the highest professional standards," said Laureen Browning, YMCA Learning Center director.

"NAEYC Accreditation lets families in the greater Quincy community know that the YMCA Learning Center's teaching staff are committed to quality, early childhood programming to ensure a solid foundation for learning and school success.

"The YMCA core values of caring, honesty, respect and responsibility are incorporated into the curriculum to enhance character development for our young children."

More than 8,000 early childhood programs are currently accredited by NAEYC.

"In recent years, we've seen a growing number of child care and pre-school programs earning accreditation," said Mark Ginsburg, Ph.D., executive director of NAEYC. "By earning accreditation, the YMCA Learning Center has become a leader in national effort to raise the quality of early childhood education, and to help give all children a better start."

Paul Piccuito Completes Basic Training

Marine Corps Reserve Pfc. Paul M. Piccuito, son of Barbara Piccuito of Quincy and Michael Piccuito of Weymouth, recently completed 12 weeks of basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

Training is designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Piccuito and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a. m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics.

In addition to the physical conditioning program, Piccuito spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Piccuito and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values—honor, courage and commitment, and what the core values mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Piccuito and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour, team evolution culminating in an emotional ceremony in which recruits are presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and addressed as "Marines" for the first time in their careers.

Piccuito is a 2002 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Mayor Balks At Council's Amendments

Tax Cut Plan Hits Bumpy Road

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

A tax cut program for longtime homeowners has been temporarily derailed due to a clash between Mayor William Phelan and the city council.

At Monday night's city council meeting, councillors signed off on Phelan's "Neighborhood Stabilization Fund," which would give checks of about $400 to Quincy homeowners 62 or older and who have owned a home in the city for more than 20 years.

But the council placed its own stamp on the provision, adding several amendments to the measure. On a 7-2 vote, the council approved provisions that place income limits on the program and allow younger disabled homeowners to qualify for the tax cut.

But the council also tied the tax cut to last year's land deal between the city and Quincy College.

Despite the council's vote of approval, Phelan indicated on Tuesday that he would not sign the legislation. The college's land agreement with the city should remain separate from the tax cut proposal, said Phelan.

Instead, the mayor said he would submit another home rule petition incorporating most of the council's changes.

"We will take a look at the council's amendments and resubmit the legislation," said Phelan. "I don't want to diminish our chances of getting it passed at the state level.

"I believe there is a sincere wish on the part of the council to work with us as we grant tax relief that seniors deserve," he said.

If approved, the measure still needs the approval of the state Legislature and Gov.

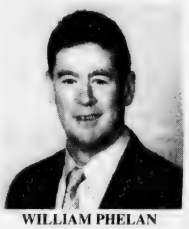
Phelan: 'This Couldn't Come At A More Opportune Time'

City Gets $2M To Extend QC Concourse



The City of Quincy has been awarded a $2 million state grant to assist with the design and construction of the Quincy Center Concourse, Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday.

The funds, administered as a Public Works and Economic Development (PWED) grant, will be used primarily for Phase Three of the concourse project, which will include the design and construction of a roadway from Hancock St. to Route 3A on Southern Artery, according to Phelan.

The grant puts Phase Three on the fast track, and construction is expected to be completed by the end of 2006, said Phelan.

Quincy is one of only four communities to receive such a grant over the past two years, he said.

"The fact that the state has issued four such grants in the past two years is an indication that our efforts to redevelop the downtown are consistent with the Smart Growth initiatives of the Commonwealth," said Phelan.

WILLIAM PHELAN

Phelan said the funds will go toward the design and construction of a "boulevard" roadway running from Hancock St. to Southern Artery.

Funds will go toward landscaping improvements, traffic signals, improved pedestrian crossings, new lighting and traffic configurations along the new boulevard roadway.

The new roadway will not resemble Burgin Parkway, but will more likely resemble a boulevard replete with trees, landscaped median strips and more pedestrian-friendly walkways, he said.

"This couldn't come at a more opportune time," Phelan said of the grant. "This works well with the new downtown rezoning initiative we have proposed. We have a lot to look forward to."

Approximately $700,000 of the funds will go toward Phase Two of the project, which will include several land takings and other design work linking Phase One of the project, the Paul Harold Bridge, with the Phase Three boulevard, the mayor said.

Phelan thanked Gov. Mitt Romney's administration, Quincy's state legislative delegation and, in particular, outgoing Transportation Secretary Dan Grabauskas, for their assistance in securing the grant.

Phelan said the city is contracting with Rizzo Associates for design work on Phase Two. A preliminary report should be forthcoming in a few weeks, he said.

Public hearings will be conducted based on the results of the design proposals.

It All Started Here

"Kilroy was here!"

Sixty years ago, the phrase was familiar around the world, wherever American soldiers, sailors and Marines gathered, from ships and battlefields to the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

And it all started right here in Quincy, at the Fore River Shipyard.

Now Discover Quincy, the USS Salem and The Quincy Sun are seeking to reprise the 'round the world travels of "Kilroy was here!" with pictures to prove that the old World War II words still live.

Next week's issue of The Sun will include a special flyer featuring the phrase and a cartoon. The flyer will also be available online at www.whereiskilroy.com.

"We hope people will take this flyer with them when they travel and take a photo of Kilroy in fun and famous locations," said Jennifer Logue, executive director of Discover Quincy.

"From Fenway Park to Paris, France; Tinseltown to Timbuktu, we hope to receive photographs showing 'Kilroy was here' in recognizable locations around the globe."

Photos submitted will be displayed online at www.whereiskilroy.com with prizes awarded for the Most Original, Most Exotic Locale and other categories.

The prize-winning photos will become part of a permanent "Kilroy" exhibition aboard the USS Salem.

The Kilroy photo contest is scheduled to run throughout the spring and summer months as the latest in a series of events designed to call attention to Quincy's connection with the phrase.

For more information on the photo contest and other events, call Jennifer Logue at 617-657-0527 or Michael Condon at the USS Salem at 617-479-7900.

At Former Pier I Imports

First Asian Food Court To Open In Fall

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Come this fall, you will be able to dine in the city's first Asian food court—the Pacific Food Court, 1585 Hancoci St, at the former Pier I Imports.

With a 5-0 vote on Tuesday after much discussion, the License Board granted Wendy Lau, doing business as Jade House Dim Sum Restaurant a common victualer license.

But when it came time to vote for a beer and wine license the board was divided with a 3-2 vote in favor of the license.

Voting against the issuing of the beer and wine license was Chairman Joseph Shea and Health Commissioner Drew Scheele. Voting in favor was Police Chief Robert Crowley, Jay Duca, director of inspectional services and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell.

Scheele said he thought the request for a common victualer license should come first, and then later they should request a beer and wine license.

Shea said Lau was reversing the request by asking for both at the same time.

Harrington said the only way the concept would work was with a beer and wine license.

Kai Lau, Wendy's husband who will manage the food court presented his concept and plans of the food court which will include the Dim Sum Restaurant and seat 182 patrons. While in the center there will be seating for 100 patrons. There will be five other vendors which will include different kinds of Asian food whether they be Japanese or Vietnamese or others of the same nature according to Lau.

Lau said he was one of the planners of the Kam Man Market at the old Bradlee's building which has been deemed a success. He said when Dan Raymondi was president of the City Council, Lau was given an award for his services regarding Kam Man.

In promoting his concept. Lau asked the board to give him a "chance to develop this empty space and unique concept into a lively family eating place."

Board members questioned whether they could buy a drink while waiting for take out orders or if they were going to the cinema and had time to spare.

Lau, and Christopher Harrington, counsel for Lau, both said no one could get a drink unless they were eating food at the restaurant.

Lau said he plans to control the consumption of alcohol by a computerized system which will tell how many drinks a patron is having, and who served them.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro wrote a letter to Shea saying that he sent out mail to many neighbors regarding the food court and no one attended. He said he was in favor of the concept.

Also in favor were Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly and Dean Rizzo,. director of Quincy, 2000.

Ronald Cibotti, director of leasing of the F.X. Messina Enterprises, owner of the building said he studied Lau's proposal and visited other places with the same concept and asked the board to vote favorably.

The hours will be from 11 a.m. to 10 or 10_30 p.m. weekdays and from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. weekends.

7 P.M. In Council Chambers

Public Hearing Monday On Downtown Rezoning

A public hearing regarding Mayor William Phelan's downtown rezoning plan will be held Monday, April 11 at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers.

The public is invited to give input on the plan, which requires the approval of the city council. The proposal was introduced to the council in February and is currently being reviewed for consideration.

The planning board recently signed off on Phelan's proposal, which includes a measure that increases the maximum building height in specific areas to 15 stories.

Also part of the package is a proposal for the implementation of a District Improvement Financing designation for the downtown, a new concept approved by the state to encourage "SmartGrowth" initiatives.

Curbside Yardwaste Weekly Collection Resumes April 25

The Quincy Department of Public Works announces curbside yardwaste collection will resume the week of April 25 and run every week during the months of April, May and June.

Holiday weeks are on a one-day delay schedule.

All yardwaste will be collected by BFI.

Quincy residents should place their yardwaste curbside by 6:30 a.m. on their regularly scheduled trash collection day. They should place their leaves, grass clippings, and small twigs in brown paper yardwaste bags (no plastic), open boxes or open barrels.

Any yardwaste placed in plastic bags or covered barrels will not be collected.,

Yardwaste should be set apart from regular trash. Tree branches should be cut into 3-foot lengths and tied with string/rope.

Larger brush and tree limbs can be dropped off at the city's Department of Public Works Recycling Center, 55 Sea St., Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Saturday between 9 a.m. and noon.

For missed pickup and to have an appliance picked up, call BFI at (617) 471-7900.

For service problems call the DPW at (617) 376-1953.

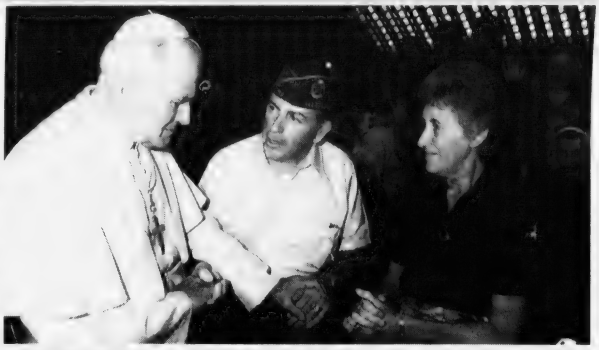
Part Of City's Pavement Management Plan

Street Paving Underway This Week

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday that the second phase of the city's pavement management plan will begin this week with road work on Adams St.

"We will continue our efforts to improve the overall quality of our city streets systematically in an effort to stretch our limited available paving dollars," said Phelan. "We will pick up where we left off in the fall and address many of the city's main thoroughfares and most traveled roads."

Crews are set to begin paving Adams St. from Burgin Parkway to Alrick Rd. in West Quincy. The work will begin at the intersection of Burgin Parkway to avoid any disruption to the tourism season at Adams National Park. Work was originally delayed until repairs could be made to the water mains in the Hospital Hill neighborhood.



West Squantum St. and a portion of Harvard St. will be repaved this Spring, said Phelan.

Also targeted for repaving in 2005 are: Burgin Parkway, Common St., Copeland St., Des Moines Rd., East Squantum St., Fenno St., Granite St., Hancock St., Lebanon St., Maple St., Newport Ave., Newbury Ave., Nightengale Ave., Quarry St., Stafford St., School St., Washington St., West Howard St., Whitwell St. and Belmont St.

Paving work will also continue in those neighborhoods affected by water main replacement projects.

Memorial Mass For Pope Today At Sacred Heart

Sacred Heart Parish will celebrate a Memorial Mass for the late Pope John Paul II today (Thursday) at 8:30 p.m. in Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

POPE JOHN PAUL II greets Quincy's John "Jake" Comer, then national commander of the American Legion, and his wife, Eileen, during an audience in the Vatican in 1988.

In 1988 Audience

Comer Recalls Pope's Sense Of Humor

Quincy's John "Jake" Comer was national commander of the American Legion on a tour of posts in Europe 17 years ago when he met Pope John Paul II and was treated to the papal sense of humor.

"He asked me the significance of the red Legion cap I was wearing," said Comer. "I told him, 'Your Eminence, I'm surprised. I'm one of your cardinals.' He busted out laughing."

Comer, his wife, Eileen, and their son, John, along with two Legion aides attended services at the Vatican chapel in front row seats that April day in 1988. The audience was set up by the Legion.

"After the service," he said, "it is customary for the Pope to meet with seven people each Wednesday. This Wednesday, the seven were Eileen and I, John, Pat and Edward Norcott of Hanover and a couple from Rhode Island.

"We had about 15 minutes with him. He was curious mostly about the American Legion. We had no difficulty understanding each other. He spoke 15 languages."

Comer visited American Legion posts in 18 countries during that trip to Europe in 1988, including one in Rome, Italy.

Pope John Paul's Mass: A Night To Treasure

The death of Pope John Paul II has saddened the entire world.

And for those of us who were there that night nearly 26 years ago on rain soaked Boston Common, a fond memory has become a most cherished and treasured one.

It was Oct. 1, 1979 and Pope John Paul II was there to celebrate an historic Mass as the first pope to set foot on U.S. soil.

In the past weeks at age 84 his rapidly declining health was so evident in television glimpses and newspaper photos and so hard for us to accept as the onslaught of Parkinson's disease, muscle weakness and other ailments associated with it, took their toll.

But that night in 1979, he was a young 59 — vigorous, energetic, charismatic.

And that is the way we who were there will always think of him.

He was the new spiritual leader of one billion Catholics, elected just the year before to succeed Pope John Paul I who died suddenly only one month into his papacy.

The rain had threatened most of the day and when it arrived just around the start of the 5:30 p.m. Mass, it came down heavy and chilling.

It eventually soaked clothing to the skin but it couldn't dampen the spirit of the 400,000 or more who were jammed onto Boston Common. It was like taking a shower with your clothes on.

But few, if any, would have swapped places with anyone sitting comfortably and dry in their living room watching this momentous event on television.

This was Pope John Paul II — not on a balcony in Rome in a TV news clip, but here in person on a modernistic altar not far from you.

And you are saying to yourself you are here, too. So is the rain. But who cares about a little rain. Or a lot of rain.

Not when you can see and hear the Pope saying: "I greet you, America the Beautiful. Beautiful even if it rains."

The crowd laughed and chanted "Viva il Papa." Some held signs such as "Protestants For The Pope" and "Our Hope For The Future Is Here."

Arthur Tobin, who was Quincy mayor then, his wife, Shirley, his brother, Tim, and I had arrived around noon. The tickets we had got us standing room only some 75 to 100 yards from the altar. We should have brought binoculars we told one another.

But luck was coming our way.

Robert Chenette of Merrymount who was heading up the Boston Police Department detective security at the Mass, a friend of Tobin, stopped to talk.

Next thing, we were walking in the direction of the reserved section in front of the altar.

Chenette knew four guests weren't going to make it that night and invited us to take their seats.

So there we were — not 75 to 100 yards away — but in the reserved section just eight rows from the foot of the red carpeted, yellow flowers banked altar.

The iron work for the special platform for the altar was done by Antonelli Iron Works, a Quincy firm headed by Larry Antonelli and his son-in-law, James Kearns.

Sitting near us were Senator Edward Kennedy, House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill, Gov. Edward King, Henry Cabot Lodge, Congressman Brian Donnelly.

When Kennedy and his wife, Joan, arrived shortly before the Mass started, there were chants of "Ted for President." But you knew who the real star — a superstar — was that night.

John Paul made a special effort to reach out to the young people.

Earlier you had noticed all the young faces in the crowd. You later learn that the Pope himself had decreed that 10,000 tickets be given to the young.

And, they were listening, hanging on to his every word as the rain continued to come pelting down.

"Tonight, in a very special way I hold out my hand to the youth of America," John Paul said.

It touched off a roar of approval from the crowd — both young and old — followed by cries of "Long live the Pope!", "Long live the Pope!"

"Tonight I want to repeat what I keep telling youth," he added. "You are the future of the world and the day of tomorrow belongs to you."

More roars and applause from the crowd.

"I'm glad he remembered us," said a teen-age girl standing behind us.

"He's so cute," said her friend, peering through the rain with binoculars for a close look.

"He's my Pope, he's my Pope!" a young nun behind me cried. And when I stood up, she jumped onto my chair to flash a picture with the elevation offering a closer view of the altar.

POPE JOHN PAUL II celebrates his historic Mass on rain soaked Boston Commoon Oct. 1, 1979.

As the rain continued to come down, a feeling of togetherness spread through the crowd.

"Umbrellas down in front" went up a friendly chant from those standing behind the reserved section and wanting a better view. "You in the reserved section have to suffer a little."

Down came the umbrellas amid laughs.

CRUISING BY AT about 20 miles per hour, Pope John Paul II had a smile and a wave for those who waited to see him along Boston Streets enroute to Boston Common. Quincy Sun Photo/Jack Tolson

A Lebanese priest said to several teen-age girls standing behind the ropes: "You know, you would think with all the clergy that is here we would have a little influence on the weather."

"Not in New England," they told him.

The Pope's homily lasted about 40 minutes and was interrupted by applause 25 times or more.

His words were stirring, crisp and clear — so different from the past months.

Among the concelebrants of the Mass with 15 cardinals and 30 other bishops were two well known former Quincy church figures: Most Rev. Thomas Daily, formerly of St. Ann's parish, Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, and Most Rev. Joseph Maguire, formerly of St. John's parish, Bishop of Springfield.

Among the 300 priests selected to distribute Communion were a number of familiar faces:

Fr. William McCarthy, Fr. Joseph Connolly, Fr. William Walsh, Fr. Daniel Graham of St. John's; Fr. Cornelius Heery and Fr. James Parker of Sacred Heart; Fr. Gerald Ostermann, St. Boniface; Fr. Lawrence Pratt, Fr. David Delaney and Fr. Mark Sheehan, formerly of St. John's.

The rain turned into a steady, heavy downpour during Communion with the priests distributing wet, soggy hosts to the thousands who walked through mud to receive them.

For such a huge crowd and the drenching rain every thing seemed to go off without a problem. No incidents to mar the historic event.

Some 400,000 or more people of all ages and religions jammed together in chilling rain, their clothing soaked. And no problems.

And many of them had been there since 5:30 a.m. that morning hoping to stake out a good viewing spot. They came with sandwiches, candy and cookies for nourishment through the long wait.

Pope John Paul II gave his final blessing in Latin and the Mass which lasted more than an hour and a half was now over. And the crowd started filing out orderly — and singing in the rain.

But not before one more rousing cheer went up for John Paul.

He had captivated this crowd of 400,000 or more and had given them — young and old — hope for the future. And a wonderful feeling of togetherness.

It was a night to remember back then.

And now a night to forever cherish and treasure.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A POSTCARD reproduction showing the old Lincoln Theater that was located at 587 Washington St. in Quincy Point. Known as the Casino when it opened in the mid 1920s, the name was changed to the Lincoln in 1929. The film featured on the marquee – The Enchanted Cottage – was a romantic fantasy starring Dorothy McGuire as a maid and Robert Young as an ex-GI in the roles of two unattractive people who fall in love. The Cisco Kid was Duncan Renaldo with his sidekick Pancho. At the time of this photo in 1948, the Lincoln's snack bar was on the left and Rocco Vitale's barbershop was on the right. The theater was closed in the 1960s and the building was soon after demolished. Today, this is the site of the real estate office of REMax of the South Shore. Very Saddened By The Passing Of Pope John Paul II

We are very sad at the passing of Pope John Paul II. From my perspective one of John Paul's greatest contributions to the church, and here I mean the wider Christian church, was his solid stand for moral truth, and his rejection of moral relativism.

In his encyclical "Veritatis Splendor" (Splendor of the Truth) the Pope reminded us that "No evil done with a good intention can be excused." Words of truth to our society and our churches today. Words we need to heed!

Rest in Peace Good Shepherd of God.

Disappointed Over The Schools

I find it very discouraging to always be reading negative news on the school building projects. I think we need to look at all the positives in building the new school and get moving on it.

The mayor, when he was a school committee member, did a great job of exposing the problems of the Quincy Avenue site. His work on behalf of the children of Quincy was a breath of fresh air; he saved the city from using a toxic waste dump. His dedication to the children of Quincy should not be questioned. Mayor, we need that dedication now to get us past this planning stage.

Completing this project will give Quincy children a better education in a state-of-the-art school. This project will restore pride to the City of Quincy and it will provide needed jobs in the construction industry.

Thanks For Making This Year's Daffodil Days A Success

Each year volunteers in the South Shore put forth a fantastic effort to make the American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days a true success. Their eagerness to work hard never ceases to amaze me.

On behalf of the American Cancer Society and as chairperson of the event in the South Shore, I would like to thank the many local individuals, businesses and organizations who supported our hard work to make the campaign successful.

In Southeastern Mass., over 50,000 bouquets of daffodils were sold and more than $440,000 was raised to improve the quality of life for cancer patients and their families right here in our community.

Also, numerous Gifts of Hope were delivered, ensuring that local cancer patients received their own sign of spring- a beautiful bouquet of daffodils.

The Society's fund raising campaigns, including Daffodil Days, are volunteer-driven.

During Daffodil Days, volunteers purchased bouquets, prepared them and delivered them. Every volunteer was dedicated to helping the American Cancer Society sustain its vital services, programs and research endeavors.

Thanks again to everyone! I hope to see you during Daffodil Days 2005!

Students Propose Single High School

This Week
1967
38 Years Ago

Students attending a seminar voted support for a single high school in the city.

The 70 students, studying problems of democracy, and the city and its problems, met at the third annual seminar at the YMCA.

The students noted the advantages of the new Brockton High School and how a combined high school could benefit Quincy students.

The students suggested possible sites for the new school: Quincy Center, Wollaston Golf Club, the area opposite Veterans Stadium and a wooded area in West Quincy.

$2 MILLION HIGH-RISE SET TO OPEN

The Executive House on Hancock St., the South Shore's first high-rise, was set to open, according to John Gallagher, Jr., of the management company in charge of its operation. Mrs. Peter Angelo was the first tenant to move in.

The $2 million, 14-story building was owned by QHS graduates Peter and Harold Kanavos and Herbert Gleason of Cohasset. It was designed by Edgar Wood and Associates and built by the Poley-Abrams Contractors.

BURGESS RE-ELECTED BANK PRESIDENT

At its 122nd annual meeting, the officers of the Quincy Savings Bank re-elected Arthur Burgess president.

Burgess was a former state legislator, former city solicitor and a veteran of both World War I and World War II. He was past president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the first president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

Also elected were Clayton English, who replaced George Bonsall on the board of directors. He joined board members Rodgers and Thomas Burgin, George Reardon, Dr. Morgan Sargent, Harvey MacArthur, Arnold Haskell, Richard Porter, Joseph Serafini, Gordon Clark and Robert Faxon.

Arts & Entertainment

EIGHT QUINCY RESIDENTS will perform or work on the tech crew for the musical "Stop and Rock," Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 7, 8 and 9 at 8 p.m. at Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree. The musical will include rock and roll favorites from the 1950s and early 1960s as a backdrop to a story of two competing groups, the greasers and the preppies, who want to save the Stop and Rock Diner from closing. From Quincy (front row) far left, freshman Stephanie Mariano; second from left, junior Paula Kirby; second from right, junior Kelli Connors. Middle row, fifth from right, sophomore Julianne Coneys; seventh from right, junior Courtney Jago; eighth from right, junior Colleen Barry. Back row, third from left, senior Jervis Liang; and fourth from left, senior Nick McNeill. Admission is $7 for adults, and $5 for students and senior citizens. For more information, call 781-843-3636.

South Shore Poets To Read At Library April 10

Four South Shore poets will read in celebration of the 10th anniversary of National Poetry Month Sunday, April 10, at 2 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Participating poets include Quincy residents Barbara Kennard and Edward J. Carvalho, Elizabeth Carter Torrey of Hingham and Ron Slate of Milton.

Kennard's poems have been published in a variety of British literary journals. She teaches English and creative writing at Newton Country Day School and won the Christa McAuliffe Award for Teaching Excellence in 1999.

Carvalho is the author of "Failure to Communicate: the Selected Poetry and Art of Edward J. Carvalho." His poetry was nominated for the Pushcart Prize in 2004 and has been featured in various national journals and spoken word venues in the Northeast. He is currently at work on his third collection of poetry while an MFA candidate at Goddard College.

Torrey is a published poet and co-founder of Touchstones and Turning Seasons, bringing memories alive through poetry. She conducts readings in assisted living communities, art centers and libraries around the South Shore.

Slate, winner of the 2004 Bakeless Prize for Poetry, is a graduate of the Stanford University Writing Program. He was the editor of the Chowder Review from 1973 to 1988. His first poetry collection, "The Incentive of the Maggot," will be published in April.

For more information about this free event, call 617-376-1301.

St. Mary's School Spring Fling

St. Mary School, 121 Crescent St., will hold its sixth annual Spring Fling fundraising event on Saturday, April 9 beginning at 5 p.m.

The event kicks off with a special Liturgy followed by dinner and a silent auction. The evening concludes with a silent auction.

Suggested donation is $20 per ticket.

For more information call St. Mary School at 617-773-5237.

Quincy Pair Play Key Stage Roles

Two Quincy women are playing key roles in the As-Yet-To-Be Theatre Company's production of "Spin" April 22 to May 8 in the Tower Auditorium at the Mass College of Art in Boston.

Linda Tucker is the stage manager and Caryn Andrea Lindsey is featured in the role of Megan in the story of a musician who suddenly grows up after a life of "sex, drugs and rock 'n roll."

Christmas Parade Theme Deadline Is Tomorrow

Nominations are open for a theme for the 53rd annual Christmas parade in Quincy, which takes place this year on Sunday, Nov. 27.

Deadline for entries is tomorrow (Friday, April 8). They should be mailed to Carol Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, MA 02170.

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee will meet on April 21 to select the winning theme from entries from Quincy and the South Shore.

The winner will ride in an open convertible the day of the parade and will receive an award at North Quincy High School at the end.

A parade theme is selected early to give the builders of floats and marching units ample time to focus their parade entries on that theme.

Winning themes in past years have included "The Music of Christmas," and "Christmas in the Eyes of a Child," and "What Christmas Means to Me."

Evening Of Short Plays At Eastern Nazarene College

Eastern Nazarene College will present an evening of one-act plays by David Ives Thursday, April 14, through Saturday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the school, 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston.

Senior Patrick Pasik will direct "Sure Thing" and "Soap Opera," and senior Joanna Bair will director "The Universal Language" and "English Made Simple."

Audiences will be seated in an intimate setting of a 100-sat black box configuration in which every member can take a front seat on the stage with the actors.

Tickets are $5 and should be reserved in advance since seating is limited. For more information, call the box office at 617-745-3715.

Quincy Art Association Classes

The Quincy Art Association will hold spring art classes for adults and children during the week of April 18 and summer classes during July and August.

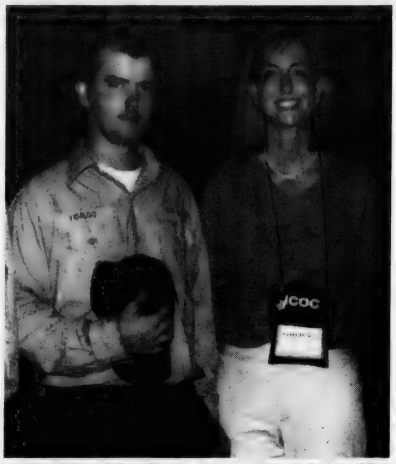
Kimberly Wong of Quincy earned a bachelor's degree in marketing management from Syracuse University's Martin J. Whitman School of Management at the conclusion of the fall semester.

She will receive the degree at the university's 151st commencement ceremony May 15.



Jason Fidalgo Meets Lt. Governor Healey Aboard USS John Stennis In Pacific Ocean

Jason Fidalgo, a 2003 graduate of North Quincy High School, recently met Lt. Gov. Kerry Healey aboard the USS John Stennis (CVN74) while she toured the U.S. military in the Pacific with the Department of Defense.

Fidalgo, who is serving in the U.S. Navy, was deployed to the Pacific for Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Northern Edge and Summer Pulse '04 exercises.

The USS John C. Stennis departed its homeport of San Diego for deployment to the Western Pacific last May. Stennis spent several months performing various drills and flight operations while also visiting various ports in the Pacific.

The ship deployed to Alaska to participate in Operation Northern Edge, an inter-service exercise, primarily with the Air Force, in the Alaskan Gulf. After that and a trip to Hawaii for further training the Stennis CSG deployed to the Western Pacific in support of the Global War on terrorism.

JASON FIDALGO, a 2003 graduate of North Quincy High School, meets Lt. Gov. Kerry Kealey aboard the USS John Stennis (CVN74). Healey recently toured the U.S. military in the Pacific with the Department of Defense.

The Carrier Strike Group then rendezvoused near Japan to conduct joint air and sea training exercise (JASEX) supporting the Navywide Summer Pulse 04' exercise. The exercise demonstrated the Navy's new operational construct for deploying naval forces as part of the Fleet Response Plan (RFP). The strike group then made goodwill visits in Southern Japan, Malaysia and Singapore.

The USS John C. Stennis Carrier Strike Group returned from deployment from the Western Pacific Nov. 1, 2004 after spending five months operating at sea in support of critical cooperative theater security commitments.

Fidalgo's next deployment will be this July aboard the USS Ronald Reagan.

Christine Cedrone Reappointed To Housing Authority Board

Atty. Christine Cedrone has been reappointed to a third five-year term as the state member of the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners.

The new term expires March 18, 2009.

Cedrone was first appointed to the five-member board by Gov. William Weld in 1994 and reappointed to a second five years by Gov. Paul Cellucci in 1999.

CHRISTINE CEDRONE

That term expired in 2004 so the current reappointment by Gov. Mitt Romney is retroactive to that date.

Other members of the Authority, all by appointment of the mayor of Quincy, include Chairman James McDonald, Frances J. Kennedy, Kevin Cotter and the Rev. William McCarthy.

The director-designate is Atty. Joseph MacRitchie, an appointee of Mayor William Phelan, whose qualifications have been questioned by the state.

Assignment In Westford

Fr. Peter Quinn Leaving St. John's For New Pastorate

Fr. Peter F. Quinn, pastor at St. John the Baptist church the past 10 years, is leaving for a new assignment.

Archbishop Sean O'Malley has appointed him pastor of St. Catherine of Alexandria parish in Westford for a six-year period effective April 18.

O'Malley said he was making the appointment on the recommendation of the Clergy Personnel Board of the Archdiocese. Fr. Quinn is a member of the Archbishop's Presbyteral Council.

Fr. Quinn succeeds Fr. William M. Sullivan, who resigned as pastor in Westford. His successor here at St. John's had not been announced at The Sun's press time.

Fr. Quinn in on a retreat in Gloucester this week and unavailable for comment.

But a letter from him was read by Fr. Raymond Kiley, parochial vicar at St. John's, at Masses over the weekend and copies were distributed to parishioners.

In it, Fr. Quinn said Archbishop O'Malley had informed him Feb. 24 of the pending appointment.

"I informed the Personnel Director that it was neither something I felt attracted to nor felt called to but if it would serve the greater good of the Church I would graciously accept the assignment.

"I have always believed in the sense of mission that a priest should be assigned where his gifts and talents best serve the needs of the People of God."

Fr. Quinn said he regretted not being able to personally share the news with parishioners but last October had scheduled his retreat at Eastern Point in Gloucester for the week of March 30-April 8.

Fr. PETER QUINN

He said he will celebrate the 4 p.m. Mass this Saturday, the 9:30 a.m. Mass on Sunday and the 7:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. Masses on Sunday, April 17.

"I will be available to meet with parishioners downstairs in the hall following each of the Masses," he said.

He said he has been "blessed" being with St. John's parishioners the past 13 years and they "will always have a special place in my heart."

Fr. Quinn, who grew up in Dorchester, came to St. John's in Jan. 9, 1992 as parochial vicar. He was installed pastor March 26, 1995, by Bishop Daniel Hart, succeeding Fr. William McCarthy.

He was ordained by Cardinal Humberto Medeiros in 1972 and served at St. Richard in Danvers and St. Catherine of Siena in Charlestown and on the faculty at St. John's Seminary before coming to St. John's.

Finn To Seek Third Term As Councillor At-Large

Councillor at-Large Joseph Finn, citing his record, announces he will seek a third term.

The campaign kick-off will be Wednesday, April 13, from 6 to 8 p.m. at Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

"When I first ran for office, I made a promise to the working families of Quincy that I would work in their best interests to improve our streets, schools and public safety, and I would be the voice of the people on the council," Finn said. "In this campaign I will continue to carry out my promise to the voters of Quincy."

Finn, who lives on William Street, said he his proud of his work as the chairman of the Public Works Committee, his fiscal responsibility and his work in fighting to lower residential property taxes as his main credentials.

JOSEPH FINN

Finn said that, as the city continues to face budget cuts from federal and state government, the importance of city government has grown tremendously. He said that he seeks to implement creative solutions to Quincy's emerging issues.

"As a member of the council, I am committed to advocating for fair and civil debate to seek solutions to the problems of increased property taxes, cuts in the city budgets and the decline in basic services such as road and sidewalk repair and education needs," Finn said. "I think people share my belief that it is time to get back to the basics of city government."

Finn is the executive director of the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance and the former director of Father Bill's Place and the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition. He is also a Quincy Youth Lacrosse coach.

Finn is married to Dolores McImail Finn, is father of five young boys and has two foster children awaiting adoption.

He said the campaign kick-off will be a family event and children are welcome. For information to attend, contact Campaign Manager Nicholas Puleo at 617-835-1253.

A Victim Of Torment

Quincy Honors Vietnam Hero Alan Brudno After 32 Years

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy has finally offered a belated tribute to Alan Brudno, the native son who died a victim of the personal torments left by one of the longest captivities of any American prisoner of war in Vietnam.

Air Force Lt. Brudno was 25 years old when his F-4 Phantom jet was shot down over North Vietnam on Oct. 18, 1965, and he spent the next seven and a half years in a POW camp. He was released in February, 1973, promoted to captain and awarded a Silver Star.

Four months later, he killed himself.

"Alan Brudno was a wonderful young man and friend," Marine Lt. Col. Orson Swindle, a fellow POW in 'Nam, told the crowd that gathered in the North Quincy High School auditorium to honor Brudno. "We who knew him were blessed that Alan was with us."

Brudno was a graduate of North Quincy High, Class of 1958, a member of the National Honor Society, with a degree in aeronautical engineering from MIT. His goal in life was to become an astronaut.

"This country has afforded my family, who were immigrants, and myself, so much, I've got to give something back. You cannot always just take, you must give something back," he is quoted as saying on a plaque that was placed at his old high school.

Alan Brudno gave something back and more.

"He was one of the morning stars of his generation," said Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El. "He was a great patriot. He suffered greatly. He was a true martyr of the American cause."

His brother, Robert, who lives in Bethesda, Md.,, fought long and hard to have Alan Brudno's name added to the list of wartime casualties on the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, a campaign that was successful when his name was inscribed last Memorial Day.

Robert Brudno was at the ceremonies last week along with Alan's former wife, Debby; another brother, Steven of Brookline; Robert's wife, Sheila, and daughter, Allison.

The ceremony had been scheduled to take place under the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower at Marina Bay but had to be moved inside the high school because of the rain. A wreath was placed on the Memorial in Brudno's honor.

Col. Swindle, who was held prisoner nearly as long as Brudno, explained the POW demons that may have haunted Brudno and others who were held for long periods. He was captured in the winter of 1966.

"A few years later, we all came home," he said. "We had lost some good friends along the way. We were battered and scarred but we came home. Coming home was euphoric as you might expect but it was also traumatic for many.

"We came home to a society that had changed dramatically. We were like Rip Van Winkle — a very difficult feeling with which to cope. Few, if any, around us could understand this.

"We came home to broken marriages, or soon to be broken marriages. We came home to children that were so young or yet unborn when we left that they did not know us. Uncertainty, sadness and even fear were not uncommon emotions.

"There was sadness at the separation of friends who had literally clung to each other for years in times of terror, pain and suffering, and a foreboding about what the future might hold and how we could cope.

"We found ourselves, in a sense, alone without those friends who had known us in tough times and for whom there was mutual trust, close attachment and support.

"And always that lingering question: Was it all in vain, all the pain endured?

"Alan Brudno was a casualty of a combination of the lasting effects of incredible physical and mental brutality ever seven long years and the reality of a world that had changed enormously for him."

Later, during the reception at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel, Mayor William Phelan proclaimed the day "Capt. E. Alan Brudno Day" in Quincy.

The reception was attended by J. William Middendorf, former Secretary of the Navy and ambassador to the Netherlands; and William Chatfield, director of Selective Service, representing President George Bush.

Lawrence Connors and Joseph Murphy, members of the Vietnam Combat Veterans, read the list of names of the 47 residents of Quincy who died during the war in Vietnam.

Sweeney Funeral Homes To Sponsor Pope Memorials

Memorial books and prayer cards, tributes to the late Pope John Paul II, are being made available at the Sweeney Funeral Home and Catholic churches in Quincy, thanks to Dennis Sweeney.

"My wife, Pauline, and so many of our friends had the chance to see Pope John Paul II when he came to Boston," said the president of the funeral home. "The Pope touched people in such a real way that we feel a sense of loss."

Sweeney and funeral director Joseph M. Reardon felt they should help celebrate the 84-year-old Pontiff's long life.

"Dennis and I thought that we should help our neighbors and friends celebrate the legacy of the Holy Father," said Reardon. "We hope that many Quincy residents will take this opportunity to honor the Pope's life."

Sweeney said local parishes will make the memorials available in time for mass this weekend and the funeral home will offer the memorial during scheduled service. The parishes or the funeral home will have specific dates and times.

The funeral home will collect the books and forward them to the Vatican on behalf of the city of Quincy.

For more information, contact the Sweeney Funeral Home at 617-773-2728.

Mitt Romney before it becomes law.

According to Phelan's original proposal, the tax cut plan would be paid for with a $1.1 million cash infusion stemming from the sale of Saville Hall to the college.

But the council amended the proposal by adding language that would allow the college to own or lease property, an idea that was originally part of the city's overall land agreement with the college.

Last year, the city and college hammered out an agreement that ended a two-year rent dispute between the parties. As part of the agreement, however, the mayor was scheduled to file a home rule petition allowing the sale of Saville Hall to the college. In addition, the home rule petition would give the college the authority to buy, sell or lease property.

But the home rule petition has not been filed, leading several councillors to question how the city would pay for the tax cut.

But Phelan said Tuesday he will file an additional home rule petition addressing the college's ability to own property. The measure will be "consistent with our understanding of the agreement," he said.

"It has always been our intention to live up to the agreement, at least as far as we understood it," said Phelan.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, who also sits on the college's board of governors, incorporated language from last year's agreement into Phelan's tax cut measure, saying the council is simply taking the lead on a matter that should have been cleared up last year.

Currently, the city has no authority to convey land to the college, and the college has no right to own property, according to Raymondi. The amended legislation addresses those points and earmarks a funding source for the tax cut, he said.

"The seven members of the council who voted for this want to put that money in the hands of seniors who need it most," said Raymondi. "But if the city can't sell it (Saville Hall), and the college can't buy it, how do we pay for the tax cut?" Raymondi asked. "The council did great work in strengthening a deficient, defective proposal."

Raymondi called Phelan's original plan a "fraud," and said the measure would not have passed legislative muster if the council had not assigned a funding source.

"We gave this proposal credibility, but the mayor's hang-up with the college is preventing him from doing his job properly," said Raymondi. "It makes you wonder whether he ever wanted this thing to happen."

At Monday night's meeting, Raymondi also mentioned the city's ongoing battle with the college over pension payments, and at one point, accused Phelan of pushing a new Quincy High School plan that "puts the college out of business."

Dave Murphy, Phelan's aide, called Raymondi's accusation "unfounded," and said the mayor simply believes the language in the amendment is too broad.

"With a four-hour presentation last week, and with the opportunity to ask unlimited questions, not once was it ever stated that Quincy College was part of Option One or Option Two," Murphy said after the meeting. Last week, the city unveiled to the council two possible options for a new Quincy High School.

Councillor John Keenan suggested that the language in Raymondi's amendment was too broad, and said it would allow the college to purchase property beyond Saville Hall.

But Councillor Joe Finn urged the council to move forward with the amended proposal.

"We should keep this moving," said Finn. "If the mayor has alternate proposals, then let him come forward with them. But there is no reason to wait."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin pushed his fellow councillors to pass the legislation, saying senior citizens are frustrated with the slow-moving process.

At Monday night's meeting, Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner's attempt to expand the pool of recipients went down to defeat. Gardner proposed removing the age restriction and lowering the number of years a resident can own a home, but most councillors elected to stay with the measure as is.

Council President Frank McCauley and Keenan voted against the tax cut altogether. McCauley described the measure as a "a hand-out," while Keenan said the city should provide tax relief to all property owners.

At last week's finance committee meeting, the council approved several other amendments to Phelan's original language. Raymondi incorporated several changes, including lifting restrictions on who is eligible in the future, and allowing residents who may have moved from one home to another in Quincy to qualify.

Finn added a measure that allows disabled city residents for the program, and Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis incorporated an amendment that would limit income to qualify for the program to $46,000 for individuals and $53,000 for couples. Most councillors agreed that the most affluent homeowners do not need the cash benefit.

Wells Fargo Home Mortgage Sponsoring Workshop At Roche Brothers Supermarket

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop April 16

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will host a first time homebuyer workshop Saturday, April 16 at Roche Brothers Supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd., Quincy.

The one-day workshop, sponsored by Wells Fargo Home Mortgage, will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend the educational workshop. At this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to be pre-qualified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works, and other presentations from real estate related professionals.

Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend an introductory session to evaluate their credit history and determine their level of mortgage readiness. It is strongly suggested participants obtain a copy of their credit report for this session.

Wells Fargo is offering a free credit report to anyone attending the introductory session scheduled Tuesday, April 12 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Call in advance to register or to discuss dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person. This fee covers the introductory session as well as the First Time Homebuyer workshop, and all workshop materials.

Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Call (617) 770-2227 ext. 31.

Bank Of Canton, NHS Offering Homebuyer Workshop April 25

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore and the Bank of Canto will sponsor a two-part first time homebuyer workshop April 25 and April 30 at the Bank of Canton headquarters, 490 Turnpike St., Canton.

A credit evaluation session will be held Monday, April 25 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Participants should bring a copy of their current credit report.

The second session – an introduction to the mortgage process – will be held Saturday, April 30 from 9 to 4 p.m. A complimentary breakfast and lunch will be served.

Cost for both sessions is $15.

To register, call Neighborhood Housing Services at 617-770-2227 ext. 31.

The first session of the workshop evaluates participants' credit history to determine their level of mortgage readiness.

Participants are encouraged to bring a current credit report.

The second session focuses on the mortgage process including mortgage programs for first-time buyers as well as presentations by a closing attorney, insurance agent and a home inspector.

Neighborhood Housing services will also discuss grant programs to assist income eligible borrowers with down payment assistance.

Bank of Canton, branch office locations in Quincy, Randolph and Quincy, is a Massachusetts-chartered mutual savings bank.

For more information, call the Bank of Canton at 888-828-1690.

Tips On Controlling Mold In Your Home

(NU) - The National Concrete Masonry Association suggests taking the following precautionary steps to avoid mold growth in homes.

• Look for visible signs of moisture and eliminate the source.

• Regularly maintain roofs, walls and openings. Replace caulking and repaint as needed.

• Keep the maximum relative humidity levels in your home at about 40 percent during the heating season and below 60 percent during the cooling season, as recommended by the National Association of Home Builders.

• Install bath and kitchen fans, and vent fans to the outside of your home.

• Seal all outlets, sill plates and through-wall penetrations, including doors and windows, to minimize uncontrolled air infiltration.

• Regularly inspect and clean the condensation drain line for central-air conditioning units.

• Inspect the roof, windows and siding after storms to identify missing shingles, damaged flashing and visible water leaks.

For more information about mold and cleaning concrete masonry, visit www.ncma. org.

Clogged Sink

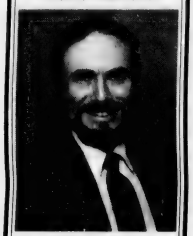
Q. My kitchen sink drains slowly and sometimes clogs. I have plunged it, but the improvement is only temporary. How can I get the sink to drain normally? — Helen G., Cincinnati

A. Plunging a clogged sink is a quick-fix solution to a recurring problem. Hair, soap scum, food particles and mineral deposits often get trapped at bends in the drainpipe, and additional debris piles up around these spots. Over time, the whole mass compacts into a solid mess that no amount of suction or hot water can break up. At that point, what you have to do is go farther into the sink's drain system to locate this stubborn blockage.

You'll need a few tools to do the job right: a pipe wrench, bucket and flexible coat-hanger wire to start. You may also need a plumber's snake to reach where the wire can't. Put on rubber gloves to protect your hands.

Underneath the sink, you'll see that the drain pipe has a U-shaped bend in it. This is the trap, and it's where most clogs begin. You typically have two options for cleaning this section of pipe: you can simply unscrew the drain plug located at the bottom of the "U" and reach inside the trap with the coat-hanger wire, or you can completely detach the trap from the rest of the drain pipe in order to thoroughly clean it.

In either case, place the bucket underneath the trap first to catch any water and debris that will empty out. Use the pipe wrench to loosen the drain plug and then unscrew it (aren't you glad you put those rubber gloves on?). Once the excess water has drained out, either clean out the trap using the wire to catch and pull debris through the plug opening, or carefully remove the entire trap from the drain system by loosening the nuts on either end.



This may be difficult as the nuts are tightly sealed; if the pipe wrench keeps slipping, try wrapping a rag around the nut and clamping the wrench over it. Then, carefully tug the trap away from the other pipes and clean it out using flexible wire, brushes — whatever it takes to get the gunk out.

If you take the trap off, use this opportunity to check the drain system beyond it. Use the wire to carefully probe the drain pipe, pulling out all debris. If the debris is too compacted to break up with the wire, bring the plumber's snake into play, threading it into the pipe and then rotating the handle. The coiled wire on the end should snag debris, and the twisting action helps break up hardened clogs.

Once everything is as clean as you can get it, replace the trap and screw the drain plug back in. Leave the bucket under the trap as you test the system by running hot water through it for a couple of minutes at full-force. (The bucket will prevent an unexpected mess if the pipe isn't connected tightly enough.) If the slow-draining problem remains, contact a plumber to check your system for deeper clogs or other problems.

Skin Cancer Screening At Quincy Medical Center

Quincy Medical Center will host a free skin cancer screening Wednesday, May 4 from 5 to 7 p.m. in the ambulatory care department, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

Dermatologists on staff at Quincy Medical Center have donated their services for the free public screening.

The screening is co-sponsored by the American Academy of Dermatology.

Space is limited and advance registration is required.

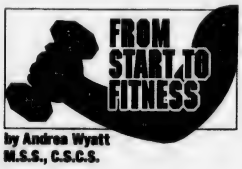
To schedule an appointment, call QMC's Physician Referral Service, toll-free at 877-479-CARE (2273).

Milton Hospital's Main Laboratory Accredited By College Of American Pathologists

Milton Hospital Main Laboratory has been awarded an accreditation by the Commission on Laboratory Accreditation of the College of American Pathologists (CAP), based on the results of a recent on-site inspection.

The laboratory's director was advised of this national recognition and congratulated for providing excellent services.

"We are very pleased to receive full re-accreditation from the College of American Pathologists," said Milton Hospital Chief of Pathology Jon Keller, M.D. "With over one thousand detailed questions covering every facet of laboratory performance, the inspection process represents the "gold standard" of certification."



The CAP Laboratory Accreditation Program, begun in the early 1960s, is recognized by the federal government as being equal to or more stringent than the government's own inspection program.

During the CAP accreditation process, inspectors examine the laboratory's records and quality control procedures for the preceding two years. CAP inspectors also examine the entire staff's qualifications, the laboratory's equipment, facilities, safety program and record, as well as the overall management of the laboratory. This stringent inspection program is designed to specifically ensure the highest standard of care for the laboratory's patients.

"Our staff are extremely professional, diligent, and committed to serving the community, which was reflected in their exemplary performance on the inspection," Dr. Keller said.

Milton Hospital's laboratory delivered over 700,000 patient results in 2004, an increase of 16 percent over 2003.

The College of American Pathologists is a medical society serving nearly 16,000 physician members and the laboratory community throughout the world.

Injury-Free Squats

Q. I have been told that squats can help strengthen my knees, but they seem to hurt when I attempt to perform them. Do you recommend squat exercises to improve knee strength without injury?

A. Maintaining the stability and integrity of your joints while exercising should be a goal of every fitness program. Stresses placed on your joints while exercising should not place you at risk for injury but should work to help increase the strength of the muscles that surround the knee joint.

The knee joint itself does not have muscles to strengthen; however, the muscles, ligaments, tendons, cartilage and meniscus that integrate and surround the knee joint are responsible for its movement. Muscles of the thigh (quadriceps in front, hamstrings in back), inner and outer thigh, gluteus, hips, calves and even the ankles form a team that work together to provide proper knee function.

Performing exercise techniques correctly while completing squats is essential for protecting your knees from injury. Many injuries occur from performing exercises incorrectly. Proper body placement when performing this exercise is of great importance.

Squats are great to strengthen the muscles surrounding the knee. The correct squat position should begin by standing up straight with your toes facing forward and feet shoulder-width apart.

Bend at your hips and knees and lower your body down, keeping your weight on the middle to the back of your foot. Press through your heels to return back to a standing position. Do 10 to 15 repetitions.

It is not necessary to lower yourself down too far. Placing a chair or bench behind you as a reference can help you stay consistent. Go far enough to where you can keep your heels on the floor and stay in control as you return to a standing position.

Remember to speak with your physician if you currently or have ever had knee problems. You may be given specific corrective exercises to perform.

If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws @hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

DETECTING ORAL CANCER

One of the more important facets of a comprehensive oral examination at the dentist's office is performing a visual inspection for oral cancer. Usually, the dentist or hygienist does so by looking for unusual lesions in the soft tissues of the mouth. Soon, however, dentists may have a more efficient way to perform an oral-cancer screening. Recently, scientists found that they were able to measure for elevated levels of four distinct cancer-associated molecules in saliva. Using this method, they had a 91% accuracy rate in distinguishing between healthy individuals and those diagnosed with oral squamous cell carcinoma. This is the first instance in which cancer-linked messenger RNA was measured in the saliva to indicate the presence of a developing tumor.

The risk of developing oral cancer increases after age 45 years. We urge a routine of periodic professional exams that will help ensure the health and longevity of your teeth. Fillings, extractions, sealants, root canals, cosmetic dentistry, partial or full dentures, and crowns and bridges are just some of the services we offer. For exceptional dental care, call us at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we want to provide your entire family with the best oral health care possible. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Scientists hope eventually to use saliva samples to distinguish between various stages of oral cancer.

Optimistic Red Raiders Focus On State Tourney

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

There's a revealing statistic of last year's North Quincy High School baseball team that gives reason for optimism this season.

Although the Red Raiders finished with a dismal 6-14 record, they were involved in many close games as eight of their 14 losses were by three runs or less.

Having lost just three seniors to graduation, and with 11 returnees and a transfer added to the roster, second-year head coach Rick Beach believes they can return to the state tournament for the first time since 2002.

"I really see us making the tournament this year," Beach said. "Our young kids have that extra year experience. These kids have been playing together for a couple of years, which is a good thing. The potential is there."

North Quincy opened the season Monday at Silver Lake and hosted Hyde Park yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. at Adams Field.

The Red Raiders were competitive last year because of their solid pitching and defense. The culprit turned out to be their offense, particularly their lack of clutch hitting which was attributed to their youth.

"We didn't come up with the clutch hits," Beach said. "That was our problem. Our hitting wasn't very good with the young kids. My five sophomores were still playing Babe Ruth last year and facing varsity pitching. That's a big jump for them. This year, hopefully they make the jump."

Beach has the top of the order penciled in. Junior Tom Power will lead off, followed by senior tri-captain John Fitzgerald, junior Drew Loud, senior tri-captain Mike Powers and senior Matt Haskins.

Loud played for North Quincy as a freshman before injuring his shoulder. He transferred to Catholic Memorial for his sophomore year but returned this year and is expected to provide a boost for the Red and Black.

"He's a player," Beach said. "He just shows up every day, does his work and does a great job."

The pitching staff will be anchored by Haskins, a left-hander who did not play last season. Power and junior John Allen round out the rotation. Juniors Paul Doolan, Joe Ceurvels and John Ridge will come out of the bullpen with senior Chris Mercurio serving as the closer.

Defensively, junior catcher Evan Harrington takes over for Andy McAllister, with Doolan and junior James Mullaney as the backups.

Around the infield, Haskins, Allen and Ceurvels will share first base with junior Akil Benjamin able to play there as well. Fitzgerald will be at second base, Loud at shortstop and Powers at third base. Senior Dom Poli will back up Fitzgerald and Ridge and Allen can relieve Powers at third.

In the outfield, Power stands out in center field and will be joined by senior left fielder Tom Ross and senior right fielder and tri-captain Dave Djerf. Coming off the bench are senior Ricky Schifone, Mercurio, Haskins, Doolan, Benjamin and Mullaney.

Sophomores Dave Guerriero, Jay Lewis, Shaun McBrien and Mike Jay will split time with the varsity and junior varsity clubs.

"I have a pretty good young nucleus of kids playing," Beach said. "The future looks good for the team. North Quincy is up and coming should be an interesting year."

North Quincy Baseball Instructional Clinic April 16

The North Quincy High School baseball team will hold an instructional clinic Saturday, April 16, from 10 a.m. to noon at O'Rourke Field, Quarry Street and Furnace Brook Parkway.

The clinic is for children ages 5-12 and parents of 5, 6 and 7 year olds must stay. Cost, payable at the field, is $20 per child which includes a T-shirt. Parents may register their child beginning at 9:15 a.m.

Rain date will be Sunday, April 17 from 10 a.m. to noon. For more information, e-mail www.ddcof@aol.com.

High Expectations For Experienced Quincy

SOFTBALL

When a team loses only one starter after winning 13 games, finishing second in the league and advancing to the second round of the state tournament, expectations are higher than normal.

Welcome to the world of the Quincy High School softball team.

"This is the best team I've had in five years," said head coach Mike Sedar. "They all came back in great shape. We're very strong one through 11, but we're an injury away from disaster."

The Presidents have also received an additional boost this year with the return of a healthy Rachel Sorensen, who missed her senior season last year when she was diagnosed with Guillan-Barre Syndrome, a disease that attacks the neurological system.

"It feels good to be back," said the two-time all-star pitcher. "It's great to have the support, too."

"Rachel coming back means a lot to us," Sedar said. "She's back in full force. She's very healthy and she'll start the opener."

Quincy kicks off the season Monday at Plymouth South at 4 p.m. and the home opener is Wednesday at 4 p.m. against Whitman-Hanson at Mitchell/McCoy Field. It travels to Plymouth North Thursday at 4 p.m.

As usual, Sedar has created a difficult schedule with the belief being the stronger competition will prepare them for postseason play. They Presidents will face non-league powerhouses Cardinal Spellman, Fontbonne Academy and Stoughton twice and Milton and Braintree once, in addition to league foe Whitman-Hanson.

"This is by far the toughest schedule I've put forth for the kids," Sedar said. "We could finish 12-8 or 10-10. We'd like to the win the Atlantic Coast League, but we just want to get better as the year goes on and go far in the playoffs."

His five senior captains — Alysia DiMuzio, Katie Walsh, Rebekah Sorensen, Rachel Sorensen and Rebecca Williams — echo that sentiment.

"It's important," DiMuzio said of a league championship, "but going far in the tournament is a lot better."

"As long as we go through the season playing our best softball and playing 100 percent, that's what matters," Walsh said.

Sorensen's return gives the Presidents another weapon as she'll team up with her younger sister, Rebekah, also an all-star, and share pitching duties.

"They're different type of pitchers," Sedar said. "Rebi has more speed and Rachel throws more junk. Both have three pitches: a fastball, drop and knuckle change."

The Sorensens will have a different catcher with the graduation of Rose Bell. Junior all-star Kim LeBel, who played left field a year ago, will start behind the plate. Sophomore Brighid Kyle, a transfer from North Quincy, will also see time there as well.

The entire infield is back, with DiMuzio, an all-star, at first, Williams at second, junior all-star Courtney Hall at shortstop and junior Leanna Lam at third. Rebekah will play either short or third when not pitching.

"DiMuzio is as big and strong as ever," Sedar said. "She's hitting the ball as hard as I've seen anyone hit. Hall has had a phenomenal champ. She's worked hard and she's hitting the ball real well."

Walsh, an all-star, returns to center to anchor the outfield which will see a rotation in left and right with senior Marissa Powers, freshman Marybeth Torpey, Kyle or Lam.

"The fact that we have Rebekah back and the seniors, I think we're going to be a lot better," DiMuzio said. "We have more experience together and our confidence is a lot higher."

New Look, New Coach For North Quincy

The North Quincy High School softball team will field almost an entirely new squad this season with only three players returning for first-year head coach Larry Keough.

Keough, who coached the junior varsity team last year, is familiar with many of the newcomers and will try to improve upon last year's 3-17 campaign.

"I think we're going to be competitive," Keough said. "The problem is it depends on how far our pitching takes us. It should be interesting. It's a new league (Atlantic Coast League) for us. I don't think we'll find anything easy from what I hear."

The Red Raiders open the season Monday against Fontbonne Academy at 4 p.m. at Mitchell/McCoy Field, travel to Plymouth South Wednesday and host Whitman-Hanson Thursday at 4 p.m.

Senior Deanna Iacobucci returns to lead the pitching staff. She has some experience as the No. 2 pitcher last season behind Kim Walsh, who has graduated.

Seniors Caitlin Dow and Jesse Mann and junior left-hander Kerry Powers will also see their share of innings.

Keough said he's going to carry a core of 11 on the varsity throughout the year and several players will be splitting time between JV and varsity.

"There are some, only because of the positions they play and the numbers we have now, would probably be sitting on the bench," Keough said. "I'd rather have them on the JV team playing and then bring them up for a varsity game.

"You have to play it by ear, too. If it's going to one of the seasons where we're not looking at a lot of success, maybe you play some of the underclassmen a little more."

Defensively, Keough believes the team could develop into a strong unit as the season goes on.

"I think we can be strong defensively," he said. "I think eventually we'll get it worked out. We did pretty well last year defensively when I had the JV's."

Around the infield, freshmen Rebecca Goreham and Catherine Feeney will share time at first base. Seniors Michelle Murray and Kathleen Frawley, a returnee, will play second base.

Junior captain Kellie Barden, another returnee, will man the shortstop position and senior Sarah Kennedy and junior Elizabeth Leary will split time at third base.

Senior Jackie Watkins will be behind the plate. Junior Milynda Mooney will also play in the infield.

Presidents Knock Off Brighton In Opener, 8-2

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School baseball team looked like a squad that had only one practice on a field prior to last Thursday's season opener.

The Presidents showed some offseason rust in the early innings but made several outstanding plays as the game wore on to knock off Brighton, 8-2, at Adams Field.

"I thought we did a very good job for only being out on the field for one day," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "Those kind of mistakes are going to be expected. We're just trying to find out who's going to be playing what positions. We should be in good shape."

Quincy (1-0), which played at Randolph Tuesday, will host Hingham today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. and Braintree Saturday at 11 a.m.

The pitching continued its success from a year ago. Senior ace and quad-captain John Folino went five innings, striking out eight and allowing four hits, no walks and no earned runs. Senior quad-captain Steve Sullivan fanned four of the final six batters to end the game.

"I thought our pitching was effective," Draicchio said. "I think Folino did very well in his first outing. Sully impressed me a lot, too. They combined for 12 strikeouts and no walks."

Quincy committed two errors in the first inning but Folino bailed out his teammates by striking out the side, stranding two runners in scoring position.

In the bottom half, senior quad-captain Steve Priscella and senior Ray Marchand (2-for-3) walked and Sullivan was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Two runs scored when Folino grounded to the second baseman, who made a nice diving stab but threw wildly to first.

Sophomore John Alexander (2-for-4) stroked an RBI single and senior quad-captain John Santon grounded out to knock in the fourth run.

Brighton got into the scoring column in the second inning without a hit as the Presidents made two more errors. Quincy got the run back when Sullivan's bloop single scored Priscella.

In the third, Brighton produced a run on three straight hits. And it could've had another run, but Priscella fired a strike from center field to gun down a runner at the plate by a couple of steps.

"The defensive play Priscella made was outstanding," Draicchio said. "No one would have scored on that. He has a great arm. He came into the season in great shape."

The Presidents took a 6-2 lead in the bottom half when they manufactured a run. Junior Mike MacPherson led off with a bunt single and hustled to third base on Santon's groundout to the right side of the infield. Junior Matt Giordani plated him with a sacrifice fly.

Quincy made another strong defensive play in the fourth by turning a difficult 1-6-3 double play. After giving up a leadoff infield hit, Folino fielded a comebacker, threw to sophomore shortstop Steve Connolly, who quickly flipped the ball over to Sullivan.

Junior John Orlando added an RBI infield single with the bases loaded in the fifth and Sullivan crushed a 380-foot home run to left in the sixth to close out the scoring.

12 Participate In State Track Coaches Clinic

A dozen athletes from the combined Quincy/North Quincy boys' and girls' track teams recently traveled to the Reggie Lewis Center in Roxbury for the annual MSTCA "Do-it" clinic.

Sponsored by the Mass. State Track Coaches Association, 20 clinicians were on hand to work with athletes from novice to state champions. Over 500 athletes attended from all over eastern Massachusetts.

Past and present Olympians included 400 meter sprinter Dee Dee Trotter (University of Tennessee), shot-putter Adam Nelson (Dartmouth), javelin thrower Tom Petranoff (M-F Athletics), Milton's Kate O'Neill (Yale/Quincy Track Club alumna) and Sinead Delahunty (Ireland/Providence College).

Athletes were also given free T-shirts and other prizes courtesy of Bally Total Fitness and M-F Athletics. Vendors from various athletic companies were also on hand to talk to athletes including Marathon Sports, National Scouting Services, NIKE, New Balance and Reebok.

South Shore YMCA Swim Lessons Start April 18

The South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy, will offer swim lessons April 11 to June 18.

Swim lessons are available for all ages as well as water aerobics for adults and seniors. Lifeguarding courses are available for those ages 16 and older.

Registration for lessons starts today (Thursday). All participants ages 3 to 13 must be evaluated prior to registration. Evaluations are also being held today from 4 to 5 p.m. at the YMCA. Class information is available at the front desk.

For more information, contact John Mercurio at 617-479-8500, ext. 107, or Meghan Graves at ext. 108.

Friday Fitness Activities For Seniors Participating In Olympic Games

Seniors throughout Quincy and the South Shore are practicing for the 23rd annual Quincy Senior Olympics to be held in May at Beechwood on the Bay.

Each Friday morning volunteer senior coaches will be at Beechwood to introduce and coach interested seniors in Olympic activities. There is no cost for the Friday fitness activities.

Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals said she's hopeful the "drop in and try" invitation will appeal to many seniors ages 55 and over who have yet to get active with the Olympics.

The Senior Olympics season begins May 4 with traditional senior fitness programming presented by Dr. Wayne Westcott, well known for his work with adults ages 50 and over.

The Senior Olympics will be held May 16-23 with an awards night celebration May 25.

For more information about the Friday fitness activities or the Senior Olympics, call 617-471-5712 or stop by Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

Youth Softball Registration

Quincy Youth Softball will hold spring registration and tryouts Saturday in the Quincy High School gym.

Children ages 10-12 will be at 9 a.m. and ages 13-15 at 10 a.m. A free clinic will follow at 11 a.m.

For more information, call Sandy at 617-786-8523.

Wollaston Sr. Babe Ruth Tryouts

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth for players ages 16-18 will hold tryouts May 7-8 and 14-15 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at O'Rourke Field.

WATER PUMP REPLACEMENT
Because the water pump is the device that pumps the coolant through your vehicle's cooling system, its failure leads the engine to overheat. This is something that you can prevent by trying to anticipate water pump failure. Water pumps fail with some regularity, sometime around 100,000 miles, if not sooner. Water pumps usually fail in one of two ways. Either the bearing for the pump pulley fails or the gasket (or seal) behind the water pump begins to leak. With this in mind, the auto technician will check the pulley for "play" (looseness), which is an indication of bearing failure. A visual check for leaks can also give an indication that a replacement is in order.
Next time you need work done on any system, including its cooling system, bring your car, truck, or SUV into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our highly trained, ASE Certified technicians and our availability of parts will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get you back on the road quickly. A Job Well Done

By SGT. DAN MINTON

On Friday, April 1, at approximately 6:30 p.m., Sgt. Charles Santoro was on duty walking in Wollaston Center when he observed a group of people holding down a man at the corner of Hancock and Beach Streets. Sgt. Santoro quickly approached the crowd and learned that the man being detained was involved in the stabbing of a patron inside the Hancock Tavern.

Sgt. Santoro radioed for additional officers and for an ambulance, then instructed the citizens to hold the suspect while he went into the Tavern to provide first aid to the victim. A citizen identified herself as a nurse and provided direct pressure to stop the bleeding. Sgt. Santoro then went outside, handcuffed the suspect and then secured the crime scene.

SGT. DAN MINTON

Officers Connolly, O'Neil, Simmons, Mitchell, S. Kelly and Joe Lencki responded to Sgt. Santoro's call for help. They assisted Detective Lieutenant Keenan and Detective Walsh in the interviewing of many witnesses and in the investigation of the incident.

Sgt. Santoro gave the suspect his Miranda rights (You have the right to remain silent . . .) and he said that he understood his rights. The suspect stated that he stabbed the man because he (the victim) was George Bush. The suspect's weapon was recovered and taken as evidence for trial. In addition, the Secret Service was notified of the incident because a threat to the President of the United States had occurred.

The job of a police officer is often times routine and mundane. It can also be unpredictable. Sgt. Santoro, like all our officers, immediately applied his training to the situation, which resulted in the arrest of a dangerous, troubled suspect and medical care to the victim.

Special thanks goes out to the citizens involved in the incident. They risked injury to themselves when they detained the suspect for the police. Another citizen, a nurse, came forward and aided the victim until Fallon Ambulance arrived.

Working together resulted in a positive ending to a bad situation. (As of this writing, the victim was expected to survive the three stab wounds.)

Mooring Fees Before Ordinance Committee April 11

The city council's ordinance committee will debate the controversial issue of mooring fees during a meeting Monday, April 11 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers.

Specifically, the committee is expected to take up an amendment proposed by Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi which seeks to give the council input over whether the city can institute a fee for boaters who moor their vessels in Quincy's waters.

At issue is whether the city's Harbormaster, Andrew Ayer, should institute a few without council approval.

Raymondi has criticized the idea, saying one individual should not have total control over fees.

Ayer said he is simply following a directive handed down by the state Inspector General's office, which ruled that the city is not properly controlling moorings within its waters.

The costs associated with a mooring program could approach $100,000 annually, according to Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide.

SWAP Earns Property Tax For Seniors

The Council on Aging has a SWAP (Senior Workers' Abatement Program) that enable the elderly to work 89 1/2 hours a year and earn a $60 abatement on their real estate taxes.

For further details, call Dorothy Dow at 617-376-1508.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be upset about having to deal with problems that are no fault of your own. But you can turn the annoyance into an asset by showing how quickly and how well you can resolve them.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's fondness for tidiness pays off when you untangle a situation that seems hopelessly snarled. You might later be surprised to learn who will be expressing his or her gratitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you can tackle your assignment the way you prefer, it might be a good idea to at least ask for suggestions. Who knows? One or two might even turn out to be helpful.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Make all the changes in your plans or proposals that you feel are necessary before — repeat — before you submit them to your colleagues. You'll come off looking more decisive that way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel a mite intimidated in a new environment, be it a job, a classroom or meeting the future in-laws. But enter with a big smile, and everyone will see you as a real take-charge Cat.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This could be a romantic time for you if you can set aside your cynicism and let yourself believe that someone really cares. If you're already in a relationship, expect your partner to LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to shed any doubts about your abilities. You've proved yourself in the past, so why not accept that you'll do just as well, or better, in dealing with the new challenge ahead?

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your suspicions might be on the mark, but unless you can prove what you assume, you need to exercise that Scorpion discretion and let events unfold without your assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful not to go over the top this week. Avoid overeating (especially of the wrong foods), or drinking too much, or working too hard. You can do it all, but in moderation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A family matter is given to you to resolve because you have the gift for bringing quarrelsome kinfolk together. But while you're playing Dr. Phil, don't neglect your career obligations.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone of importance shares your goals but disagrees with your plan to achieve them. Never mind. Defending your methods with logic and facts earns you admiration and respect.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Consider getting away, perhaps for the weekend, despite all the demands made on your time and energies. You'll return refreshed and ready to tackle it all with your usual finesse.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a sense of honesty that makes people believe and trust in you.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said: "Faith is not a substitute for thought, but the basis for thinking." Faith is taking our doubts into consideration and rendering a verdict in favor of belief.

Because one has faith does not mean he cannot question or doubt. The person who has some doubts rolling around in his mind will be learning, experiencing and discovering new and better things. Doubts can cause one to come upon exciting beliefs and truths.

Faith or belief is an instrument of vast power ready for us to use. It is true that we can have almost anything we believe we can have. Something seems to happen to a man when he gets the idea of achievement into his mind and holds it there. Successful businessmen are usually those who over the years have firmly believed in their ultimate success. Inventors are men who press toward a goal, confident that they can achieve it. Columbus had faith that there was a new world beyond the western horizon. By his belief he lad hold on that new world.

"All things are possible to them that believe."...

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. (Make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Thank you for all your mercy to me and mine Amen. Say this prayer 3 consecutive days and after that the request will be granted. The prayer must be published. B M 4/7

Broad Meadows Students Participating In 'Big Bones Bash'

In an effort to bring attention to the importance of calcium nutrition, Broad Meadows Middle School students will participate in the Cabot Calcium Challenge on Saturday, April 9 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Boston Children's Museum.

During the "Big Bones Bash," students will create exhibits which will be judged on the power of persuasion, creativity and the relevance of the message.

Twenty seven students are expected to display their projects.

The event is sponsored by the Cabot Creamery Cooperative.

Fire Department Gets Two New Pumpers

Mayor William Phelan and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell announce the Quincy Fire Department has received shipment of two new fire engines that were purchased as part of the City of Quincy's capital investment bond.

The two new fire pumpers, which will be stationed at the Quincy Center and West Quincy stations, cost a total $599,999.

The two new pumpers are state-of-the-art rescue fire pumpers with custom tilt cabs and have climate control for firefighter rehabilitation and safety. The pumpers have 500 gallons of water storage and a 1,500 gallon per minute pump. LED lighting has been installed for improved safety and each engine will carry an extrication system (Jaws of Life).

"We are thrilled to provide our fire department with two new engines to help improve their safety and the safety of our residents," Phelan said. "Under the direction of Chief O'Connell, we have invested in state-of-the-art equipment and vehicles that will replace engines that are more than 20 years old. I hope that we can continue to work with the fire department to make improvements to equipment and fire stations in the coming year."

The City Council passed Phelan's bond initiative that called for $5 million in capital outlay investments. In addition to new fire engines, the city is repairing schools, municipal buildings and purchasing equipment for the Council on Aging, Public Works and Park Departments.

"Capital improvements are long overdue in our city and we will work to make sure that our schools and public buildings are repaired and that our vehicles are reliable and safe," Phelan said. "I am confident that our effort will improve the services and facilities provided to our taxpayers."

From Quincy District Court

Susan Hart Recognized As Outstanding Probation Officer

Susan Hart, a Quincy District Court probation officer, was recently recognized as an outstanding probation officer during a State House ceremony.

Hart has been employed as a probation officer for seven years and is known for her commitment to the profession.

"She approaches her job with dedication, diligence and professionalism," said Probation Commissioner John J. O'Brien.

This is the third such annual recognition of probation employees in the Commonwealth.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR — Francis X. McCauley, City Council president and former mayor, receives The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award for a 32-year distinguished political career from Sun publisher Henry Bosworth (right) and Editor Robert Bosworth at a reception Sunday at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

For Outstanding Community Service

Frank McCauley Honored As 'Sun Citizen Of Year'

Francis X. McCauley was honored Sunday as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for a distinguished 32-year public service career built on a foundation of honesty, integrity and history.

More than 100 guests — including three mayors, the entire city council, other officials, three generations of the McCauley family and friends — were present as he received the 20th annual award for outstanding community service at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

He was selected for the honor from among 44 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

McCauley is completing the 32nd and final year of his political career, the only person in the city's history to be elected to all four municipal offices: mayor (8 years), councillor at-large (12 years), ward councillor (4 years) and school committee (8 years).

McCauley, the city's 30th mayor, served four terms 1982 to 1990.

"During his four terms as mayor," Sun publisher Henry Bosworth said, "Frank established a reputation as a tight-fisted, no-nonsense chief executive and as a fiscal watchdog during his 16 years in the City Council.

"The name Frank McCauley and the words 'honesty' and 'integrity' just seem to be a perfect match.

"I am sure all of us here today will agree he is going to be a tough act to follow."

Bosworth presented McCauley with a clock plaque inscribed: "To Francis X. McCauley For Outstanding Community Service. In a distinguished public service career of 32 years in which he has served his beloved native city with dedication and integrity as Mayor, City Council President, City Councillor at-Large, Ward Councillor and School Committeeman and for his charitable and civic causes."

Those charitable causes include six 26.2 mile Jimmy Fund Marathon Walks in which he personally raised $34,000. And, to date, donating 16 gallons of blood to the American Red Cross South Area.

Sun editor Robert Bosworth presented McCauley with a framed special Page One of The Sun highlighting his selection for the award and including the names of the other 43 nominees and members of the judging panel. Extra copies were presented to those attending.

Mayor William Phelan had this tribute to McCauley's character:

"When Frank is with you on a vote, he is with you and when he is against you he's going to tell you exactly the way it is. And when you try to change his mind, Sandra will always tell you 'I'm the only person on earth that can change Frank McCauley's mind.'

"Frank's greatest success is his family. He has a wonderful family who

Some Concerns Over 15-Story Buildings

Downtown Plan Gets Public Boost

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan's plan to breathe new life into Quincy Center has received a shot in the arm from the public.

More than 100 residents, business owners and interested parties packed the city council chambers on Monday night to chime in on the mayor's ambitious rezoning initiative. By a 3-1 margin, supporters of the proposal outnumbered those in opposition, placing the rezoning initiative on the fast track for approval later this month.

The general public got its first chance to register input on a proposal that one councillor called "one of the most significant ordinance changes this city has ever seen." It would change zoning rules downtown to allow for taller buildings, more residential development and a streamlined regulatory process.

Boundaries of the new downtown zoning district include Burgin Parkway, Dimmock St., Washington St., School St. and Elm St., as well as areas along Coddington St. past Faxon Field.

The rezoning initiative is one of several steps in Phelan's larger plan to attract development in Quincy Center.

Some key provisions of the new zoning district include:

• Lifting height restrictions to allow buildings to extend 15 stories.

• New density and parking guidelines that will encourage more residential development with retail space on the ground level of buildings.

• Limits on lot sizes to promote consolidation of property and to ensure that larger developments are restricted to big land lots.

• A streamlined permit-granting process that makes the city planning board the main authority for granting development permits downtown.

Although the proposals received generally positive feedback, some residents took exception with the city's move to increase the cap on the height of buildings to 15 stories.

But overall, those in attendance liked what they saw and heard from city officials.

James Moran, senior vice president of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, called Phelan's proposal a "long overdue change for the decades."

Maralin Manning, director of the Quincy Business Association, urged the council to act swiftly on the measure.

"It's very important that we do whatever we can and

Council Wants Update On Capital Improvements

The city council wants a status report from city officials regarding a $10 million capital improvement plan that includes several construction and repair projects for city-owned buildings.

At Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin's request, the council has asked DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell to provide an update on portions of the project, including reconstruction and repairs to several schools, police and fire stations, city hall, DPW headquarters and libraries. O'Donnell and city officials will provide an overview of their efforts at next Tuesday's city council meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

"The taxpayers want to know where their money is being spent, and when the council agrees to appropriate $10 million on various projects it is incumbent upon us to provide them with a status report," said Coughlin. "Apart from that, I have some specific concerns about certain projects that I feel are important, and whether or not they have been executed."

Last year, the council signed off on Mayor William Phelan's request for a $10 million bond, which includes roughly $2 million in funds for capital improvements.

Approximately $3 million was appropriated to the city's Information Technology Department for the development, design, purchase and installation of computer hardware and software and other capital equipment, according to the Coughlin.

A large portion of the funds are also going to fund the city's pavement management plan.

Board Rejects ABCC Decision On Package Store License Revocation

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

When the License Board Tuesday heard Assistant City Solicitor Atty.. Robert Quinn read a decision by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) regarding the revocation of Allan Dinh's beer and wine license at his package store Juliano's, they voted unanimously to reject their decision.

At the end of last year, following three violations in 15 months of selling liquor to minors, the License Board voted to revoke the license immediately.

Dinh went to the Superior Court and asked them to overturn the board's decision. They refused his request. Dinh then appealed to the ABCC . Their decision, Quinn said would issue a suspension, rather than revocation, thus allowing him able to transfer the license to someone else —a bonafied third party but not at the present location on Hancock St.

Quinn said the ABCC recommended that the board would have the ability to either allow their decision or reimpose the revocation made last December, 2004.

That's when Police Chief Robert Crowley after hearing the decision said that the three violations in 15 months occured, and then made the motion to reject the ABCC recommendation, and revoke the license at Juliano's.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele seconded the motion and the board voted unanimously in favor of the revocation.

Quinn said after the meeting that Dinh could appeal to the ABCC if he chooses to.

During the eight weeks of training, the soldier received training in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, physical fitness, first aid, and Army history, core values and traditions.

Additional training included development of basic combat skills and battlefield operations and tactics, and experiencing use of various weapons and weapons defenses available to the infantry crewman.

Reid is the grandson of Linda Reid of Kendrick Ave., Quincy.

Sgt. Hutchins New Recruiter

Staff Sgt. Kevin Hutchins has been assigned to the U. S. Army Recruiting Station in Quincy as a recruiter. He previously was stationed at Fort Lee, Va., where he served with the military police. Other assignments have included a tour of duty at Fort Wainwright, Alaska.

Workshop Highlights Skin Health

More than 70 local nurses and health care educators gathered in Quincy last Friday to raise awareness about the dangers of skin cancer.

Held at the Adams Academy Building, home of the Quincy Historical Society, the third annual Nurse and Health Educator Workshop featured a wide array of guests offering advice and expertise on the topic of skin cancer. This is the first time it was held in Quincy.

Mayor William Phelan kicked off Friday's day-long event with a brief talk about the importance of educating the general public regarding the dangers of skin cancer.

Attendees heard about several issues related to skin cancer, including a review of typical and atypical types of melanoma. Health care professionals also explored strategies utilized in teaching children sun protection.

Health care professionals reviewed tanning regulations designed to protect the consumer and analyzed public health issues related to indoor tanning.

Those in attendance also heard from individuals who have dealt with skin cancer and learned about the emotional ramifications associated with having melanoma.

The event was sponsored by the Sun Protection Foundation, the Melanoma Education Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

MORE THAN 70 nurses and healthcare professionals attended the day-long workshop, which was sponsored by the Sun Protection Foundation, the Melanoma Education Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

Committee Votes 8-0 In Favor

Council Takes Control Over Mooring Fees

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city council will have the ability to scuttle mooring fees.

At Monday night's ordinance committee meeting, the council voted 8-0 in favor of giving itself greater control over whether the city can institute a mooring fee for boaters who moor their vessels in Quincy's waters. Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis was not present for the vote.

The city council is expected to pass the measure at next Tuesday's meeting.

At issue was whether the city's Harbormaster, Andrew Ayer, could institute a fee without council approval. But Ward 2 Councillor Dan

DAN RAYMONDI

Raymondi amended the proposal, giving the council the authority to quash a mooring fee.

Quincy remains one of the only coastal communities in Massachusetts without a mooring fee.

Raymondi said he was unaware of any fees that are implemented without council approval, and a mooring fee should be no different.

Raymondi criticized Ayer's move to forge ahead with a mooring fee, saying an "unelected, appointed official" should not have the authority to implement such a plan.

But Ayer said the city is following a directive handed down by the state Inspector General's office, which ruled that the city is not properly controlling moorings within its waters. A mooring fee would go a long way in raising funds to pay for the mooring program, said Ayer.

The costs associated with instituting the program could approach $100,000 annually, according to Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's director of operations.

Ayer said a vast majority of boaters who moor their vessels in Quincy do not live in the city.

State Senate Recognizes Mass. Civilian Conservation Corp

State Sen. Michael Morrissey recently welcomed members of the Civilian Conservation Corp and Quincy resident Francis Derwin, president of the Massachusetts Chapter, to the State House to celebrate the Corps 71st Anniversary.

The Massachusetts Chapter #60 of the Civilian Conservation Corp recognized the men who were honorably discharged as members of the Massachusetts Conservation Corp and a member who then went on to train at the Gallups Island Radio School and served as a merchant seaman of its members. Many operators perished at sea during World War II.

Each year an individual is recognized for his outstanding dedication to the Corp. This year, Francis Derwin was honored during a ceremony held at the Senate where he received a certificate of appreciation from Morrissey and Senate President Robert Travaglini.

Work Begins This Week On Wollaston Beach Rehab

Some minor road and drainage work is expected to begin this week in preparation for the start of the Wollaston Beach Rehabilitation project, according to a spokesperson for the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA).

The Wollaston Beach rehabilitation project entails many improvements and upgrades, including drainage work, improved traffic signalization, new water fountains, upgraded pedestrian crossings, a tot lot and re-sanding of the beach, according to Corbie Kump, EOEA spokesperson.

The project is expected to be completed in the fall of 2006, she said.

Do you have an adjustable rate mortgage or home equity loan?

Will you be able to afford your payment when rates start going up? Lots of people have gone with adjustable rate loans because they could "buy more house" or just because the rates were so low. But rates are starting to move up now. In fact, short-term rates went up more than a point over the past few months. Fed watchers say they'll be going up again soon. Did you always plan to switch to a fixed-rate loan before rates went up? Then we should talk. At Colonial Federal Savings Bank, we can make it very easy for you to convert to a fixed-rate loan. And fixed rates are still hovering near 50-year lows. Is that adjustable rate loan starting to make you nervous? Come see us. Or call 617-471-0750.

Injury Sidelines Dolores

Dolores Finn trained hard for Monday's Boston Marathon.

A little too hard, apparently.

She won't be running in it. She's sidelined with a training injury.

DOLORES FINN

Dolores, who is 40 and the wife of City Councillor Joseph Finn, was gung-ho to run her very first marathon for a worthy cause: helping to find homes for special needs children.

She spent a good part of the winter sprinting around Quincy in cold and snow training for the big day.

Then, in mid-February, it happened.

On a 16-mile practice run, she suffered a stress facture of the femur in her left leg.

She finished the run, thinking it was probably a muscle strain.

Later it was determined a stress fracture.

At the end of February, Dolores, still determined to run in the marathon, resumed training on an eliptical machine at the Quincy Athletic Club, continuing until a week ago hoping her leg would heal in time.

But it hasn't.

"I'm really disappointed," she says. "I wanted to run and finish that marathon. Now I guess I'll be watching it on television."

She walks with a little limp and says "If I chase after one of the kids, it stirs it up."

She ran some 350 training miles before the injury.

"I made it through most of the winter and now with the good weather I can't run," she laments.

But she's optimistic the injury will soon be fully healed.

"I think in another month I will be able to run again," she says.

And training for next year's marathon.

Dolores had a charity entry slot in this year's marathon, running to help raise funds for the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange, a private non-profit agency that finds homes for special needs children.

But there is good news.

The BAA and MARE have both granted her a deferment to run in next year's marathon.

And more good news.

Dolores' goal was to raise $2,500 for MARE which specializes in finding homes for harder to place children with physical, emotional, educational needs and especially trying to keep siblings together in the same house.

Even though she's not running this year, Dolores raised $6,000 in donations for MARE.

"People have been so supportive with donations and notes of encouragement," she says.

The $6,000 represents some 200 people with the average donation $25 and the high $250.

Adoption and foster child care have been an important part of the Finn home where there are seven children: Four are their own: James, 12; Conall, 10; Michael, 7; and Kevin, 5.

The fifth is Ty, 4, a former foster child the Finns took in and later adopted. And there are two foster children, a seven-month-old boy and a 19-month-old girl who are Ty's siblings.

Dolores and Joe hope to adopt the girl this summer and the boy within the year to keep the two brothers and sister together.

Anyone wishing to help the cause still can by making a check payable to MARE and mailing it to Dolores at 15 Williams St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Dolores also has a personal page website www.justgiving.com/plp/finn. She will be sending out a letter on it thanking all who have donated and encouraged her.

Like the 98-year-old Quincy woman who just the other day sent Dolores a $25 donation and a note encouraging her.

She said she was the eldest of 16 children – 10 boys and six girls.

And obviously appreciating what Dolores – with seven children in her home – is trying to do to help find homes for special needs youngsters.

Dolores can't run in this year's marathon. She's determined she'll be at the starting line next year.

Meanwhile, she has already helped at least one special child somewhere.

'Angels Across America' To Visit Historic Hancock Cemetery Conservation Project

Adams National Historic Park and the City of Quincy, in partnership with the Architecture Specialty Group of the American Institute of Conservation (AIC), will present "Angels Across America: Conservators Caring for our Architectural Heritage" at historic Hancock Cemetery Saturday, April 23, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Rain date is Sunday, April 24.

The Hancock Cemetery project is part of regional volunteer conservation projects taking place in local communities across the country, all coordinated by the Architecture Specialty Group, on the same weekend of April 23-24.

Volunteers from the Architecture Specialty Group, City of Quincy and Adams National Historic Park are working on a conservation project in the Hancock Cemetery to carry out stabilization treatments on gravestones and to raise awareness of the field of architectural conservation.

Visitors will see professional conservators up-righting several gravestones, applying protective coatings to bronze plaques and capping gravestones that have skyward facing fissures. Staff from the Adams National Historic Park will direct visitors and answer questions regarding the cemetery.

Listed on the National Register, the Hancock Cemetery dates from the 1630s and was Quincy's main burial ground until 1854. The cemetery graves include multiple generations of the Adams and Quincy families, the Rev. John Hancock, veterans of the American Revolution, War of 1812 and the Civil War.

Mayor William Phelan noted the historical significance of the cemetery and expressed hope that this is the first step toward the preservation of the Hancock Cemetery and monuments.

"Thousands of people pass by this location every day on foot, by car and train without realizing the great history resting in these hallowed burial grounds," Phelan said. "I hope that through the cooperative effort of the Architecture Specialty Group, National Park Service and our Cemetery Department we can combine resources to realize some much needed repairs and improvements to protect this historic site."

Art Association To Hold Classes

The Quincy Art Association will hold spring art classes for adults and children during the week of April 18 and summer classes during July and August.

Central PTO Offers Two Scholarships

The Central Middle School PTO is offering two $250 book award scholarships to high school seniors who graduated from Central Middle School and plan to continue their educations.

Applications are available at the school office and when completed should be submitted to Principal Jennifer A. Fay, Central Middle School, 1012 Hancock St., Quincy. Deadline is Friday, May 13.

Winners will be chosen at the May 19 PTO meeting. Recipients will be notified by mail.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the Wollaston Yacht Club in Quincy Bay. In 1898 several members of the Squantum Yacht Club who were temperance advocates broke away and formed the new Wollaston club where no alcohol would be served. Quincy was "dry" at the time but alcohol was served in some private clubs. They built their clubhouse on the shore near the end of Beach Street. A few years later when the Wollaston Boulevard was built along Quincy's shore the building had to be moved out of the way. Pilings were driven just offshore and the clubhouse was floated out on a high tide. The two towers and a new porch were added to the building as shown in this view. The club grew quickly and they soon removed the towers and put a substantial addition on this end of the clubhouse. Then in 1948 the entire building was destroyed by fire. Only the pilings and a small portion of the expanded portion survived. Now, over 50 years later, that small-unburned part of the clubhouse, not present in this view, along with the old pilings, is all that exists here. Spring Is Here -- Do Your Part To Clean Quincy

Spring is here and trash is everywhere that was previously covered by snow. Citizens of Quincy need to do their part and pick up every piece of trash around their home. This includes trash on the sidewalk and street in front of their house. If each person did their part, Quincy would be so much cleaner.

Leaves and anything that was from a living object may remain on the ground. It will recycle into the environment. It is the wrappers, plastics, paper, Styrofoam, metals, cardboard and cigarette butts that we need to pick up.

Don't wait for the street cleaner to pick up some of the trash on the street. We individuals can do a much better job. Let's be proud of our neighborhoods and keep them clean. Some trash may be recyclable. Simply place it in your blue bin for the weekly pickup. Give a hoot, stop the pollute.

Concerned About The Quincy Of Tomorrow

The city of Quincy has changed over the years. I find Quincy politics quite interesting. Demographics has brought changes to the city. Taxes are high. City services seem adequate. The city does the best it can.

We have problems trying to build a new high school. Mired in politics hasn't helped. Housing costs grow higher. Rents soar. Parking gets tight. We used to be a working-class family community. That seems to be changing as working families get priced out of the housing market. The tax burden on the middle class increases the rate folks leave town for more affordable environments.

What kind of a city are we today? What kind of a city do we wish to be tomorrow? City Clerk Joe Shea says Quincy's population is growing. Soon we will hit the 90,000 mark. Bigger isn't always better. Sometimes less is more and less is better.

What kind of downtown district shall we have? The powers that be at City Hall have seemingly attached themselves to this SmartGrowth policy of the Romney Administration. Building new housing around MBTA commuter stops. Quincy is talking about allowing buildings to grow taller along Quincy Center and Hancock Street. Putting housing above retail stores. Attracting folks from Boston to move here by taking the Red Line to Quincy Center station. Attracting businesses to follow the people.

Zoning will be changed. Tax breaks will be given. Come to the new downtown Quincy district. Shop here. Live here. Spend your money here. Works here. Come here.

Meanwhile, the band seems to play on for the city's neighborhoods and retail districts like Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Center. Neighborhoods are getting both more crowded and more impersonal. People come and people go. High rents create more moving trucks. Who is your neighbor changes all the time. Twenty years ago when Quincy was smaller and more working class, people knew each other. Nobody knows each other now or even cares to know.

Quincy should be more than SmartGrowth, it should be about smart living. We need politicians working to bring people together as the city becomes more diverse. Things seem to be working. Despite the pols.

SmartGrowth in downtown Quincy could actually have a negative impact on affordable housing. Look at all the luxury condos and apartments going up in and around the city. Sea Street is starting to look like Manhattan. We build, build, build. More is better for developers but what about the people? Soon Quincy will be the city of the very rich and the very poor. The rest of us caught in a squeeze play at second base. Downtown Quincy can't go back to 1960 but wherever it is going, it better not forget working families.

What is Quincy today? What do we want for it tomorrow? Questions which need to be answered. The future needs good schools and affordable housing. Is that our future? Will SmartGrowth get us there?

What we do today will decide the Quincy of tomorrow. Think wisely and keep our quality of life strong. Otherwise the Quincy Concourse when built will be just another road out of town.

'Irregularities' Probe Asked By Councillors

This Week
1965
40 Years Ago

City Council President Joseph J. LaRaia and Councillor Francis X. McCauley asked Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to investigate what they called "reported irregularities" at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

They suggested that the mayor "determine the necessity of the statistician having the use of a city-owned car and the use of a home phone being paid for by the city."

TO STUDY BRETT DAM

The Metropolitan District Commission requested that a proposal by Rep. Joseph E. Brett (D-Quincy) for a dam and locks on the Neponset River be referred to an engineering study.

John J. Beades, executive assistant to MDC Commissioner Howard Whitmore, said the MDC generally favors the idea of developing the river but would like to see the dam in a different location.

Brett proposed that the dam be built at the site of the railroad bridge while the MDC thought it should be a mile downstream at Commercial Point.

School-Community Partnership Nets $22,000 In Winter Concert

More than 800 people attended the third annual winter concert of the Quincy School-Community Partnership at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel that raised $22,000 for the Quincy Public Schools.

The concert feature "Stayin' Alive," a tribute to the Bee Gees, as the audience sang and danced to their favorite Bee Gees numbers including "Massachusetts" "Stayin' Alive", "Words" and "To Love Somebody."

The event also featured a silent auction with bidding on premium Celtics' tickets, a one year membership to the YMCA, a weekend at Loon Mountain and a night at the Marriott Hotel.

The monies raised by the winter concert and other events during the year serve the school system through teacher minigrants and classroom instructional technology initiatives.

Some of the other events include an Evening at the Pops with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, the annual Historical Walk for Education, a golf tournament, and the Trick or Treat Trot Road Race and Family Walk.

Quincy Homestead To Open Patriot's Day With Free Tours

The Quincy Homestead will open for the season on Patriots' Day, Monday, April 18.

Tours will be given free of charge to the public from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tours will be offered on the hour starting at 11:10 a.m.

The Homestead, which has just been designated a National Historic Landmark, dates from 1686 and represents the evolution of over 300 years of American architecture. During the 17th and 18th centuries, this mansion was considered the grandest estate in Quincy.

Today it serves as one of the rare Massachusetts examples in which the elements of a 17th century building are still clearly visible although they have been surrounded by a later style.

Leading up to the American Revolution, the Homestead was a meeting place for many American patriots such as John Adams and John Hancock. It was also the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock the first First Lady of Massachusetts, the wife of John Hancock, who was the president of the Second Continental Congress, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the first governor of the Commonwealth.

For more information, visit the Homestead's website: www.nscda.org/ma/quincy_homestead.

Quincy's Beth Canterbury Featured In South Shore Conservatory Concert

Quincy resident and vocalist Beth Canterbury will appear in the South Shore Conservatory's "Dazzling Divi", a blend of classical, opera and show tunes, Friday, April 15 at 8 p.m. at the Ellison Center for the Arts in Duxbury.

Canterbury, soprano, is a member of the Conservatory's voice faculty.

The concert will also feature Voice Department Chairperson Beth MacLeod, faculty members Furong Gardner and Tom Oesterling, and guest artists Bob Engel, baritone, and song and aria competition winner Shane Donovan.

The music of Mozart, Handel, Brahms and Faure, as well as arias and duets from Carmen, The Barber of Seville, Rigoletto and Tales of Hoffman, and selections from West Side Story, Annie Get Your Gun, and Les Miserables highlight the evening.

Canterbury has performed in the concert hall and the operatic stage. She is a graduate of Kenyon College in Ohio, and received her master of science in opera performance from the Longy School of Music.

Most recently Canterbury performed Handel's Messiah, Haydn's Nelsonmesse, and Rutter's Magnificat.

An educator and advocate for accessible opera performance, she made her official directing debut as the assistant director for Opera by the Bay's 2003 production of Amahl and the Night Visitors, and shortly thereafter was named Opera by the Bay associate director.

Tickets for Dazzling Divi, at $15 for adults and $12 for students and seniors, may be purchased through the Conservatory offices, 781-749-7565, ext. 10 in Hingham, and 781-934-2731, ext. 10 in Duxbury. Conservatory students are admitted for free.

Mastercard and Visa are accepted.

For more information, call Beth MacLeod, 781-934-2731, ext. 30.

Blue Cheese Potatoes Au Gratin

I think almost everyone likes potatoes whether baked, fried, scalloped or otherwise. The recipe I have used today for making potatoes au gratin seldom varies, but last week I prepared it with Gorgonzola cheese (blue cheese) and it has become a favorite.

First of all, I like to par boil my potatoes instead of using them raw although both ways work, but my way cooks quicker.

I used prepared crushed blue cheese, but a hunk of gorgonzola works fine.

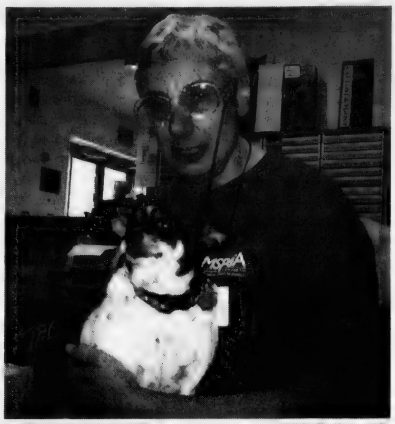
Blue Cheese Potatoes Au Gratin
4 or 5 potatoes
two tablespoons margarine (or butter)
1 cup milk
two tablespoons flour
salt and pepper
8 ounces Gorgonzola or blue cheese

Par boil the potatoes. Cool and slice about a quarter inch thick.

While they are cooking, make a basic cream sauce melting the margarine, adding the flour and then the milk. Whisk until smooth. Set aside.

In a slightly greased baking dish, begin by layering the potatoes, the cream sauce and a sprinkle of the blue cheese. Continue and then top the dish with the rest of the cream sauce and more blue cheese.

Bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for about 25 to 30 minutes until bubbly. If using raw potatoes, it will naturally have to cook longer. Also, if you want to make more of this recipe, you will have to add more blue cheese, and make more cream sauce.



In Animal Care, Adoption Center

Quincy Woman Does Doggone Good for MSPCA

For the past twelve years, Joan Aspessi has risen at 6 AM every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, fed her pets, and walked to the Quincy Center MBTA station to take the train to the MSPCA-Angell in Jamaica Plain.

Aspessi is a veteran volunteer in the MSPCA's Animal Care and Adoption Center. In fact, she is the longest-serving volunteer that the MSPCA has ever seen. And having missed only a handful of days over the past decade, she is certainly one of the most dedicated.

A life-long animal lover, Aspessi, 55, turned to the MSPCA after retiring from a career with the telephone company.

LIFE-LONG ANIMAL lover Joan Aspessi holds Bella, a 10-year Chihauhua, in the Adoption Center of the MSPCA. Bella and others like her needs a home.

"I had pets my entire life and wanted to find a way to work with animals when I retired," said Aspessi. "I showed up at the MSPCA to see if I could lend a hand and I never left."

She does more than just lend a hand.

A jack of all trades, Aspessi does everything from walking and feeding the animals, to dishes, laundry, paperwork and of course, showering the animals with TLC. She also helps potential adopters find just the right pet for their lifestyle.

"We couldn't get through our mornings without her," says Laura Gretch, MPSCA Project Coordinator. "She is more than a volunteer. She's part of our staff, part of the MSPCA family."

Since childhood, Aspessi has always had a dog. However, since she began volunteering, her "family" has grown significantly. She now has a dog, a cat and five birds, with plans to adopt more — a hazard of the job that she says is hard to avoid.

"It's difficult to see animals in the shelter for an extended period of time," she says. "The goal is for every pet to find a permanent happy home. That's why I'm here."

The MSPCA staff relies on people like Aspessi to keep the organization humming. Even more importantly, the animals in the shelter rely on people like her for companionship and care in what can be an otherwise scary and lonely environment. The seven MSPCA adoption centers across the state take in more than 40,000 animals every year. They run an open door policy, meaning no animal is turned away for any reason. Each animal that comes into the shelter is evaluated by the staff for health and behavior issues before being put up for adoption. On any given day, there are dozens of dogs, cats and other small animals awaiting homes in the MSPCA Adoption Center in Jamaica Plain.

"This is the most rewarding thing I've ever been a part of," says Aspessi. "There's no better feeling than seeing an animal leave the adoption center with a new family."

After 12 years, will Aspessi be retiring from the MSPCA anytime soon?

"Not a chance," she says. "I hope to be here another twelve, at least."

Interested in supporting the MSPCA Adoption Center? You can contribute to Spikes Fund, which covers the cost of medical care for homeless pets waiting to be adopted.

Donations can be sent to Spikes Fund, ATTN: Laura Gretch, MSPCA-Boston, 350 South Huntington Avenue, Boston, MA 02130 or online at www.mspca.org/spike.

For more information on Spikes Fund or volunteering, call 617-541-5083 or visit mspca.org.

Photo Contest To Send Kilroy Around The World Once More

Once his graffiti was spotted in the Imperial Palace in Tokyo and other unlikely places around the globe where America's fighting men and women gathered during World War II.

Now, Discover Quincy, the USS Salem and The Quincy Sun would like to see how far the expression "Kilroy Was Here!" can go in these days when American boys and girls are fighting abroad again.

They are sponsoring photo contest aimed at sending the catch-phrase from its birthplace right here in Quincy around the world once more, only this time the Imperial Palace may be out of bounds.

This week's issue of The Quincy Sun includes a special "Kilroy Was Here!" flyer that vacationers from Quincy and others can take with them in their travels and photograph in famous locations.

The flyer is also available on line a www.whereiskilroy.com a n d www.discoverquincy.com.

"It's amazing to think that 60 years ago — long before television, cell phones and the internet made global communication a breeze — the phrase 'Kilroy Was Here' traveled the world, becoming a global phenomenon," said Jennifer Logue, executive director of Discover Quincy.

"With the help of local residents, we hope to send Kilroy around the world again while raising awareness of the special role the phrase played in the Allied war effort."

The Kilroy photo contest is scheduled to run throughout the spring and summer months and is one of a series of events designed to raise the awareness that the Kilroy legend was born in Quincy's Fore River Shipyard.

James J. Kilroy, you'll recall, was an inspector of rivets at the Yard during the war who chalked "Kilroy Was Here!" beside the rivets he counted so they would not be counted twice by unscrupulous riveters who were paid by piecework.

Discover Quincy, the USS Salem and The Quincy Sun are also holding an essay contest addressing the them "What 'Kilroy Was Here' Means to Me."

The essay contest will be conducted in three age divisions — children in grades 4 to 7 and 8 to 12 and an open division for adults. Prizes will be awarded to the winners during the USS Salem's anniversary celebration Sunday, May 15.

Entries may be mailed to "Kilroy Was Here' Essay Contest, c/o The USS Salem, 739 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169 or emailed to kilroy@usssalem.org. They must be postmarked by April 30.

For more information on both the photo and essay contests, call Jennifer Logue at 617-657-0527 or Michael Condon at 6617-479-7900. Information is also available online at www.discoverquincy.com or www.whereiskilroy.com.

Students Explore Career Opportunities In Health Care

QMC Hosts Job Shadow Day For QHS Students

Ten Quincy High School students recently stepped outside of the classroom and into their future career paths, during an annual Job Shadow Day at Quincy Medical Center.

The students - juniors and senior students with the Quincy High School Center for Technical Education - spent the morning "shadowing" QMC clinicians/staff in the following areas: nursing, pharmacy, radiology, nutrition, occupational therapy, patient registration, radiology, maintenance and engineering, and security.

QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER Dietitian Suzanne Russell-Curtis, RD, LDN, CDE shared her experience with Quincy High School student Erin Scannell.

In its third year, the annual Job Shadow Day is designed to shed light on the many possibilities in health care. In addition to the annual Job Shadow Day, QMC provides a clinical training site for nearly 70 junior and senior-level students, each week.

Junior-level students rotate through clerical positions for exposure to the many different departments at QMC.

While senior-level students, who have earned certification as a nursing assistant, intern two to three days per week in QMC's patient care areas.

QMC is one of the oldest partners of the Quincy Public Schools and has shaped the careers of more than 1,000 students over the past 20 years.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services.

The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community. At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine, and psychiatry. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work with community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

LARISSA DOS SANTOS learned the "ins & outs" of nursing from QMC Nurse Kristen Curtin, RN.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead Named Historic Landmark

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, one of Quincy's often overlooked historic treasures, has been designated a National Historic Landmark, it has been announced by the National Park Service.

The 319-year-old house at the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road was recognized as a "nationally significant property of exceptional value in representing or illustrating an important theme, event or person in the history of the nation."

The colonial estate was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy, the bride of the patriot John Hancock, who was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence as well as the first governor of Massachusetts.

Still etched in a window pane are the words "You I Love and You Alone," addressed to Dorothy and scratched there by Hancock with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the American Revolution.

"This is a very exciting moment," said Ethel Hamann, president of the National Society of Colonial Dames in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which maintains the interior and offers tours of the state-owned property.

"The Quincy Homestead has been a special place to the Dames ever since 1904, when they helped to save the house. This special designation will help to protect the Quincy Homestead and make it easier to apply for grants to preserve this special treasure."

The colonial estate, parts of which date to 1686, was home to five generations of the Quincy family, whose descendants include President John Quincy Adams and Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes. Another Quincy, John, gave his name to the city.

In the years leading up to the Revolution, the Quincy Homestead was a popular meeting place for Hancock, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and other patriots.

"This designation is a long time coming," said Mayor William Phelan, who wrote a letter to the National Park System Advisory Board supporting it.

"The Quincy Homestead is a historically significant property that illustrates the pivotal role the sons and daughters of Quincy played in the founding of our nation."

Congressman Bill Delahunt said he is "pleased that the U. S. Park Service has recognized what many of us in Quincy knew long ago —that the Homestead is an historic, architectural gem that showcases three centuries of local craftsmanship — and is well worth visiting and saving.

"Whether you're a patriot of preservationist, the Homestead offers something for everyone."

In its announcement, the National Park Service called the Homestead "a remarkable example of New England architecture and its transformation from the late 17th century to the late 19th century . . . its restoration in 1904 represents one of the earliest efforts at restoration of a domestic site in the Boston region by a heritage preservation group."

Colonial Dames Chief Hamann noted that the Dames has received a matching state grant to make repairs to the estate's exterior and will soon embark on a fundraising campaign to restore and preserve the interior of the home.

The Homestead will be open for free tours Monday, April 18, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. as part of the city's Patriots Day celebration. Free trolley transportation will be offered from the National Park Service Visitor Center at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St.

Lt. Gov. Healey Presents Proposals At Chamber Meeting

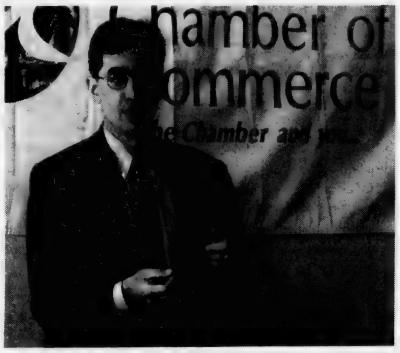
Small-Business Owners Hear State's Plans For Reform

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

About 40 local small-business owners gathered recently to hear Lt. Governor Kerry Healey and the state's economic chief pitch plans to help them thrive in the current economic environment.

The regional town meeting, held at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Quincy, also gave business owners an opportunity to express their concerns and provide feeback on those plans.

Co-sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and Quincy 2000, the event provided small business owners an overview of Gov. Mitt Romney's plans to spur economic growth and streamline government services to make it easier to do business in Massachusetts.



Romney administration officials are traveling across the state to drum up support for their plans.

Healey and Ranch Kimball, the state's secretary of economic development, said the financial climate is improving but the government can do more to spur growth as the state emerges from a recession.

"We believe that we have some really good strategies that are going to help every part of Massachusetts rebound equally and fairly," Healey told business owners.

LT. GOV. Kerry Healey recently visited the South Shore Chamber of Commerce to pitch several initiatives designed to improve the economic climate for small business owners.

RANCH KIMBALL, state Secretary of Economic Development, stressed the need to offer affordable health care insurance for small business owners.

Healey pushed what she characterized as several pro-business initiatives winding their way through the state Legislature, including a $2,000 hiring incentive program that encourages small businesses to hire individuals that have been unemployed for a year or more. The incentive program provides funds for small businesses for the training of unemployed individuals.

She also pushed the governor's $246 million initiative to lower unemployment insurance tax benefits for small businesses.

"We are extremely concerned that small business and business in Massachusetts is bearing the brunt of higher unemployment taxes - it is a tax on small business," she said.

Healey said the costs associated with unemployment insurance taxes are too high and are putting Massachusetts at a competitive disadvantage compared with other states.

She also encouraged business owners to contact their local legislators in an effort to pass pro-business measures.

And she urged small business owners to become more familiar with local "One-Stop" Career Centers as a means of gauging their employment needs. To that end, the Romney administration has proposed spending an additional $2 million in the Fiscal 2006 budget for the centers.

"They are a great resource," said Healey. "You should connect with them."

Healey and officials led a question and answer session to gauge the specific concerns and needs of local business owners. The overriding theme of concern involved the rising costs of health insurance and its impact on small business.

Bob Curry, owner of Curry Ace Hardware in West Quincy and East Braintree, said rising healthcare costs have forced him to increase his part-time staff.

"We have to do that to retain our employees," he told Healey.

MORE THAN 40 South Shore business owners participated in the town hall meeting-style event, which featured a question and answer forum with officials from Gov. Mitt Romney's administration. (John Stobierski/South Shore Chamber Of Commerce Photos)

Kimball said the administration is pushing for passage of a healthcare initiative, called "Commonwealth Care Basic," which would allow small business owners to purchase healthcare for employees at a lower cost without significant benefit cuts.

Mary Jo Cicchetti, owner of Comfort Keepers, a home care agency in Quincy, expressed frustration with the state's licensing procedures, saying she has had to apply for a different license in different areas of the state.

All questions centered around lowering the costs to do business in the state.

After the meeting, several owners praised the Romney administration for reaching out to local businesses.

"I thought it was a great idea," said Curry. "I find that they are very receptive to the concerns of the business community."

Jean McCarty, president of CSR Solutions in Quincy, said she is hopeful that administration officials will take the information culled from owners and turn it into action. "Having an administration that realizes the concerns of business owners is a big advantage," she said.

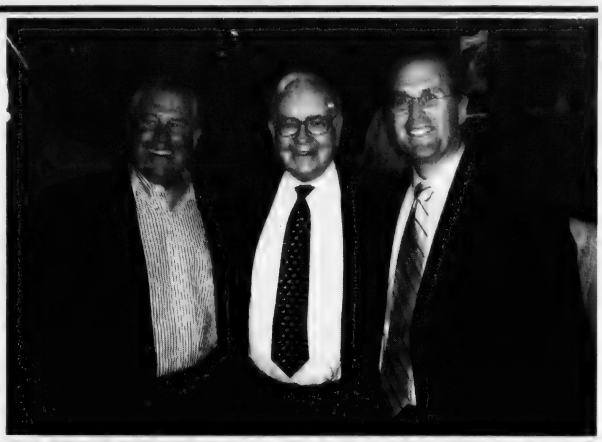
Cleaner, Greener Quincy Cleanup Set For May 7

The 16th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy project will be held Saturday, May 7, announces Mayor William Phelan.

The cleanup will be at beaches, marshes, neighborhood parks, playgrounds, schoolyards and open space areas citywide from 9 a.m. to noon. Rain date will be Saturday, May 14.

The annual cleanup draws close to 1,500 volunteers each year. Last year, more than 20 various public areas were designated as cleanup sites, many at the suggestion of residents who worked together in targeting areas in their neighborhoods ultimately improving the aesthetic conditions of their surroundings.

"It's truly a testament to the pride residents share for our city that after 15 years of rolling up their sleeves to make Quincy cleaner and greener, this event continues to build upon success and has become a wonderful spring tradition," Phelan said. "I look forward to this year's event and encourage those who have yet to participate to join us in making a great impact on the city's appearance."



In addition to the resident comprised cleanup force, the Department of Public Works, Park & Forestry Departments, Cemetery Department and Recreation Department will round out the municipal operation dedicated to the beautification effort.

Following the cleanup, Phelan will host an appreciation barbecue for all volunteers at the Richard J. Koch & Recreation Complex. The barbecue will last from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

Phelan urges those who wish to participate in Cleaner, Greener Quincy to organize a team of volunteers and designate a cleanup site. The Park Department will support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, gloves and other equipment.

All volunteers will also receive a Cleaner, Greener Quincy T-shirt.

To volunteer, recommend a cleanup site or for more information about the program, call the Park Department at 617-376-1254.

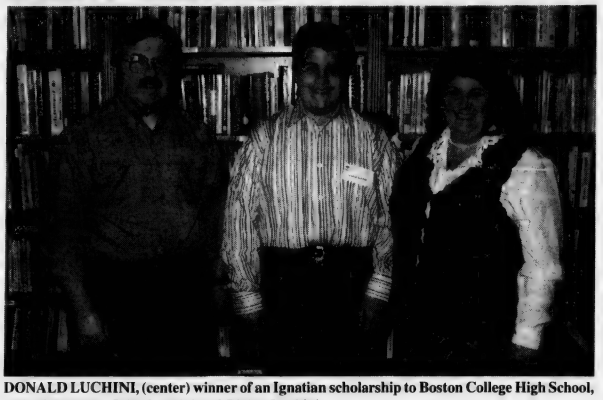
Quincy Youths Awarded Scholarships To BC High

William J. Kemeza, president of Boston College High School, announces four Quincy residents – David Figueiredo, Edward Hugill, Donald Luchini, and Gregory Ouellette – have been named recipients of Boston College High School Scholarships.

Figueiredo is an eighth grader at Sacred Heart Elementary School in Quincy, Luchini an eighth grader at Sacred Heart Elementary School, Weymouth. Hugill and Ouellette attend Central Middle School.

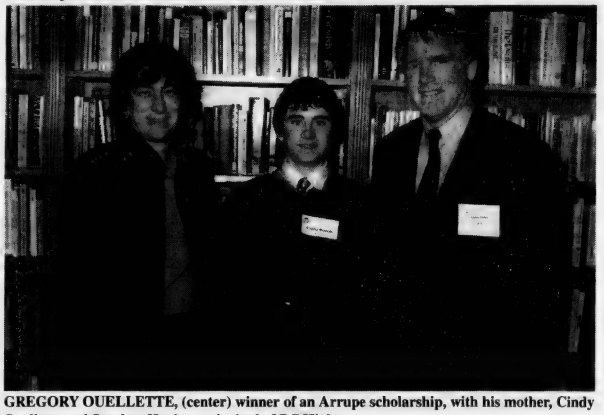
Figueiredo and Ouellette won Arrupe Scholarships. Hugill and Luchini won Ignatian Scholarships.

Each year, Boston College High School awards over $1.7 million in scholarship and financial aid to qualified students from all four-class years.



The Arrupe Scholarship is named for Father Arrupe, Father General of the Society of Jesus, the Ignatian scholarship is named for St. Ignatius of Loyola. The scholarships were awarded to students from a diverse and highly competitive applicant pool to the BC High class of 2009.

The four young men were selected based on their outstanding work on the entrance examination, recommendations from teachers and distinguished academic performance at their present schools. They will join the BC High Class of 2009.



"We have carefully selected the most qualified young men from a highly competitive applicant pool to become part of BC High's over 140-year tradition of academic excellence, character development and service to others," Kemeza said.

"At BC High, they will be challenged in a nurturing and supportive environment and will graduate as leaders marked by competence, conscience and compassion; leaders who will engage our Church and our world."

Boston College High School is a Jesuit, Catholic, college-preparatory school for young men founded in 1863. The school enrolls approximately 1,300 students from some 80 communities in eastern Massachusetts. For more information, visit www.bchigh.edu.

Bernazzani School Students To Walk Against Diabetes

Students at the Bernazzani School will fight diabetes Thursday, May 5, by participating in the American Diabetes Association's School Walk for Diabetes.

Students and teachers hopes that the walk around the school building will raise money to help continue the research, information and advocacy efforts of the association.

"It will be a great day for all the kids and for the school's mascot, Bacon the Pig," said School Nurse Emily O'Connell.

"They are learning so much about diabetes and how they can do some simple things to prevent diabetes and, in the process, help others with the disease.

"Our school will also receive some great new physical education equipment and school medical supplies as our thank you gift for participating."

For more information on how to involve your school in a walk for diabetes, call 1-888-342-2383 or visit www.diabetes.org/schoolwalk.

A REVOLUTIONARY WAR soldier directs a group of young recruits during a colonial reenactment. Several colonial activities will take place Monday as part of the city's Patriot's Day Celebration.

Family-Friendly Activities Planned For Patriot's Day Celebration

Historical interpreters, a patriotic art exhibit, a New England cooking demonstration and colonial games and activities are among the highlights of the city's upcoming Patriot's Day Celebration, to be held throughout downtown Quincy from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Monday, April 18.

With activities occurring at the Adams Birthplaces, Thomas Crane Public Library, National Park Service Center and Hancock TV & Appliance as well as several historic sites, Patriot's Day promises to be a fun and educational family-friendly event.

"We hope everyone will come out and help celebrate our historic city's role in the founding of our nation," said Jennifer Logue, executive director of Discover Quincy. "From colonial children's activities and cooking demonstrations to art exhibits and musical performances, there will be something for everyone."

The celebration will begin at 11 a.m. at historic Hancock Cemetery, where a wreath-laying ceremony will honor the men of Quincy who fought in the Revolutionary War. Following the ceremony, free tours of the cemetery will be offered from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A variety of colonial activities will be held at the Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St. In addition to receiving free tours of the presidents' birthplaces, visitors will have an opportunity to meet "President John Adams," his wife, "Abigail," and their daughter, "Nabby." Also on hand will be a colonial surgeon, who will demonstrate the medical tools of an 18th century doctor; a colonial silhouette artist; and a Revolutionary War soldier, who will lead young recruits in marching and drilling.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, meanwhile, will be the site of a special exhibit of patriotic art, as well as numerous children's patriotic art activities, including designing liberty banner hats and coloring oversized posters of John and Abigail Adams.

Other special events planned include:

• A New England cooking demonstration: Hancock TV & Appliance, 115 Franklin St. (next door to Adams birthplaces), Emmanuel DuBois, executive chef at Alba Bar & Grill, will demonstrate how to prepare some traditional New England dishes in Hancock TV & Appliance's state-of-the-art kitchen facilities, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

• Spirit of '76 Fife & Drum Performance: Enjoy traditional colonial music at the National Park Service Visitor Center in Presidents Place. 2 to 3 p.m. at the Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

• Free tours of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and Josiah Quincy House: Free trolley service from the National Park Service Visitor Center will transport visitors to these historic homes, where tours will be offered. The Josiah Quincy House will also offer children's activities, including colonial children's games and quill pen writing. 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

• Tours of United First Parish Church: This "Church of the Presidents" will be open for tours of the presidents' crypt, where both Adams presidents and their wives are buries. (Admission: $4 adults, $3 seniors, children 12 and under free). 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., 1306 Hancock St.

As part of the Patriot's Day Celebration, nearly a dozen shops, restaurants and businesses in downtown Quincy will be offering special Patriot's Day discounts to customers bearing "Colonial Bucks" - colonial money to be distributed at the various Patriot's Day events. Abigail's Crossing Gifts, for example, will offer 10 percent off all merchandise to Colonial Bucks bearers, while Fajitas & Ritas will offer 15 percent off all food and non-alcoholic beverages.

Other participating businesses include: Basile's, Coffee Break Cafe, Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center, Edible Arrangements, Finian's, Frantic Framers, Hancock TV & Applicance, Italy's Little Kitchen and Rogers Jewelry.

Organized by the Quincy ArtsAlive! initiative, the Patriot's Day Celebration is funded in part by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, which recently awarded the city a $30,000 grant to organize a series of new arts and cultural events in downtown Quincy. Organizations participating in the ArtsAlive! initiative include Discover Quincy, the Quincy Art Association, Adams National Historical Park, Quincy Historical Society, Quincy 2000 and the City of Quincy.

April 28 For Cradles To Crayons

Former President Clinton To Attend Fundraiser For Quincy Non-Profit

Former President Bill Clinton will be visiting the Boston area on April 28 to attend a fundraiser for a Quincy-based, non-profit organization that helps needy children in Massachusetts.

Clinton is scheduled to attend a special fundraising event for Cradles to Crayons, a non-profit organization that provides new and slightly used children's essentials to homeless and low-income families.

The event will be held on Thursday, April 28 at 6 p.m. in the Boston Convention and Exhibition Center.

Founded by Boston resident, Lynn Margherio, a former Clinton policy advisor, the organization has an office on 82 Myrtle St., North Quincy.

Cradles to Crayons provides essential everyday supplies to Massachusetts children who need them most. From strollers and car seats, to books and clothing, the organization provides items that enrich the lives of children and the people who care for them.

Items collected and distributed are as a result of collaboration between the company and more than 200 social service agencies, schools and churches, local businesses and more than 5,000 volunteers of all ages.

Some Quincy organizations that serve as distribution partners with Cradles to Crayons include: Bay State Community Services, Broad Meadows Middle School, City of Quincy Commission on Family, Commission on the Family Transitional Housing Program, Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, Father Bill's Place, Interfaith Social Services, Modern Assistance Programs, QCAP Emergency Food Center, QCAP Head Start, Quincy Community Action Program, Quincy Teen Mothers Program and South Shore Mental Health.

In 2004, Cradles to Crayons provided goods to 16,000 children.

Freedom Is Passover Topic At Congregation Beth Israel

The Passover programs at Congregation Beth Israel this year are emphasizing freedom.

"The concept of 'freedom' is needed and relevant in America now more than ever," said Rabbi Shmuel Bronstein.

"Passover is the ideal time to celebrate freedom. This Seder will focus on being liberated from the daily challenges and tribulations that bind and confine us by encouraging personal growth and self development."

Passover programs began Tuesday night at Beth Israel, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point, and will continue through the weekend of April 23. The schedule:

Sunday, April 17, at 1 p.m. - A special video presentation on baking matzah from the cutting of the wheat to the 18-minute rush when the finished product is baked. Adults and children are invited to bake their own Shmurah Matzah.

There will be a Passover art project and everyone will go home with an authentic hand-baked Shmurah Matzah from Israel. Light refreshments for all.

Tuesday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. - Classes in the teachings from the ancient masters regarding the meaning of Passover. First class: The Liberating Name of Pessach. Second class: Matzah Power.

Saturday, April 23, at 8 p.m. - Residents of Quincy and surrounding areas are invited to attend an authentic Public Passover Seder.

All Jews, regardless of affiliation or background, are encouraged to participate in an evening replete with the Mah Nish Tanah, traditional hand made Matzah, four cups of wine, a meal, lively dialogue and insights.

2 Residents Receive Honors At Choir School

Two Quincy residents were named to the honor roll for the second term at the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School in Cambridge.

Brian Tam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Tam, received first honors with distinction.

Nicholas Yotts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Yotts, received second honors.

They are currently preparing for their annual Spring Concert, "Gloria by John Rutter," to be performed Friday, May 6, at 8 p.m. at St. Paul Church.

For ticket information, call 617-868-8658.

Coughlin To Seek Third Term As Ward 3 Councillor

KEVIN COUGHLIN

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, citing his record of accomplishment and a renewed effort to provide essential city services, announces he will seek a third term.

Coughlin emphasized his reputation for responsiveness to the needs of Ward 3 residents and a desire to continue to work diligently in his role as public servant.

"I am forever mindful, each and every day, of the honor that the residents of Ward 3 have bestowed on me by allowing me to serve as their voice on the city council," said Coughlin. "I spend each day working hard to maintain the trust that has been placed in me, and intend to continue doing so for whatever time the people allow me to serve them."

Coughlin cited his attention to issue of public works, public safety, education, neighborhood development and quality of life concerns. He has served as chairman of the Finance Committee and Parks and Recreation Committee, and presently serves as chairman of both the Ordinance and Education Committees.

He also serves on the city's council's Fire Department Study Steering Committee that will study and make recommendations regarding the future needs of the fire department.

Coughlin noted his support for Mayor William Phelan's pavement management plan and a $10 million bond that includes funds for repaving of the streets, sidewalks, as well as repairs to public buildings such as schools and fire stations.

The Ward 3 councillor also supported a $10 million bond for city-wide park improvements and the purchase of open space, funded from the city's hotel/motel tax thus saving resident taxpayer dollars.

As councillor, Coughlin sponsored a number of city ordinances and amendments, including the city's first wireless communications ordinance, a shopping cart measure, as well as home rule petitions to create senior citizen safety zones and provide greater value to senior real estate tax exemptions.

He said he has also been a strong advocate in fighting to lower residential property taxes for all residents. If re-elected, Coughlin said he "plans to continue to focus on fiscal responsibility, important fundamental city services, the integrity of our neighborhoods, and the day-to-day problems and concerns that confront all our citizens, both longtime residents and those new to our city."

Coughlin is married to Domenica Giubilo Coughlin and has three children, Maria, James and Matthew. He is an Assistant Chief Probation Officer with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts where he has worked for 26 years. He has also served as president of the Massachusetts Probate Probation Officers Association for six years.

He serves on the Parish Council at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, and is a former president of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association.

D'Amico Appeals Conviction

Former Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico has appealed his federal corruption conviction.

D'Amico, 30, is expected to report for a four-month prison term on May 2 despite the appeal. A jury recently found that D'Amico, as a city councillor, took a $2,500 payoff from an FBI informant and then lied about it to investigators.

The appeal has been filed in the federal First Circuit Court of Appeals.

Frank McCauley Honored As 'Sun Citizen Of Year'

truly adore him."

Phelan presented McCauley with a mayoral citation noting "his advocacy for the residents of Quincy for more than three decades will hold his place in Quincy's political history" . . . and "in recognition of his lifetime service to the city of Quincy and its residents."

Senator Michael Morrissey, presenting McCauley with a state Senate-House of Representatives citation, said:

"The mayor was right. Frank will tell you just how it is. For better or worse. He pulls no punches and that's all you can really ask of elected officials. Be honest and straightforward. That's how he has always been."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, who has known McCauley since they were kids growing up in Houghs Neck, said:

"He is one outstanding person. He has always been true to his word. When I nominated him for council president, I said 'Your finger prints are all over some of the great things that have happened in Quincy over a great many years.' We want to sincerely thank you for what you have done."

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi cited McCauley's work on behalf of health care, affordable housing and Quincy College and said:

"The three things I look for is the quality of the individual and what his public life has really meant and for Frank it has meant a lifetime of dedication to those people who need health care, to those who need housing and to those who need an education. Frank, all of us in this great community will be forever in your debt. We thank you for your service. This is a wonderful recognition today."

A BOUQUET OF spring flowers was presented to Sandra McCauley by Maralin Manning, a member of The Sun Citizen of the Year judging panel. (Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble)

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said: "When I think of Frank McCauley, I think of his independence, his frugality, political history and time."

Gutro, in his second term, added: "I can't tell you how much I've learned in the course of the past three years with respect to our city and its political history by just being in Frank's presence."

Gutro noted that McCauley, as president, makes every effort to keep the council meetings short and to the point.

In keeping with that, he presented McCauley, on behalf of the council, with a "new clock to watch."

Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia presented McCauley with a photograph of Quincy born actress Ruth Gordon's visit home for the dedication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater 20 years ago. McCauley was mayor then.

McCauley introduced his family — asking his wife, Sandra, to stand with him — and thanked his city council colleagues and Marilyn Cadogan of North Quincy for nominating him.

He also thanked Henry and Robert Bosworth for sponsoring the Citizen of the Year Award.

"It has become a prestigious award and I do thank you for it," he said.

McCauley, Quincy's political historian, wrote the book "A Political History, 1889-2000" as part of the city's millennium celebration in the year 2000. And did it as a labor of love. No fee. He noted Sunday that he used The Sun to research the last 35 years of the book.

McCauley turned the table on Henry Bosworth by presenting him with a surprise honorary citizenship citation signed by him as council president and Mayor Phelan "for his many outstanding contributions to the city and its residents."

And in keeping with his frugal reputation, McCauley noted that a $1,000 a year excise tax goes with this honor.

McCauley thanked all who attended the reception:

"You honor me and my family for being here and I'm looking forward to finishing out my term and I will be watching you all (the city council) on television with my remote in hand if certain people go on and on.

"Thank you once again for this honor."

A Job Well Done

By SGT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, April 10, 2005, at approximately 11:30 p.m., Officers James Greene, John McGowan, Dennis Keenan and William O'Brien were dispatched to the Diary Mart at 200 Sea Street to investigate a "possible breaking and entering in progress." As the officers responded, "911" Operators interviewed the caller and provided a thorough description of the suspect. As Officer McGowan arrived at the scene, the caller stated that the suspect fled behind the building.

SGT. DAN MINTON

Officer McGowan observed that the front door to the Dairy Mart had been damaged and entry gained. He also noted that lottery tickets had left a trail across the parking lot. As the other officers arrived, a search of the neighborhood began. On Narrangansett Road, which is near the crime scene location, Officer Greene approached a young man similar in appearance to the description given by the caller/witness. Officer Greene noted that this person was bleeding from his left hand.

Concerned for his own safety, Officer Greene conducted a protective search of the person and found a switch knife with a five-inch blade. This person was placed under arrest for the unlawful carrying of a dangerous weapon and transported to the station.

Officer Greene then went to the crime scene, met with the owner and viewed the video from the surveillance system. The video clearly showed that the man arrested with the switch blade knife was the same person who smashed the front door, entered the building and took an assortment of lottery tickets.

Officer Greene and his fellow officers' quick response led to the arrest. They had ample evidence and probable cause, yet there remained two concerns. While viewing the videotape, Officer Greene noted that the suspect in the videotape was wearing a hooded sweatshirt, but not when he was arrested. The second issue was the whereabouts of the stolen lottery tickets.

Officer O'Brien and Officer Greene followed the trail of lottery tickets from the store, leading them to nearby yards. Under a tree, they found the sweatshirt with fresh bloodstains – and concealed inside – numerous bloodstained lottery ticket books.

The suspect has been charged with "carrying a dangerous weapons," "breaking and entering," "malicious destruction of property," and "larceny over $250."

Nice work!

Mayor Forms Committee To Recommend New Track Site

Mayor William Phelan formed a committee to recommend a site for the new track the city plans to construct.

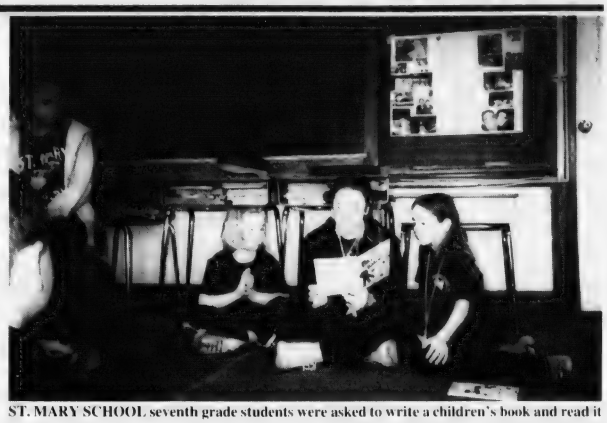
The selected committee members have years of involvement in the local scholastic and youth programs, knowledge of the sport itself and a familiarity of the city's parks and landscape.

The members include:

Thomas Koch, executive director, Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments; Geoffrey Hennessy, Quincy Track Club founder and North Quincy High School track and cross country coach; Brendan Walsh, Quincy High School track coach; Michelle (Millane) Bell, former Quincy Track Club and North Quincy High School track participant; Recreation Direction Barry Welch; Connie Driscoll, Quincy Park and Recreation Board member; and Louis Tozzi, member of the Massachusetts Track Coaches Association and former North Quincy High School track and cross country coach.

"I am confident in the individuals charged with the task of recommending a site for our new track," Phelan said. "I believe their knowledge of the needs of the sport and their concern for the children in our city will prove to be invaluable to this process."

It became necessary to locate a site for the track after an engineering exercise concluded that an MIAA-regulation 400 meter track could not fit within the confines of Veterans Memorial Stadium, the track's current home.



The existing track is 1/5 mile in distance, which is short of the scholastic regulations and therefore has prevented the city from hosting league, state and regional meets.

Koch referred to the recently reconstructed Adams Field, the newly renovated Mitchell/McCoy softball complex and the Stadium Improvement Project that will yield state-of-the-art turf to be utilized by the football, soccer and lacrosse programs, and added track deserves equal treatment and was long overdue for a facility upgrade.

"Our department has undertaken and completed many projects that have significantly upgraded some of our major recreational facilities," Koch said. "A great deal of planning has been dedicated to each project and the track project will be no different and will call for considering a multitude of alternatives until a final recommendation is made to best suit the needs of the city's track programs while keeping the best interest of our youth a priority."

A public hearing will be scheduled later in the month where the committee will make a presentation based on their recommendation and field questions and comments from citizens at large.

For more information or to make a suggestion, contact the Park Department at 617-376-1251.

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will host an informational seminar on computer assisted land records research at the Registry of Deeds in Dedham Thursday, April 28 from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The seminar is intended for both real estate professionals and the general public.

The program will include a brief presentation (at 4:30 p.m. and again at 5 p.m.), written reference materials, and hands-on exercises. There will be opportunities for both basic and advanced questions and answers.

Computer assisted land records research is available both at the Registry and on the Internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"These services have proven valuable tools for our customers," O'Donnell said, "and we hope that this seminar will be helpful and informative."

There is no charge for the seminar, but persons planning to attend should register by phone (781-461-6116).

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry receives and records hundreds of thousands of documents each year and is a basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate and accessible land record information.

For more information visit www.norfolkdeeds.org or call 781-461-6116.

Quincy High Softball Pitcher Hurls Perfect Game

Remarkable Rachel Returns With Perfection

By CHRIS POISSON

Rachel Sorensen's return to the Quincy High School softball team this season is a remarkable and heartfelt story itself.

What she accomplished in Monday afternoon's season opener at Plymouth South was simply perfect.

Making her first appearance in 22 months, the senior captain delivered a mesmerizing performance, tossing a perfect game with 10 strikeouts to lead the Presidents to an easy 24-0 victory.

"She was mowing them up and down," said head coach Mike Sedar. "She kept the ball down low, throwing mostly fastballs and drops. She had a phenomenal pitching game and (junior catcher Kim) Lebel called a great game."

Sorensen missed her entire senior season last year when she was diagnosed with Guillan-Barre Syndrome, a disease that attacks the neurological system.

"She was thrilled," Sedar said. "She was so psyched before the game. She called me Sunday night and said she was going to bed early to be well-rested. She was pumped up for the game. Her mother, father, sister, brother and grandmother all made it down. What a day for her."

Sorensen hadn't pitched for the Presidents since the final game of the 2003 season, a loss to King Philip in the second round of the state tournament. That year, the two-time league all-star also threw her first career no-hitter against Dennis-Yarmouth.

"I thought she'd be rusty," Sedar said. "I planned on her going three or four innings and getting her out of there and putting her sister (Rebi) in to get some work. But in the fifth inning I realized she had a no-hitter going and I couldn't take her out."

Sorensen cruised from the start with an eight-pitch first inning. The hardest ball hit of her came in the next inning. But it was hit so hard the right fielder was able to gun the runner out at first base.

In the seventh inning, she gave up a smoking grounder to third base but Rebi fielded the ball cleanly to preserve her older sister's pitching gem.

The Presidents banged out 18 hits, scoring seven runs in the third inning and breaking the game open with an 11-run sixth frame.

Senior captains Alysia DiMuzio (double, three RBI), Rebi Sorensen (double) and Katie Walsh along with junior switch-hitter Leanna Lam each had three hits. Junior Courtney Hall and Lebel also had multiple-hit games.

Quincy, which hosted Whitman-Hanson Wednesday at 4 p.m., will travel to Plymouth North today (Thursday) at 4 p.m.

Defeats Charlestown For Greater Boston Championship

Mite A Travel Team Wins Title

The Quincy Mite A travel hockey team recently defeated Charlestown, 4-1, to capture the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League South Division championship.

Quincy knocked off Somerville, 9-3, and tied Charlestown in a nail-biting final game. Due to the tie, they played a rematch to decide the championship.

Charlestown struck first two minutes into the game, but Quincy goalie Chaislyn Burgio and the dynamite defense shut them down the rest of the way.

Patrick Freeman netted the equalizer with an assist from Bryan Ayers and Michael Pugsley tallied the go-ahead goal with Aaron Clancy assisting.

Rhys Marcel potted an insurance goal with Freeman assisting and Pugsley scored an empty-net goal with less than two minutes remaining to close out the scoring. Steven Ross played well.

In earlier action, Quincy concluded the regular season with consecutive shutouts to finish with an 18-5 record.

Burgio stood in net as Quincy blanked Dorchester, 11-0, and Needham, 9-0. Stephanie DiPietro, Johnny Mulcahy, Jimmy Brennick, Brendan Cox, Ryan Harty and Ayers were strong defensively.

In the first game, Freeman (2 assists), Clancy (assist) and Joseph Viera (assist) scored hat tricks. Marcel (2 assists) and Emily Tabeek also scored. Pugsley had two assists.

In the second game of the doubleheader, DiPietro netted two goals with an assist. Jake Hallisey, Clancy, Ayers, Cox, Viera, Mulcahy and Harty added the other goals. Mark Gillespie played well.

Coaches Kevin Mock and Bill Dineen said they were proud of their team's performance over the course of the season.

Koch Club Baseball Registration April 25, 27

Registration for Koch Club Youth Baseball will be held Monday, April 25, and Wednesday, April 27, at 6 p.m. at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School, Hollis Avenue, North Quincy.

Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible to register to participate. The season begins May 2 and ends June 29. All games are played at O'Neil Field Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. Cost for registration is $18 and each participant will receive a hat and T-shirt.

The program is dependent on volunteers and parents are encouraged to volunteer and assist with coaching and organizing the games for the youngsters. Games are informal and there is a greater emphasis on participation and instruction rather than competition. No tryouts are held.

The Koch Club was founded in 1948 by the late Richard J. Koch and has provided countless opportunities for youngsters to participate in various sports programs for pleasure. In addition, the Koch Club co-sponsors the city's annual Flag Day parade and participants are invited to march in the parade scheduled for Saturday, June 11.

For more information, contact Chris Hall at 617-471-0823 or Tom Koch at 617-471-7145.

IT'S A WASH!

When you take the opportunity to wash your vehicle, never wash it in the sun and avoid washing it after it was just driven. Either way, the sheet metal is going to be hot to the touch, which is sufficiently hot to evaporate the tepid water from your garden hose. What is left are small beads of water, soap, and grim, all of which create a dirty water prism in the hot sun that can etch its way through the clear coat. Once this happens, the shine is definitely, and permanently, dulled. The preferred conditions for washing your vehicle includes a cloudy, overcast day, just after sunset, or, at least, in complete shade.

Maintaining your SUV, van, truck, or car is important in maintaining its value. Keeping it clean maintains its appearance. For most all your maintenance and repair needs, bring it to the ASE Certified professionals at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our friendly staff will gladly answer all your questions here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: Never wash your vehicle with dishwashing detergent, which is strong enough to remove wax and spot the paint.

Exercisers With Disabilities Raising Funds For Partnership Program

Exercisers with disabilities at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy, will raise funds for the Partnership Program by cycling the distance of the Boston Marathon using arm ergometers at the Y.

These efforts, organized by Joe Monahan, will help raise funds to purchase a standing frame that offers safe, dynamic leg motion during standing therapy for program members with para- and quadriplegia.

Monahan had been a Boston Marathon runner before a diving accident left him paralyzed from the neck down. He was a charter member of the South Shore YMCA Partnership Program when it began in 1992. The program pairs people with disabilities such as spinal cord injury, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, stroke, blindness and more with volunteer training partners.

"When training people with disabilities, it is crucial to have the proper equipment," said Partnership Program Director Sheryl Rosa. "Special cuffs, power lifting hooks, quad gloves and elastic tubing all help enable program members to do the same upper body exercises as able-bodied individuals. Larger pieces of specialized adaptive equipment for our disabled members can be very expensive, yet with our ever-expanding program, more equipment is now needed."

Having done a similar fund-raiser in 1997, Monahan decided it was time to ride again. This time, however, he has gathered a team of fellow program participants including Jimmy Costello, Paul Jung and Nicole Antil.

They are training hard for the race in hopes they will obtain sufficient sponsorships to purchase the new equipment, which will include a seated stepper that is appropriate for any YMCA member who has difficulty getting on and off of the conventional recumbent bikes, as well as the standing frame.

All are invited to the Y to cheer the team on to the finish line. Kick-off begins at 11 a.m. For more information or to receive a pledge, contact Rosa at 617-479-8500, ext. 148.

Stefan Miranda On Volleyball Team At Roger Williams University

Stefan Miranda of North Quincy, a Xaverian Brothers graduate, is a member of the volleyball team at Roger Williams University in Rhode Island.

In a recent five-game match win against Johnson & Wales, the freshman starting setter had 53 assists, 10 digs, four blocks and two service aces. He was perfect from the service line with no service errors.

He is enrolled in the engineering program. He is the son of Karen and Larry Miranda and brother of Alexis of North Quincy.

Exercise Classes At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Council on Aging will hold exercise classes every Monday and Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

Presidents Off To 3-1 Start

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Backed by a talented pitching staff, the Quincy High School baseball team has jumped out to a 3-1 start this season.

Senior quad-captains John Folino, John Santon and Steve Sullivan have each notched a win in dominating fashion. The trio has combined to pitch all 28 innings, striking out 39 and allowing just one earned run on 15 hits.

The Presidents topped Plymouth South, 3-1, Monday afternoon, knocked off Braintree, 4-2, last Saturday and dropped a 2-1 heartbreaker to Hingham last Thursday, all three games at Adams Field. Last Tuesday's game at Randolph was postponed.

"I think we're doing a great job," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "Defensively, this is the best I've seen. You're going to make mistakes. But we've made big plays, like turning some double plays. Everyone has come through for the team. And our pitchers each have a win under their belt and that's huge."

Quincy headed to Whitman-Hanson Wednesday and today (Thursday) it will host Plymouth North at 4 p.m. at Adams Field.

Next week, it participates in the QHS/NQHS Tournament Tuesday against Archbishop Williams at 10 a.m. North Quincy and Milton will play at 1 p.m. The consolation and championship games will be held Thursday.

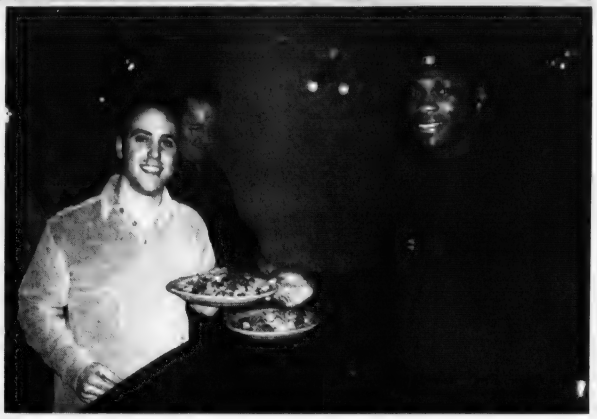
Against Plymouth South, Sullivan went the distance, giving up one run on five hits and striking out nine.

The Presidents grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Sullivan doubled and Folino reached on an infield single deep in the hole and a throwing error enabled Sullivan to score.

Junior John Orlando cracked an RBI single to score junior Mike MacPherson in the second and senior Zach Eaton walked with the bases loaded in the third to force home Sullivan.

In the Braintree game, Santon struck out nine and gave up three hits in a complete-game effort.

Braintree scored two unearned runs in the second inning before Quincy got on the board in the third. Eaton led off with a single and moved to second on Orlando's sacrifice bunt. Sophomore Steve Connolly singled to put men on the corners and senior quad-captain Steve Priscella followed with a sacrifice fly.



The Presidents took the lead in the fourth with a pair of runs. Sullivan and Folino each singled and sophomore John Alexander walked to load the bases. MacPherson knocked in one run with a fielder's choice and Orlando plated the other with a single.

Quincy added an insurance run in the sixth for a 4-2 lead. Alexander ripped a ball that the left fielder lost in the sun for a triple and scored two batters later when Eaton blooped a two-out single to center field.

Against Hingham, Folino, who won the season opener against Brighton, turned in another stellar performance from the mound but came away with a tough loss. The right-hander allowed just three hits while punching out nine and walking none.

Ahead 1-0, Hingham rallied for two runs in the seventh as it benefited from some questionable calls. It loaded the bases on a hit, fielder's choice and an error and the winning run scored on a grounder to third base.

Quincy grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Alexander ripped a one-out double down the left field line, MacPherson reached on an infield single and Santon walked to load the bases. Eaton grounded into a 3-6 double play but Alexander crossed home plate before the runner was tagged out at second base.

BOSTON CELTICS GUARD Marcus Banks serves his special recipe to Quincy resident Ben White during a celebrity chef event at FiRE + iCE in Boston. Banks and other local celebrities stepped behind the grill at FiRE + iCE to help launch the restaurant's new "FiRED Up in the Community" fundraising initiative which provides customers with a fun opportunity to raise money for local programs and charities.

Mike Hobin On Boston Marathon Children's Hospital Kids Team

Mike Hobin of the Quincy Fire Department will participate in the Boston Marathon as a member of the Children's Hospital Boston Kids at Heart Marathon Team.

The 54-year-old fire lieutenant will have patient partner, 10-year-old Colm Williams of Wakefield cheering him toward the finish. It's Hobin's 11th start in the Patriot's Day tradition.

The Kids at Heart Marathon Team was founded nine years ago when Children's Hospital Boston joined the Boston Athletic Association's Marathon Charity Program.

Through this initiative, Children's receives 100 invitational applications for runners to participate in the Boston Marathon in exchange for raising funds for the hospital.

Runners make a commitment to raise a minimum of $2,500 to benefit Children's, supporting the hospital's mission to deliver the highest quality health care to children.

Funds from this program are directed toward unrestricted charitable support, allowing the hospital to allocate monies to areas of greatest need. To date, the program has generated nearly $5 million for the hospital.

Raiders Edge Hyde Park

The North Quincy High School baseball team may have opened the season last week undefeated but it still has a lot more to work on to remain successful.

Despite struggling at the plate and committing seven errors, the Red Raiders played Silver Lake to a 4-4 tie in last Monday's opener and held on to a 7-6 win over Hyde Park last Wednesday at Adams Field.

The Silver Lake game was called in the eighth inning due to darkness. Head coach Rick Beach said they may try to complete the game when they meet again May 12 in Quincy.

"We need a lot of defensive work and hitting," Beach said. "We haven't seen enough live pitching. All that time in the gym means nothing. We only had six hours of outside work before our first game. It's tough."

North Quincy (1-0-1), which hosted Plymouth South Wednesday (4 p.m.), will travel to Whitman-Hanson today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. and take on Canton Friday at 4 p.m. at Adams Field.

Next week, it hosts Hyde Park Monday at noon and opens the QHS/NQHS Tournament Tuesday against Milton at 1 p.m. Quincy and Archbishop Williams will play at 10 a.m. The consolation and championship games will be held Thursday.

Against Hyde Park, junior Tom Power gave up two runs in the top of the first but the Red Raiders answered with three in the bottom half to take the lead.

NQ pushed across four runs in the third for a 7-2 advantage. Junior shortstop Drew Loud (2-for-3), a transfer from Catholic Memorial, led off with a single and stole second base before senior tri-captain Mike Powers walked.

Senior Matt Haskins (2-for-3) laced a two-run double. After two outs, senior pinch-hitter Chris Mercurio ripped an RBI single and senior tri-captain Dave Djerf plated him with a double.

Power earned the win, allowing seven hits and striking out six in 4 2/3 innings. Junior Paul Doolan relieved him and got the final out of the fifth with the bases loaded. He pitched the sixth inning and recorded one out in the seventh before junior Joe Ceurvels came in to get the final two outs for the save.

In the season opener, Power (three stolen bases, run scored) and junior John Allen (RBI, stolen base, run) each went 3-for-4 to supply the offense.

Haskins tossed the first five innings, allowing no earned runs and four hits with five strikeouts. Ceurvels fired two innings of hitless relief.

Mercurio escaped a jam in the eighth. With a runner on third and one out, he struck out the next batter and induced a groundout to preserve the tie.

Autism Center Of South Shore Annual Golf Tournament May 20

The Autism Center of the South Shore, Inc. (ACCESS) will host its third annual Golf Tournament Friday, May 20, with a 7 a.m. shotgun start at the Pembroke Country Club.

ACCESS was created in 2001 by a group of parents and professionals dedicated to supporting individuals with autism and their families on the South Shore.

Autism is a lifelong neurological disorder and the third most common childhood disability. It currently affects more than 400,000 people in the United States and the numbers are rising dramatically.

Currently, ACCESS provides recreational and therapeutic programs that include a family swim program, music therapy, social skills classes and a weekly teen recreation program.

ACCESS provides parent and professional training that includes an annual educational conference. We maintain both a lending library filled with valuable resources and a web site (autismsouthshore.org).

Those interested in golfing or helping by donating a raffle item or becoming a sponsor, can call 1-800-482-5788.

All funds raised from the event will go to the organization to ensure that services will continue to be provided for hundreds of South Shore families.

Audio, Video Deaf-Talk System

Quincy Medical Center Enhances 24-Hour Interpreting Services

Quincy Medical Center has installed a Deaf-Talk system for on-demand audio and video interpreting services.

The mobile teleconferencing system is designed to complement QMC's on-site interpreting staff and ensures that patients who are deaf, hard of hearing, or speak limited English have access to face-to-face medical interpreting, 24 hours a day.

Underwritten by a Massachusetts Department of Health and Human Services grant, the Deaf-Talk system utilizes teleconferencing technology to enable real-time communication between a patient, interpreter, and health care team.

"A visual link is important when interpreting medical information for patients who are not native English speakers," said Allen K. So, QMC Medical Interpreting and Outreach Services Coordinator. "Face to face communication enables both the interpreter and the patient to read each other's visual cues and to better understand each other."

The Deaf-Talk system also includes a keyboard to ensure that complex information, such as medication information, is interpreted accurately.

The system is mobile and can be transported on locations throughout QMC.

Quincy College Health, Wellness Fair April 28

Quincy College, with partial mini-grant support from the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance, will sponsor the "Quincy Health and Wellness Fair" Thursday, April 28 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at The Atrium of President's Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The fair will focus on general wellness, and highlight urgent local health issues as identified by research conducted by college administrators and staff.

A secondary goal is to engage community-based organizations in a collaborative partnership to better serve the health needs of area residents.

The event is expected to draw over 375 attendees and 30 or more exhibitors, including non-profits, health-related associations, health-service organizations, as well as a few businesses.

Awards will be given to "Outstanding Exhibitors" as selected by their peers.

For more information, including sponsorship opportunities, call Joe Bradley at 617-984-1778.

Body Mass Index

Q: I am a woman 5 feet 7 inches tall, weigh 150 pounds and have 18 percent body fat. I exercise at least five to six days a week, eat properly and feel great. I thought I was relatively fit. However, according to my BMI score of 23.5, although I am within a normal range, I am close to being overweight. Should I set a goal to reach the desired weight as stated by the BMI scale?

A. The BMI, or Body Mass Index scale, was developed as a system to determine if someone is underweight, normal, overweight or obese. There are many health conditions that are linked to obesity, such as heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes. The BMI scale can quickly identify if someone is at a higher risk for these diseases.

To calculate BMI, a person's body weight and height are used in a formula and a score is produced. The formula is your body weight (in pounds) multiplied by 705, then divided by your height (in inches) twice. The number you derive from the formula is your BMI score. A score of 25 and above is considered unhealthy.

There are, however, other factors to consider when determining if someone is at a higher health risk, such as body-fat percentage, the placement of body fat (such as around the abdomen), the amount of lean muscle mass, nutrition and family history. Taking all of these factors into consideration can help give a more accurate picture of health.

It is also important to remember that body weight tells only how much someone weighs on the scale. It tells nothing about body composition. People who are more muscular and fit tend to have high BMI scores, due to their lean muscle mass.

Setting goals that include keeping your body-fat percentage within recommended ranges, increasing lean muscle mass, maintaining a proper nutritional regimen and practicing a diverse exercise program is most important. With these goals in mind, you are more likely to not put yourself at risk for becoming overweight or obese.

If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws @hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

CONVENTIONAL WISDOM

Because our jaws are smaller than our early ancestors' jaws, they often lack sufficient room for the wisdom teeth. If so, these third molars can become partially impacted (unable to erupt), leaving an opening for bacteria to enter around the tooth and cause infection. There is also the potential that poorly aligned wisdom teeth will damage adjacent teeth, or that a fluid-filled sac (cyst) could form, which leads to the destruction of surrounding structures such as bone, teeth, and roots. All these possibilities are good reason for extraction. However, not everyone has problems with wisdom teeth. To assess your situation, ask the dentist to evaluate the health and positioning of your third molars before potential problems arise.

If a wisdom tooth is impacted or is emerging and causing problems, you should schedule an appointment with your dentist as soon as possible. This column has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. We believe in an informed patient approach to achieving optimum dental health. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are dedicated to saving and restoring your teeth and helping your look your best. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for superior oral health care. Beautiful smiles are a team effort. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Our best lessons are sometimes taught to us by our failures. The best opportunities frequently come to us not in the sunny days of success but after fate has given us what first appears to be some very heavy chastisement. Yes, failure can be the most stimulating of all teachers, provided that we are willing to learn.

We like this quotation by Wilferd A. Peterson: "He who hopes to avoid all failure and misfortune is trying to live in a fairyland; the wise man realistically accepts failures as a part of life and builds a philosophy to meet them and make the most of them... He learns from the scientist who said, "At best, research is about 99% failure and 1% success and the 1% is the only thing that counts."

Remember, everybody, but everybody, makes mistakes. In order to master your own, put them behind after having learned from them...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A problem in getting a workplace project up and moving might upset the Lamb, who likes things done on time. But be patient. The delay could turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your instincts are usually on the mark, so if you feel uneasy about being asked for advice on a certain matter, it's probably a good idea that you opt not to comply with the request.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might have two minds about a proposed change (which often happens with the Twins), but once all the facts are in, you'll be able to make a definitive decision. Good luck.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Crab's frugal aspect dominates, so while you might be reluctant to pay for technical repairs, the time you save in getting things back on track could be well worth the expense.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you Leos and Leonas continue to concentrate on doing well in your work-related ventures this week, consider reserving the weekend for sharing good times with family and friends.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good week to take stock of the important personal, professional or familial relationships in your life and see where you might need to do some intense shoring up.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of justice makes you the likely person to help deal with a work- or family-related grievance. But you need to have any doubts about anyone's true agenda resolved first.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The Scorpio passion for getting things done right and on time might rankle some folks. Never mind them. Others will be impressed, and they're the ones you want in your corner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Finances could be a mite tight this week. And, while things will ease up soon enough, you savvy Sagittarians will want to keep a prudent eye on your expenses at this time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although a technical malfunction could cause a temporary delay in getting things up and running, you could use the time to recheck your operation and make changes where necessary.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might find it difficult to resist making a snap judgment about a colleague's behavior. But stick with your usual way of assessing situations and wait for the facts to come out.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Asking for help with a family situation might be the wisest course to take right now. Just be sure you turn to someone you can trust to do and say the right thing for the right reasons.

BORN THIS WEEK: People see in you a born leader whom they can follow and put their trust in.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Charleen Langley-Brennan

Retired Whitman Teacher

A funeral Mass for Charleen M. (McDonald) Langley-Brennan, 57, of Quincy, a retired first-grade teacher in the Whitman schools, was celebrated April 7 at Immaculate Conception Church, East Weymouth.

She died April 3 at home.

Mrs. Langley-Brennan taught at the Conley, Holt and Duval elementary schools in Whitman for 33 years, retiring in 2002.

She was a member of the Whitman Teachers Association, the Plymouth County Teachers Association, the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the National Teachers Association.

Born and raised in Weymouth, she graduated from Weymouth High School in 1965 and from Mount St. Mary College in Hooksett, N.H., in 1969. She lived in Whitman for many years before moving to Wollaston five years ago.

Wife of the late Francis Langley, she is survived by her husband, Robert M. Brennan; a son, Daniel Langley of Hanson; her mother, Mildred L. (Cummings) McDonald of Hingham; four brothers, Joseph D. McDonald of Hingham and Robert M. McDonald, Richard E. McDonald and George L. McDonald Jr., all of Weymouth; a sister, Patricia M. Haley of Whitman; two stepdaughters, Rosemary Jarvinen of Norwell and Joanne Brennan of Holbrook; and several nieces and nephews. She was the daughter of the late George L. McDonald Sr.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by McDonald Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 30 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Downtown Plan Gets Public Boost

move quickly as possible while there's life still being breathed into our small businesses," she said.

Several union workers and labor representatives in attendance backed the mayor's initiative.

Former City Councillor Mike Cheney expressed overall support for the plan, but said several zoning changes have been implemented over the years and have not spurred a large influx of development activity in the downtown area. Cheney prodded the city to put together a "redevelopment authority" that would streamline efforts to build in the downtown area.

"This is a very good first step, but it doesn't go far enough," he told councillors.

Quincy resident Patrick Joyce tied the mayor's rezoning plan to the property tax issue, saying efforts to lure commercial developers will only benefit residential taxpayers come tax time.

"Every year we hear that there are more and more homeowners and less and less businesses," said Joyce.

Phelan's proposal did have some critics, however, but the protests were largely muted as most people lauded the mayor's efforts to energize the downtown area.

Quincy resident David Ritchie said he was "on the fence" about the overall proposal, and said the city stands a chance of suffering from high commercial vacancy rates.

"Just because we are creating a new zone doesn't mean it's like 'Field of Dreams' - if you build it they will come," he told the council. "We have a lot of vacant office space along Route 128."

A handful of residents expressed concern with having 15-story buildings in Quincy Center.

"I'm concerned about quality of life in Quincy," said resident Jocelyn Sedney. "When I walk downtown in Quincy, or when I'm trying to do various errands I like to look around and see the variety of buildings or trees in Quincy, but we are not going to see that if we are surrounded by 15-story buildings.

"Quality of life issues are what is going to be important to people in Quincy, as opposed to a second Boston with tall buildings," she said.

Sedney also said she was concerned with giving the planning board the authority to grant development permits.

"The planning board is an appointed board. We don't need all this power being vested in an appointed board whose interests may not be with the interests of the actual people living in Quincy," she said.

Coinciding with the zoning proposal is the administration's push for a new tax incentive program that would allow the city to use anticipated taxes from any new development to borrow money to pay for public improvements downtown.

Called "District Improvement Financing," the measure was created two years ago and fleshed out last summer. Quincy is expected to be one of the first municipalities in the state to apply for the program.

One general financing plan was recently introduced to the council, and a more detailed plan is forthcoming, according to city officials.

Planning Director Dennis Harrington said a comprehensive study for downtown parking will soon be underway in an effort to determine the amount of parking that will be needed around Quincy Center and where it can be located.

Currently, the city has contracted with Rizzo Associates to undertake a wide-ranging traffic study in the downtown area, he said.

Harrington said potential developers will want to know the status of parking and traffic in the downtown area.

Part of the traffic study will help to define the exact route of Phase Two of the Quincy Center Concourse as it winds through the downtown area. When completed, the concourse will connect Burgin Parkway with Route 3A on Southern Artery.

Harrington also said the zoning changes would not impact the city's inclusionary zoning ordinance, which mandates developers to set aside affordable housing for structures that contain 10 units or more.

After the meeting, most councillors said they expect Phelan's plan to receive swift approval.

"There was really no strong opposition to the proposal," said Council President Frank McCauley. "It was one of the few public hearings I've seen where no one in opposition said it was a bad idea."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin agreed, calling the rezoning initiative "one of the most significant ordinance changes this city has ever seen."

"I am convinced that there is a need to move forward, either with this proposal or something similiar to it," he said after the meeting. "There is an opportunity here to make Quincy a world-class city."

A written public comment period will continue until April 22. Residents or interested parties are encouraged to submit comment to the city council.

The ordinance committee will take up the matter again on April 25 at 7 p.m. A vote on the mayor's proposal is expected at that time. "I hope we can move forward," said Coughlin. "I don't want this initiative to languish."

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN presented Blue Star banners to families of soldiers currently stationed overseas in Iraq during a ceremony held last Saturday at the National Guard Armory on Hancock St. The event served to demonstrate the city's support of its troops stationed throughout the world. The city has given approximately 120 Blue Star banners to military families whose loved ones are currently on active duty. Pictured, from the left, Quincy resident Capt. John R. Honored With Blue Star Banners

A Banner Day For Military Families

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

It was a banner day for Quincy families who have loved ones stationed overseas in Iraq.

Mayor William Phelan's office, in conjunction with Quincy Veterans' Services and the Quincy Citizens Police Academy Alumni, handed out Blue Star banners last Saturday to the families of soldiers from the Quincy-based Massachusetts National Guard 102nd Field Artillery Battalion currently serving in Iraq.

The ceremony, which took place at the National Guard Armory on Hancock St., served as a reminder of the city's support of the families of soldiers stationed overseas. Phelan presented Blue Star banners to roughly 30 families during the event.

Blue Star banners represent a reminder to families that their loved ones are serving their country in various capacities throughout the world. They date back to 1917, when they were designed by an Ohio Army captain in honor of his two sons serving overseas during World War I.

Blue Star banners became the unofficial symbol of those with family members in a war zone. Gold stars signify a family member died while on active duty.

After the ceremony, the mayor's office, with the assistance of the Quincy Citizens Police Academy Alumni, provided a family cookout for those in attendance. Hot dogs, hamburgers and soft drinks were served. A basketball game and activities for children were also featured.

According to Henry "Hank" Bradley, director of Quincy Veterans' Services, the city has given approximately 125 Blue Star banners to the families of soldiers serving on active duty throughout the world.

Bradley, a member of the Shriners, said the organization will provide roughly 350 tickets to military families for the Shriners Circus in Wilmington on May 7.

Delahunt Sponsors Social Security Forum

Congressman Bill Delahunt will sponsor a forums on Social Security featuring nationally recognized experts Monday, April 25, at 2 p.m. at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy Point.

Speakers will include Dr. Peter Diamond, a professor at MIT and past chairman of the National Academy of Social Insurance, and author of "Social Security: What Role for the Future?"

Kurt Czarnowski, regional communications director for the Social Security Administration in New England, also will speak.

The sessions will be set up as panel discussions with time for questions from the audience.

223 Senior Housing Units Proposed

Squantum Gardens Meeting Tonight

Mayor William Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner will conduct a community meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the North Quincy High School Auditorium regarding a proposal to build 223 units of senior housing, known as Squantum Gardens, at the intersection of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive.

The meeting will give residents the opportunity to inquire about a proposal by Elder Housing Corporation of 77 Saratoga St., Quincy to construct the housing units at the 14-acre site that formerly served as naval housing for the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The zoning board of appeals previously approved the Squantum Gardens development on Jan. 21, 2003 for 223 units of affordable, senior housing to be located in one five-story building and two three-story buildings. The total number of parking spaces approved was 280.

Due to dramatic increases in the cost of building materials over the last two years, the petitioner has undertaken a redesign of the development and seeks to present this new design to the community.

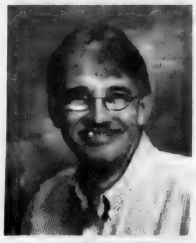
Recovering From Heart Transplant



Blood Drive April 29 For Rev. David Wooster

Mayor William Phelan's office, in conjunction with the Quincy Hunger Network, will sponsor a blood drive for Rev. David Wooster on Friday, April 29 from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The blood drive will be conducted by Massachusetts General Hospital.

Quincy Hunger Network is made up of the five food pantries and the major supermarkets in the city.

Rev. Wooster, recovering from a heart transplant, is the executive director of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion in North Quincy. He is also the program manager for the Quincy Crisis Center.

Rev. DAVID WOOSTER

"David has done so much for the community, and it's a nice way to give back to him," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

Wooster has undergone six surgeries in six months, and the blood drive will go a long way in assisting him during his recovery, according to Kathi Garrison, officer manager at the Sanger Center.

"He (David) is feeling stronger now than in many months," said Garrison. "He is ready to go home, but he can't do it just yet."

Wooster has been instrumental in organizing food drives for many years in Quincy.

Evergreen Saplings Ready For Pickup At DPW Yard

Those evergreen saplings you've been waiting for since January will be ready this weekend at the DPW Yard, 55 Sea St.

Pick up times are Saturday, April 23, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Sunday, April 24, from 12 noon to 2 p.m.

Each January, for the past 15 years, old Christmas trees have been traded in for mulching in return for a coupon entitling the bearer to one live 10-inch evergreen sapling in the spring.

In 15 years, the program has given away some 10,000 trees.

Developer Jay Cashman is the sponsor of the program with Mayor William Phelan and Ward 1 City Councillor Leo Kelly, chairman.

Star Of Sea Church Friends Optimistic After Meeting

By TOM HENSHAW

A delegation from the former Star of the Sea Parish in Squantum met with members of the Boston Archdiocese reconfiguration committee last week and at least two of them came away with a modicum of optimism.

"It went very well," said Sean Glennon, co-chairman of the Friends of Star of the Sea. "I think they were impressed. They asked a lot of questions that I don't think they would have asked if they weren't interested."

"I was very encouraged," said Maureen Mazrimas, the other co-chairman. "I got the impression that they thought our case was very compelling. Of course, that may be wishful thinking but we did make some valid points."

Friends of Star of the Sea are seeking to have their Squantum church, which has been closed since the final mass was celebrated Sunday, Oct. 24, reopened as a mission tied to Sacred Heart of North Quincy and St. Ann's of Wollaston.

Co-Chairman Sister Janet Eisner and Jack Connor, chairman of the advertising firm of Hill Holliday, members of the reconfiguration committee, met with the Friends for about two and a half hours at the Squantum Community Center.

The Friends delegation included Glennon, Mazrimas, Erin Driscoll, Jeff Turok and Ray Cadogan, each of whom reviewed a different segment of the Friends' case for reversing the order and retaining Star of the Sea as a place of worship.

Mazrimas recounted the history of the church on the peninsula, which began as a mission in 1924 and achieved the status of parish in 1945, and reviewed the original reconfiguration process which she considered flawed.

"They seemed surprised at the development of the north end of the city," she said. "The additonal housing units that have been and are being built there had not been taken into consideration. They seemed unaware of it.

"I was very encouraged but they warned us that they were not the final arbiters. They recommend, the archbishop decides."

Driscoll outlined the mission proposal under which Star of the Sea would be served by non-resident priests from other parishes in Quincy for once a week Sunday masses as well as funerals, marriages and other special occasions.

Glennon explained how the reconfiguration process that resulted in the closing of Star of the Sea was flawed in that this was the first time anyone from the archdiocese had listened to their case. He counted 14 flaws in the process.

"I'm glad the archbishop recognized that," he said, referring to the meeting with Eisner and Connor.

Cadogan reviewed the financial aspects of the church's reopening as a mission, including a sample budget that showed a simple place of worship would be more effective financially than a parish. Excess funds, he said, would go to financially strapped Sacred Heart and St. Ann's.

Turok told of a poll that the Friends took at a recent committee meeting that few members of the former Star of the Sea Parish still attend mass — either they don't go at all or they attend churches outside of Quincy.

"We also mentioned that several people would like to see a Catholic mass in Squantum so badly that they are ready to call in a married priest again," said Glennon.

The Friends had planned to hire a married priest, the Rev. Terry McDonough of Duxbury, to celebrate mass Easter Sunday in a Protestant church but at the last minute Archbishop Sean O'Malley sent in an approved priest and allowed mass in the Squantum School gym.

Eisner and Connor also were shown a series of pictures by photographer Noreen O'Shea that appeared in The Quincy Sun illustrating the number of former parishioners (750) that walked to the gym to attend the Easter mass.

"I think they were impressed," said Glennon.

Glennon said Archbishop O'Malley's decision to fully reopen St. Albert the Great Church in Weymouth after a months-long sit-in by parishioners was "excellent news" but his decision to reopen St. Anselms in Sudbury as a chapel was even better.

"We're looking for the same thing," he said.

Mazrimas said the First Church in Squantum, a Congregational church that has provided meeting rooms of the Friends, is considering starting a non-denominational church.

"I heard some people Easter Sunday saying, 'What, Easter in a school gym! There's a perfectly good church down the street,'" she said.

"I know that some have contacted Father McDonough to see if he would come to Squantum. Some Catholics are angry enough not to care about the archbishop's blessing."

To Reduce Water Pollution

Gutro Seeks Clamp Down On Illegal Storm Drain Connections

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro was expected to introduce legislation this week that seeks to regulate illicit connections and discharges to the City of Quincy storm drain system.

The proposed law will prevent pollutants from entering Quincy's drainage system, prohibit illegal connections and unauthorized discharges into the system, require the removal of all illicit connections, ensure compliance with all federal and state regulations relative to stormwater discharges, establish legal authority to insure compliance with the provisions of the ordinance through inspections, monitoring and enforcement.

Gutro was expected to submit the proposal at Tuesday's city council meeting.

"This new law will provide protections against the pollution of our beaches, waterways and coastline," said Gutro. "As we continue to systematically upgrade our sewer system, we need to focus on addressing the more disparate sources of pollution, including those which enter the city's storm drain system and flow out untreated into our waterways."

Under the law, the Public Works Department will have the authority to issue a written order to enforce provisions of the law and its regulations.

If work isn't completed within a specified deadline, the city may undertake such work, and the expenses will be paid for by the violater, according to the measure.

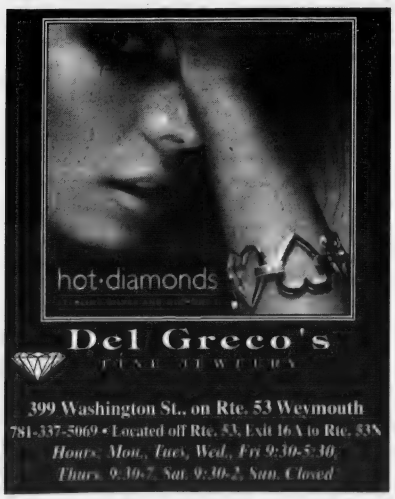
Gutro's proposal would slap property owners with a $300 fine each day the violation continues.

"Even though illicit connections may not be pervasive throughout the city, all it takes is the toilet from one home or business - which is illegally connected to a city storm drain - to shut down a beach," said Gutro.

Rabies Clinic April 23 At Quincy Animal Shelter

The Quincy Health Department will sponsor a rabies clinic this Saturday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St.

Fee is $10 for dogs and cats.



Residents are encourgaged to bring proof of rabies vaccination within the last year.

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 20, 1841, the first detective story is published when Edgar Allen Poe's "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" appears in Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine. Like the later Sherlock Holmes stories, Poe's tale is narrated by the detective's roommate.

• On April 21, 1918, in the skies over France, Manfred von Richthofen, the notorious German flying ace known as "The Red Baron," is killed by Allied fire. Richthofen downed 80 enemy aircraft before his death at age 25 and is regarded to this day as the ace of aces.

• On April 24, 1936, an unplanned event is shown on television for the first time when a group of firemen responding to an alarm in Camden, N.J., is televised. The broadcast anticipated the development of live TV news coverage.

• On April 23, 1956, Elvis makes his first appearance in Las Vegas, but the mostly middle-aged audience was so unimpressed with the rock-and-roll star that his two-week run was canceled after only a week. Ironically, Las Vegas was the site of the star's comeback in the early 1970s.

• On April 22, 1970, Earth Day is celebrated in the United States for the first time. Millions of Americans, including students from thousands of colleges and universities, took part in rallies and educational programs to raise public awareness of the world's environmental problems.

• On April 18, 1989, Chinese students take to the streets in Beijing to protest government policies and issue a call for greater democracy in the communist People's Republic of China. The protests grew until the Chinese government ruthlessly suppressed them in June during the Tiananmen Square Massacre.

• On April 19, 1995, just after 9 a.m., a massive truck bomb explodes outside the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, Okla., collapsing the north face of the nine-story building. The terrorist attack killed 168 people, including 19 children in the building's day-care center.

Rabbi Mann: A Quincy Treasure

He was a Quincy treasure.

For nearly 62 years, Rabbi Jacob Mann was the legendary spiritual leader of Beth Israel Synagogue.

And for those six decades, he also belonged to the Quincy community with admirers in all faiths and walks of life.

His tenure at Beth Israel was an historic one – the longest anyone has served as spiritual leader of a Quincy house of worship.

But there was much more to him than just history.

You didn't need a dictionary to find the true meaning of the word humility. He was a living definition of it. And a role model of what a clergyman should be.

Rabbi Mann, who was born in Jerusalem and came to Beth Israel in 1942 at age 33, died last Tuesday (April 12) in Petach Tikvah, Israel. He was 95.

He had lived there since the fall of 2003, near his daughter, Mrs. Esther Mann Snyder and son, Prof. Jonah Mann of Flushing, N.Y., who also has a home there and where his other son, Rabbi Abraham Mann of New York frequently visited his father.

It was easier for them to keep a loving eye on him there after he fainted and suffered an injury in his Quincy apartment and as age began to slow him down.

But his heart never left Quincy. This was his home – regardless of where he was living.

"He loved all of you . . . this house of God," his son, Abraham Mann told those overcrowded into Beth Israel Synagogue for his father's funeral service last Thursday.

"He loved Quincy . . . that's my home. I want to go home. Take me home . . . (and) he loved this country."

Ironically, a committee of congregation members was meeting that Tuesday night at Beth Israel planning for a city honor to Rabbi Mann when the sad news came.

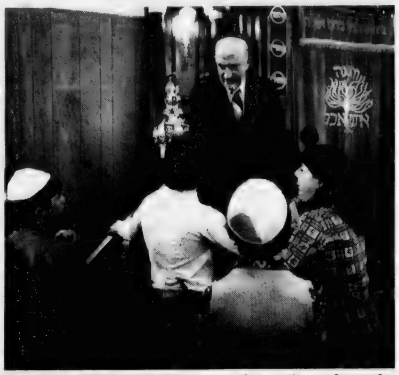
Abraham Mann called Harold Krasnoff, president of the synagogue and Marion Feldman Needel at their homes to inform them.

The two, members of the committee, sadly delivered the news to their colleagues at the meeting.

"Everyone was stunned," said Mrs. Needel.

The meeting had been called to coordinate plans with the city for the dedication of the corner of Grafton and Lancaster Sts., site of his beloved Beth Israel Synagogue, as Rabbi Jacob Mann Square.

The dedication is set for June 5 and both of Rabbi Mann's sons plan to be there.



The City Council last December unanimously voted the honor to Rabbi Mann on a resolve by Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi.

Raymondi asked the Veterans Services Department to erect a plaque and oversee the dedication.

"Rabbi Mann," Raymondi noted, "has not only been an outstanding religious leader but an outstanding community leader. His love for country and veterans was always apparent."

Tom Stansbury of the Veterans Services Department was at the synagogue committee meeting that Tuesday night. Committee members there were Marilyn Reisberg, Bernie and Helen Warshauer, Irving Isaacson, Alan and Marilyn Kramer and Melvin Needel, Marion's husband.

Marion's first husband was the late Jason Feldman who owned Jason's Luggage and Music Shop in Quincy Center. He was a first cousin of Isabelle Marantz, a Quincy school principal and Rabbi Mann's second wife who died in 1990.

RABBI JACOB MANN answered questions about the Jewish religion asked by students at St. Coletta's Day School, Braintree in this undated photo. More than 140 students and teachers were his guests at Beth Israel Synagogue and at a social hour following.

His first wife, Mrs. Leah Mann, mother of the three Mann children, died in 1962.

Marion and Mel Needel kept in close touch with Rabbi Mann in Israel by telephone, calling him once or twice a month.

"He missed Quincy terribly," she said. "Everytime we talked he wanted to know about his friends, what was going on in the synagogue and in Quincy. He always wanted to come back to Quincy.

"He was so giving of himself to all people. He was always there for everyone. He was such a regular and good person."

Mrs. Needel said the committee had planned to send a videotape of the dedication of Rabbi Jacob Mann Square to him in Israel.

"I am sure he would have loved seeing it."

Marilyn Reisberg, another long-time friend, fondly recalled Rabbi Mann officiating at the ceremony when she and Bernie Reisberg, Quincy harbormaster and owner of the former Bernie's Formal Shop, became engaged in 1945 and at their wedding in 1947. And, at Bernie's funeral service in 2002.

"He was there for every single happy occasion," she said. "And every sad one. He was there for everyone in the city. No one was exempt from his kindness."

For many there was that fond memory of October, 1999 when more than 250 gathered at Temple Beth Am in Randolph to honor Rabbi Mann on his 90th birthday and Beth Israel Synagogue on its 80th anniversary.

The guest of honor, as usual, had a few pearls of wisdom.

"We are not eternal," he said. "We are not everlasting. Longevity you cannot buy in a jar. Long life and old age you cannot shop for. It is a present from Him.

"When He presses the button, when He calls you, you answer his call. It depends on what you leave behind. It depends on what you have accumulated during your lifetime."

Rabbi Mann accumulated the love and respect of all who knew him and left behind a legacy and legend of the true meaning of humbleness and caring for others.

He was one of those special people you would like to see more of in a world that really needs them.

Quincy is fortunate he came to Quincy and stayed as long as he did.

You just don't get one like him very often.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1933 postcard view of Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs looking south from in front of today's North Quincy branch library. The cafe' on the left is now a parking lot but the rest of the buildings are pretty much unchanged. Shortly before this picture was taken, Cornelius Keohane opened his first funeral parlor on the left just after the open awning. Keohane's is the only business in this picture that is still in business in Quincy today. The Fratus family who later sold Pontiacs from here owned the Paige auto showroom and the corner building. The house in the center distance later became the site of a Boston Gear Works office building that is empty and for lease today. The flag on the right was flying outside the old Plaza Cafe'. Broad Meadows Development Urged

This Week
1954
51 Years Ago

Executive Director George A. Yarrington said the Quincy Taxpayers Association is going to reopen its long campaign to get the City Council to approve a definite plan for commercial development of 110 acres in Broad Meadows.

"We cannot afford to let the Quincy tax rate to go up," he said. "One of the ways to keep the tax rate from going up is to encourage the construction of new taxable buildings."

NEW HAVEN PLANS WARNINGS

The New Haven Railroad plans to install a signal light and bell to warn pedestrians of approaching trains in the Norfolk Downs station it was announced by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

The mayor said the New Haven also plans a chain link fence – four to six feet high – along the tracks from the station to Linden St. to prevent people from walking across the tracks.

He said he will discuss with Boston Gear Works a proposal to build an overpass for employees who park their cars in a lot off Wilson Ave. and cut across the tracks to work. A fence for them would mean an extra half-mile walk.

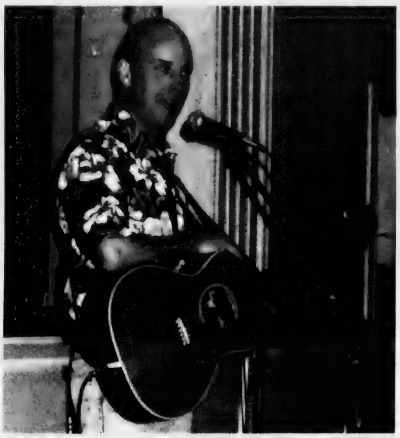
Featuring Singer, Story-Teller Bill Harley

Sacred Heart School PTO Sponsors Family Concert

Sacred Heart School's PTO recently sponsored a free family concert for students and their families.

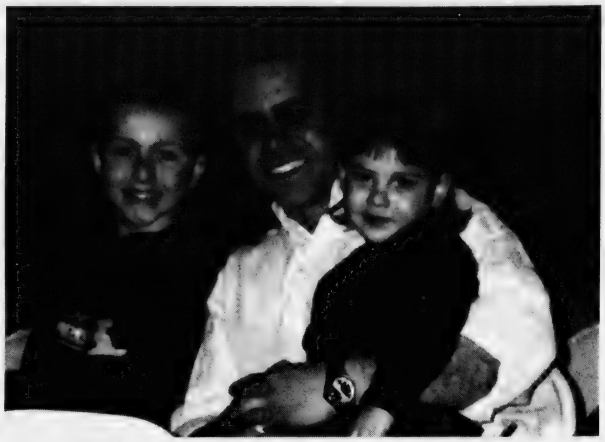
The evening began with a spaghetti dinner prepared by John Himmel, the dad of fourth grade student Julia Himmel. Several other dads volunteered to cook, too.

Over 100 people attended the dinner.



After dinner, the featured performer was Grammy-nominated singer, songwriter and story-teller Bill Harley. Harley's unique and slightly wacky view of life comes through in his songs "You're in Trouble" and "Barbie's Head is Missing." He also told his "Teachers' Lounge" story about what really goes on in the staff room.

For the song "Milky Way" Harley taught the audience sign language so they could sing along with both their hands and voices. He also performed two of his most requested songs, "Down in the Backpack", which is sung to the tune of "Down on the Boardwalk" and "Is Not Is Too" which is about two siblings who constantly argue with each other.



The children and parents were singing, signing, and having a wonderful time throughout the entire performance.

This was Harley's second performance for Sacred Heart.

He performed last May during school as part of the enrichment programs the Sacred Heart PTO sponsors for all the students. His ability to connect with the students and his wonderfully entertaining songs and stories made him extremely popular with the children.

GRAMMY-NOMINATED singer-songwriter Bill Harley performs for students and families at a recent family concert sponsored by the Sacred Heart School PTO.

Two Local Artists Winners In National Art Competition

Two local artists were winners in the Art of Harmony: An Art Competition, which drew more than 10,000 entries from students in nine metropolitan areas across the United States.

Jimmy Tran and Tate Chen, both of Quincy, were second and third place winners, respectively, in the Boston/New England area.

Tran is a 15-year-old student from North Quincy High School. He won a $3,000 U.S. Savings Bond for his artwork entitled "Coca-Cola International Utopia."

Chen, a 15-year-old student from the Woodward School for Girls, earned a $2,000 U.S. Savings Bond for her piece called "Threaded with Harmony."

Their artwork, along with those of the other 10 finalists, will tour the metro area and receive national visibility when exhibited a The Coca-Cola Company's worldwide headquarters in Atlanta.

Students were allowed to use any medium – paint, markers, airbrush, stained glass, sculpture, photography, computer graphics and mixed media.

'Angels Across America' Event Saturday At Hanock Cemetery

Adams National Historical Park and the City of Quincy in partnership with the Architecture Specialty Group of the American Institute of Conservation (AIC) presents Angels Across America: Conservators Caring for our Architectural Heritage, at the historic Hancock Cemetery, adjacent to City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, on Saturday, April 23 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Rain date is Sunday, April 24.

The Hancock Cemetery project is part of a national regional volunteer conservation projects taking place in local communities across the country, all coordinated by the Architecture Specialty Group, on the same weekend of April 23 and 24.

Volunteers from the Architecture Specialty Group, City of Quincy and the National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park are working on a conservation project in the Hancock Cemetery to carry out stabilization treatments on gravestones and to raise awareness of the field of architectural conservation.

Visitors will see professional conservators up-righting severely leaning gravestones, applying protective coatings to bronze plaques, and capping gravestones that have skyward facing fissures. Staff from the Adams National Historical Park will direct visitors and answer questions regarding the cemetery. In 2002 the Quincy Historical Society developed a brochure to serve as an introduction and guide to Quincy's Historic Hancock Cemetery. Tours of the cemetery and the brochure guide will be available on April 23.

Mayor William Phelan noted the historical significance of the Cemetery and expressed hope that this is the first step toward the preservation of the Hancock Cemetery and monuments.

"Thousands of people pass by this location every day on foot, by car and train without realizing the great history resting in these hallowed burial grounds. I hope that through the cooperative effort of the Architecture Specialty Group, National Park Service and our Cemetery Department we can combine resources to realize some much-needed repairs and improvements to protect this historic site," Phelan said.

Listed on the National Register, the Hancock Cemetery dates from the 1630s and was Quincy's main burial ground until 1854. The cemetery graves include multiple generations of the Adams and Quincy families, the Rev. John Hancock, veterans of the American Revolution, War of 1812, and the Civil War.

Marianne Peak, Superintendent of Adams National Historical Park, supports the efforts of these professional volunteers.

"The Hancock Cemetery contains significant historic art and monuments, which honor the early settlers of this area," Peak said. "The Adams family and the National Park Service have a history of honoring and preserving the past. Burial grounds are our sacred places paying homage to those who have gone before us, members of the community who contributed to the growth of America.

"The Hancock Cemetery, Quincy's earliest burial ground, is in need of conservation. We are at risk to lose significant markers and this project will enable us to start a conservation project to insure its preservation."

'Kilroy Was Here!' Original Photos Sought

Mike Condon is looking for an original World War II picture showing the phrase "Kilroy was here!"

And when he finds it, he's going to build a permanent exhibit around it in the USS Salem Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

"Kilroy appeared in thousands of locations worldwide, but it's very difficult to get original photos or copies of photos from World War II or Korea showing the original graffiti," said Condon, the museum's executive director.

"We hope that by spreading the word, people will realize the significance of some of their old photos and memorabilia and allow us to display it for future generations to enjoy."

It's all part of a campaign by Discover Quincy, the promotional arm of the city, to remind people that the famed three-word phrase originated right here is Quincy.

His name was James J. Kilroy and he was employed at the Fore River Shipyard to check off the holes filled by riveters. Some unscrupulous riveters would erase his checkmarks and would be paid twice for the same hole.

Kilroy began noting in chalk beside the checkmark that "Kilroy was here!" and soon warships, often unpainted in their rush to reach the fighting, were leaving the Yard with the chalkmark in plain sight.

GIs around the world took it up with such enthusiasm that Premier Josef Stalin was said to have asked President Harry Truman to explain its significance at the postwar Potsdam Conference of allied leaders.

If you have pictures of World War II vintage showing the legend "Kilroy was here!" that would like to donate or loan, contact the museum at 617-479-7900 or email at kilroy@uss-salem.org.

Gardner Seeks Re-Election To Ward 6 Council Seat

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner announces her bid for re-election to a second term.

"I am extremely excited to continue serving the residents of Ward 6," said Gardner. "The past 15 months have been among the most rewarding in my public life."

Gardner said she has fought for a fair and balanced real estate tax, continued improvements to the streets and sidewalks, and for open space in the Ward 6 community.

Gardner is a member of the Ward 6 Democratic City Committee and serves as vice president of the Citywide Democratic Committee. She has also been a volunteer with the Quincy Christmas Parade for the past 19 years.

ALICIA GARDNER

She is the daughter of Robert and Gloria Noble and grew up in Montclair and Wollaston. She and her husband, Bill, have lived at 41 Deerfield St. in Squantum since their marriage 26 years ago.

Both attended Quincy public schools and graduated from North Quincy High School. They are the parents of three children, Nancy, 24; William, 20; and Robert, 17.

Gardner has served as the director of Constituent Services for Sen. Michael Morrissey for the past 11 years.

The Committee to Re-elect Alicia Gardner will hold a fundraiser on Thursday, May 12 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus, North Quincy. For more information contact Maria Maguire at 617-472-4480.

John Walsh Still 'Opening Doors'

Retired Teacher, Principal Opens $25,000 Scholarships

John W. Walsh gave most of his working life to the young people of Quincy as a teacher at Point Junior High School and principal at North Quincy High for more than 20 years.

And he's still giving to them as a retired educator living in Florida.

Last week the Quincy Retired Teachers Association received a check for $25,000 from the Walsh Family Foundation to establish the John W. Walsh Scholarships for Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

Scholarships of $2,500 each will be awarded to five needy graduates from each of the two high schools who plan to continue their educations.

Steve Moynihan, assistant treasurer of the Retired Teachers, said Walsh's son, John Jr., indicated to him that similar donations will be made to the scholarship fund for the next four or five years.

Walsh himself is a graduate of Quincy High School in 1930 with both undergraduate and graduate degrees from Harvard University,

He began teaching at Point Junior High School in 1937, joining the staff at North Quincy High in 1941 and serving as its second principal from 1957 to 1972.

He and his wife, Sara, now live in retirement on Marco Island in Florida.

"During his long career in education, he found great joy in preparing students to become positive contributors to society," said James V. LeRose, principal in the Bessemer Trust, which supervises the Walsh Family Foundation.

"Perhaps his greatest satisfaction came from opening doors and creating new opportunities for capable well-rounded students who also participated in extracurricular activities or athletics.

"Over the years, Mr. Walsh has been particularly pleased to hear from the many former students who say he motivated them to do more and guided them to be on the right track.

"We hope this scholarship continues John W. Walsh's legacy as a caring teacher, gifted administrator and wise counselor who constantly brought out the best in his students."

Bob Mattson, treasurer of the Retired Teachers, said some $151,000 in scholarships will be awarded by the association this year. bringing the total to $1,040,000 since the first $500 scholarship was given in 1981.

LOCAL WINNERS. Three Quincy women were recognized with Greater Boston Federal Support Personnel Awards for their strong work ethic and commitment to their agencies. Left to right, Ilona Ferrara and Janet Morrissey, both of the U. S. Attorney's office, and Sybil O'Connell of the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

George Burke Takes Possession At Auction

Letters Reveal J.Q. Adams Devotion To Orator Cicero

By TOM HENSHAW

A little known side of the multi-faceted John Quincy Adams came to light the other day when two of his letters went on sale in New York — his devotion to the Roman orator and philosopher Cicero.

The letters and an 1848 printing of the Declaration of Independence, originally commissioned by Adams, were snapped up at auction by Quincy attorney George Burke for about $40,000.

"They belong here," said Burke, a former state rep, district attorney and city councillor. "I want future generations of Quincy young people to understand them. After all, the man who wrote them is buried only a few feet away."

Of the Declaration of Independence, he said, "the name of John Hancock is written large but few people realize that he was born right here in Quincy where the Adams Academy stands now."

"The letters are priceless," he said, "and the Declaration of Independence speaks for itself."

Less than four years ago, Burke laid out more than $180,000 at auction for a tankard, part of a bequest from Col. Josiah Quincy, for whom the city is named.

The tankard is now on display at City Hall and Burke said he hopes to show the letters and the copy of the Declaration of Independence along with the 18th century silver mug.

The letters were written by Adams, the Quincy boy who grew up to become president, in 1833 and 1839 while he was serving in Congress to George Alexander Otis of Boston, who translated the works of Cicero into English.

"I have read with great attention your revised translation of the first four Chapters of Cicero's Office," he wrote in the Nov. 4, 1833, letter, "and if you can pass the remainder of the work through the same process with equal success, I have no hesitation in advising you to publish it.

"To my taste, your translation is now better than Guthries — But if not better it is another — Its novelty would excite curiosity and attract readers to the Offices, and perhaps even to the other works of Cicero — Whoever does this deserves well of his country.

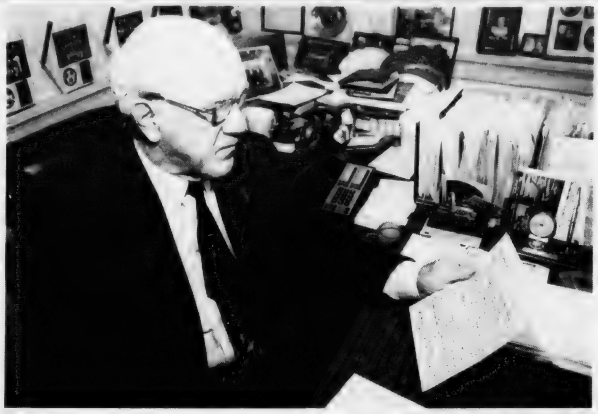
"Your introduction to the second and the fifth Chapters leaves something to be desired . . .

"A good American Translation of all Cicero's works would be a jewel of great price. There is not to my knowledge a good English Translation of any one of them extant."

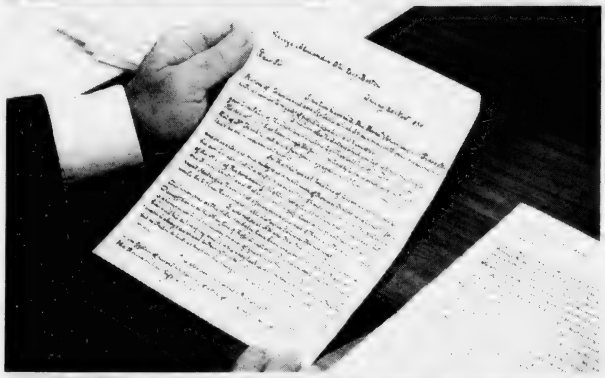
The second letter, written from Quincy on Nov. 20, 1839, while Adams was still a Congressman, deals with the philosophy contained in Cicero's orations as viewed by the former president.

". . . there has never been but one Roman Orator, and that is Cicero himself," Adams wrote. "Even of his great competitor Hortenzius there is not a scrap remaining, and if there was the only use of it would be to show the immeasurable distance between the two men.

"Cicero is . . . not only the Orator, but also the Moral Philosopher of Rome and of the Latin Language . . his great superiority over all others is the union of oratory and moral philosophy in all his works.



"He is the most philosophical of orators, he is the most eloquent of the Philosophers.



The folio broadside (28 3/8 by 25 7/8 inches) of the Declaration of Independence purchased by Burke at the auction is best described as a copy of a copy of the historic document originally drawn up in 1776.

As secretary of state in 1820, Adams commissioned William J. Stone to engrave a full-scale facsimile of the original, print 200 copies on parchment and distribute them in 1826 in honor of the 50th anniversary of the Declaration.

Twenty-five years later, in 1848, the historian Peter Force used Stone's plates to print a projected 1,500 copies on rice paper. Due to lack of interest, however, only an estimated 500 were actually printed and Burke's copy is one of them.

The Adams letters were among a number of items offered up for auction by the Natick Historical Society. Christie's auction house in New York, to whom Burke entered his bids by telephone, listed the Declaration of Independence only as "the property of a lady."

GEORGE BURKE contemplates one of two letters written by John Quincy Adams discussing the Roman philosopher Cicero for which the Quincy attorney paid $40,000 along with a copy of the Declaration of Independence at auction. Letters will be displayed at City Hall.

South Shore YMCA Learning Center Accredited By NAEYC

The South Shore YMCA Quincy Branch Learning Center has earned accreditation from the National Association for the Education of Young Children, the nation's leading organization of early childhood professionals.

"We're proud to be accredited by NAEYC and recognized for our commitment to reaching the highest professional standards," said Laureen Browning, Learning Center Director. "NAEYC accreditation lets families in the greater Quincy community know that the teaching staff at the YMCA Learning Center is committed to quality early childhood programming to ensure a solid foundation for learning and school success.

"The YMCA core values of caring, honesty, respect and responsibility are incorporated into the curriculum to enhance character development for our young children," Browning said.

"In recent years, we've seen a growing number of child care and pre-school programs earning accreditation" said Dr. Mark Ginsburg, executive director of NAEYC. "By doing this, the South Shore YMCA Learning Center has become a leader in a national effort to raise the quality of early childhood education, and to help give all children a better start."

The Learning Center currently serves 65 children ages 2.9 through kindergarten. "We have children from all over the world here," Browning said. "Our staff observes how friendships with other children in the center become opportunities for learning. Many multi-cultural activities are also presented to the children. It is a place that models comfort and acceptance for all."

The South Shore YMCA in Quincy is located at 79 Coddington Street, and offers financial assistance to those who qualify, with the goal of building strong kids, strong families and strong communities.

SOUTH SHORE YMCA Learning Center staff members celebrate accreditation by the NAEYC. 5 Broadmeadows School Students Receive Third Place In 'Calcium Challenge'

Five students from the Broadmeadows Middle School won third place prizes at Cabot's Calcium Challenge held recently at the Boston Children's Museum.

The challenge, which targets teenagers in grades six and seven from the greater Boston area, brought in over 125 entries representing almost 500 students.

The competition invites teens to creatively design ways to inform their peers about the importance of calcium nutrition.

Winners from Quincy are:

Korien Sorenson - a diorama and poster exhibit with the message milk does a body good.

Daniel Nguyen - an exhibit - if you think the reality of not getting enough calcium is tough for teen bodies, try getting the message across in three dimensions.

Andrew Shield - a video - how to live long and stay healthy with calcium.

Ed Einsidler - a display conveying what a calcium rich diet does for the body.

Gerald McCarthy - who performed as the "G Man" as the talented impersonator emphasized the benefits of dairy calcium.

Developed by students, teachers and health professionals, the Calcium Challenge is designed to encourage creativity.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Selling Your Home, Condo? You Must Have Smoke Detectors

Did you know that if you sell your home or condominium, you must obtain a smoke detector certificate from your local fire department?

Mass. General Law, Chapter 148, Section 26F states that "all buildings or structures occupied in whole or in part for residential purposes . . . shall, upon the sale or transfer of such building or structure, be equipped by the seller with approved smoke detectors . . . The head of the fire department shall enforce the provisions of this section."

We receive thousands of calls throughout the year from realtors and homeowners wanting to set up appointments to have homes and condominiums checked for proper placement of smoke detectors. Typically those homes and condominiums are under agreement for sale or transfer of ownership. During the actual passing of papers, the seller must produce a certificate stating that the home has properly installed, working smoke detectors. In this city, that certificate is obtained from the fire prevention bureau of the Quincy Fire Department.

If you are selling your home or condominium and need this certificate, a smoke detector inspection appointment can be made by calling us at 617-376-1015. We schedule the actual inspections for Monday through Friday. The owner or realtor must be at the property at 10 a.m. on the day of the inspection, while an inspecting officer will typically arrive between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. to conduct the inspection.

When making the appointment, you will be asked for the building address, the current owner's name and type of occupancy, e.g.: one-family dwelling, condominium, etc. Take the time to ask about the proper smoke detector placement for your own home or condominium. Failure to have house numbers visible on the front of the building, the absence of a smoke detector or a smoke detector not working, will result in a failed inspection. We therefore encourage you to ask questions, be prepared and avoid failure so that the experience can be as trouble free and timely as possible.

Please keep in mind that towards the end of each month the demand for inspections typically increases while our ability to conduct them does not. We therefore encourage you to allow yourselves enough time prior to passing on the property to prepare for the inspection and to obtain your certificate. We suggest a call be made to this office seven to 10 days in advance of a needed appointment.

The certificate is valid for 30 days from the date the property is inspected. The certificate can be picked up at the fire prevention bureau at 40 Quincy Ave. When making the appointment, ask about our office hours and method of payment. I hope this information is of assistance to you and will help make the transition when moving a little easier.

A Job Well Done

By SGT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, April 17, at approximately 1:50 a.m., Officer Brian Mahoney was working the midnight shift in the Quincy Square area. At this particular time, he was parked in the Blockbuster Video lot monitoring traffic at the intersection of Hancock and School Sts.

SGT. DAN MINTON

Officer Mahoney said he observed a Ford pick-up truck enter the intersection from School St. (eastbound) at the same time a Cadillac heading in the opposite direction approached from Elm St. The Cadillac operator made a left turn in front of the Ford and was struck in the passenger door area.

The Cadillac pulled to the side of the road, but the operator of the Ford, now with heavy front-end damage, rapidly increased speed and left the scene of the accident.

Officer Mahoney put his blue lights on, entered the intersection and notified the dispatcher that a serious accident had occurred. He requested an ambulance and additional police units. He also radioed that he was looking for a red Ford F150 with aforementioned damage. In the short period of time that it took for Officer Mahoney to pull into the intersection, the Ford was gone.

Officer Jim Whedbee, who was working in the area of the police station, immediately responded to the area where the Ford was last seen heading. He spotted the suspect vehicle fail to stop for the stop sign at Elm and Washington Sts. He put his blue lights on and stopped the Ford at James St.

With Fallon Ambulance and additional officers at the accident scene aiding the injured, Officer Mahoney responded to Officer Whedbee's location. Officer Mahoney questioned the male operator and noted the odor of alcohol coming from his breath, as well as bloodshot eyes and slurred speech, all indicators of someone under the influence of alcoholic beverage. The suspect refused to answer any questions other than to indicate that he was not injured.

The suspect was asked to step to the rear of his truck and as he walked, Officer Mahoney observed the suspect to be unsteady on his feet, using the side of the truck to keep his balance. The suspect refused to take field sobriety tests and was subsequently arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol.

Officer Mahoney observed that both airbags had deployed inside the Ford pick-up truck. This was important to note so that the operator would not be able to use as his defense that the damage to the truck was "old," or from a different accident.

Officer E.J. Hartnett, at the accident scene, reported that a passenger in the Cadillac was transported to Quincy Medical Center with minor injuries. The operator of the Cadillac was not injured. She said that she made the left turn in the intersection and was struck by another vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed. Other officers assisting at the scene were Officers Borden, Tait and Sgt. Steele.

The suspect (now the defendant), a 40-year-old male from Charlestown, was charged with OUI 2nd offense, leaving the scene of an accident with personal injuries and a stop sign violation.

In summary, Officer Mahoney selected this intersection to monitor because of the volume of traffic at that hour. Things can change fast. The accident occurred right in front of him and he was able to provide first aid for the victims, secure the crime scene and broadcast information quickly so that Officer Whedbee could stop the suspect.

Their response prevented the suspect from hurting anyone else, especially now that he was driving recklessly tying to elude capture. The arrest also took an alleged drunk driver off the road not just for the night but possibly for a long time.

Nice work!

Something to consider:

If you are going to be driving late night, as always, it is recommended that "defensive driving" be the rule. Nationally, drunk driving and related accidents are significantly higher during this time. Other drivers can be sleepy or not alert. There is also less traffic so the speeds are often higher. In this particular case, even though it was not the operator of the Cadillac's fault, just entering an intersection resulted in a serious accident at a time when there is low traffic volume. Knowing this information can help reduce your chances of being involved in an accident.

For May 7 Event

Cleanup Sites Named For Cleaner, Greener Quincy

The 16th annual "Cleaner, Greener" Quincy celebration is scheduled for Saturday, May 7 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and Mayor William Phelan is encouraging interested residents to locate a site designated for sprucing up.

The celebration will be capped off in Merrymount Park where Phelan will host an appreciateion cookout for all volunteers. In addition, all volunteers will receive a "Cleaner, Greener" t-shirt for their efforts.

Some residents have already organized a site in their neighborhood.

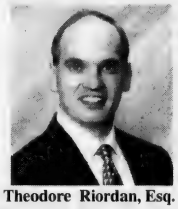
To date, this year's cleanup sites include:

Ward One: LaBreque Field, Shoreside Beach, Port Island Road Beach; Ward Two: Avalon Beach and Faxon Park; Ward Three: Bishop Field and The Bog; Ward Four: Lincoln Hancock; Ward Five: Merrymount Park and Wollaston Beach; Ward Six: Nickerson Beach, Orchard Beach, Squantum Causeway and Marina Bay Marshes.

The Quincy Park Department will support the beautification effort by providing the necessary tools, rakes, brooms, gloves and other equipment. The Department of Public Works will also assist in the hauling nearly 150 tons of refuse expected to be collected.

To designate a cleanup site or more more information, call 617-376-1251.

Child ID Program Saturday At Wollaston Care Center



The Wollaston Child Care Center and Ward 5 City Councillor Doug Gutro will host a CHIP (Child Identification Program) Saturday, April 23, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the Center, 47 Weston Ave.

The event is open to the entire community but children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Parents will be given free of charge an identification kit containing dental impressions, fingerprints and a video interview.

The CHIP Program is sponsored statewide by the Massachusetts Dental Society and the Crime Prevention Officers Association in an effort to expedite a quick investigation of a missing child.

SPRING CAR CARE

How To Keep Cars And Drivers From Overheating

Hot summer temperatures can be as brutal on a poorly maintained automobile as the most chilling winter weather.

When the temperature rises above 90 degrees, trouble begins for many motorists. Vehicles with weak batteries may have difficulty starting, air conditioning systems can fail and poorly maintained cooling systems can leak and overheat.

Cracked belts may snap and worn hoses can burst and begin leaking as temperatures rise inside and outside the engine compartment.

"While many motorists know the approach of cold weather signals the need for preventative maintenance, hotter temperatures also require special attention for motor vehicles," said Alfred Ruggiero, AAA's manager of Approved Auto Repair.

To keep vehicles free from heat-related problems, AAA recommends a complete inspection by a certified technician. At a minimum, the following maintenance items should be checked.

• Inspect antifreeze/coolant level, making certain proper 50/50 mixture of water and coolant is present.

• Switch to a summer grade, thicker, motor oil that carries the certification mark of the American Petroleum Institute specifying approval for gasoline engines. Check the vehicle owner's manual for specific recommendations.

• Inspect and replace worn or cracked belts as well as worn, cracked, blistered or soft hoses.

• Check the air conditioning system for proper operation. If repairs on a 1995 are needed have it serviced using the refrigerant CFC-12 or consider retrofitting to HFC134a. Do not substitute non-approved refrigerants.

It is also important to know that battery performance is compromised by extremes in temperature, whether hot or cold, so old or weak batteries should be tested and replaced if necessary.

Because even a well-maintained car can break down, it's a good idea to carry drinking water and a windshield shade that will reduce heat build-up inside a vehicle. A mobile telephone or a citizens band radio can be used to summon help.

"Becoming stranded by a breakdown on a summer day may not seem threatening," Ruggiero said. "Yet, a hot day on the side of the road without water or shade can become a motorist's worst nightmare. To help prevent a breakdown, inspect your vehicle before warm weather hits and monitor its condition throughout the summer driving season."

Maintenance The Best Form Of Driving Vacation Insurance

Planning a successful summer driving vacation involves more than arranging overnight stays or knowing how many states will be visited on the journey. Attention to details, including preventative automobile maintenance, is the key to a stress-free driving vacation.

Before taking the trip, have your car inspected by a certified automotive technician. Things can go wrong no matter how well you prepare, so it's a good idea to carry emergency supplies. If you expect to be traveling at odd hours or off the beaten path, consider carrying a cellular phone for summoning help, if needed.

Don't overload your vehicle with luggage, AAA advises. A fully loaded vehicle can put excessive stress on tires, brakes and suspension components, so pack as lightly as possible. When loading the car, position luggage so it doesn't obstruct the driver's view or shift during braking or sharp turns. Keep in mind car top carriers can affect vehicle handling and reduce fuel economy.

Check your route for food, fuel and rest stops. Stopping every few hours will help fight fatigue. Make hotel or motel reservations beforehand.

It's a good idea to carry as little cash as possible. A major credit card, ATM card and traveler's checks are safer options. Take the telephone numbers of friends to call in case of emergencies, and let someone know your itinerary.

AAA offers its members route planning, reservations, traveler's checks, car care advice, and roadside assistance. No one can be assured of a perfect trip, but proper planning can increase the odds.

Spring Car Care Is The Key To Trouble-Free Summer Driving

Spring is the perfect time to help your car recover from the brutal winter and prepare it for the rigors of summer driving, according to AAA Southern New England.

"After a long winter, most people are eager to get out and enjoy the warmer weather," said AAA Car Doctor John Paul. "The time spent preparing your car can keep your spring and summer road trips from being interrupted by expensive and inconvenient breakdowns."

To prepare for warm-weather driving, AAA suggests motorists have their cars thoroughly inspected by a certified technician. At minimum, you or your technician should:

• Inspect antifreeze/coolant level and condition, making certain the proper 50/50 mixture of water and coolant is present.

• Check motor oil and condition. If driving under extreme conditions — such as very hot temperatures or towing a heavy trailer — switch to a motor oil with higher viscosity. Check the owner's manual for specific oil recommendations.

• Inspect and replace worn or cracked belts as well as worn, cracked, blistered or soft hoses.

• Examine tires for uneven or excessive tread wear. Make sure all tires, including the spare, are inflated properly.

• Check the air conditioning system for leaks. On older systems repair and refill with R-12 or consider retrofitting to R-134. All vehicles manufactured since 1995 use R 134. Do not use non-approved substitute refrigerants.

• Hot weather can shorten the life of a car's battery, so weak or old batteries should be tested and replaced if necessary.

• Check fluid levels and tire pressure before, during and after a long road trip.

Top 10 Items For Your Car

(NU) - As a driver, you should be prepared for vehicle breakdowns or other unexpected situations. For safety, the service specialists at Chrysler, Jeep and Dodge recommend keeping the following items in your car.

1. Disposable camera. In case of an accident, it will help you document any damage.

2. First-aid kit. It will come in handy for treating minor cuts, bumps or bites.

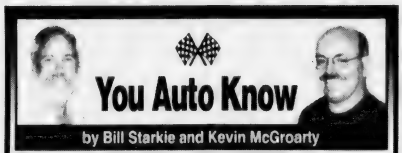
3. Charged cell phone. You might need to make a call if you are involved in an accident, your vehicle breaks down or you need directions.

4. Earpiece for your cell phone. This allows you to keep both hands on the steering wheel.

5. Flares. They will alert passing drivers to your presence if you are stopped on the road.

6. Spare tire. Always have one available in case a tire needs to be replaced.

7. Toolbox. You might need tools for tasks such as changing a headlight lamp.



8. Map. Even if you know where you are going, you may run into a detour and need to find an alternate route.

9. Driver's manual. This reference contains information on everything from dashboard warning signals to the kind of gasoline you vehicle requires.

10. Water and snacks. They will be useful if you become stranded or are traveling with children or pets.

GAINING WIDER BERTH

As Americans increasingly drive SUVs and minivans, cities and towns are looking to create sufficiently large parking spaces to accommodate them. According to the Census Bureau, the number of registered SUVs increased more than 55% during a recent five-year period, while small cars that can fit into compact parking spots account for less than 25% of vehicles on the road. Because SUVs occupy more space than ordinary sedans, municipalities across the country are eliminating parking slots designed for compact cars and increasing the minimum width of parking spaces to fine feet. The width between parking rows is also being widened in some cases. These moves are reversing a trend that began in the 1980s, when small cars were popular.

Whatever the size of your vehicle, your safety is our concern. Maintaining your vehicle in top condition is our job. Our team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO has earned a wonderful reputation from our many satisfied customers. We are your local full service auto repair shop and take pride in our workmanship and the service we offer. Stop in and visit us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Open: Mon. - Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: The simple act of widening parking spaces could force developers to build smaller projects because the number of required spaces is linked to the square footage of a building.

Eyeglass Collection, Run/Walk Among Activities

April 24-30 'Lions Week' In Quincy

Free vision and health screenings, the annual Lions Run/Walk for Sight and a city-wide collection of used eyeglasses to help those in need are among the activities that will highlight "Lions Week" in Quincy next week.

Quincy Mayor and Lions Club member William Phelan recently presented club President Jennifer Logue with a proclamation designating April 24-30 as "Lions Week" in Quincy in recognition of the club's 64-year history of serving the community.

To mark "Lions Week," the Quincy Lions Club has scheduled a series of events aimed at helping blind and visually impaired persons. Throughout the week, the club will be conducting its annual city-wide collection of used eyeglasses. Collected glasses are repaired and distributed to people in developing nations, where access to vision care often is either unavailable or unaffordable.

"Each year, the Quincy Lions Club collects thousands of pairs of eyeglasses thanks to the generosity of local residents," said Logue, who noted more than a quarter of the world's population is estimated to suffer from vision problems. "By donating their old eyeglasses, people can help those less fortunate gain the gift of sight."

Throughout Lions Week, residents can drop off their used eyeglasses and sunglasses in special collection boxes at participating businesses throughout the city.

"Many people have old pairs of eyeglasses laying around that they don't know what to do with," Logue said.

Eyeglass Collection Locations

Drop off used glasses during Lions Week at the following locations. Each location will have a specially marked Lions eyeglasses collection box. Eyeglasses may also be dropped off at the Run/Walk on Saturday, April 30 at Pageant Field.

"By donating them to the Lions Club, people can make a tremendous difference in the life of someone in need."

Lions Week will culminate with the eighth annual Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight Saturday, April 30 at Pageant Field in Quincy. Registration begins at 9 a.m., with the children's 1K Run/Walk starting at 10:30 a.m.

The 5K Run/Walk will begin at 11 a.m. Registration fee is $5 for children, $20 for adults ($17 for pre-registration).

Participants may pre-register on-line at www.quincylions.com or call (617) 328-1384 to request a registration form.

The Lions Club Eyemobile will be on hand at the Run/Walk to provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings to attendees.

Following the race, a barbecue buffet luncheon will be provided courtesy of Outback Steakhouse, while free massages will be provided by Brown Chiropractic Centers, PC.

The event will also feature a disc jockey, medals for race winners, t-shirts for all registrants and prize raffles. Prizes include two tickets to an upcoming Red Sox game and a getaway for two at the Quincy Marriott.

In addition, the Quincy Lions Club will raffle off a trip to two to Ireland, including roundtrip airfare, six nights' accommodations, full breakfast each morning and a rental car with unlimited mileage.

All proceeds from the Run/Walk will be used to fun eye research and support the Quincy Lions Club's community service activities.

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN presents Lions Club President Jennifer Logue with a proclamation declaring April 24-30 "Lions Week in Quincy."

Multifamily Home Sales Climb To Record Levels During 2004

Sales of multifamily homes in Massachusetts increased for a fourth consecutive year in 2004, climbing 20.3 percent, to establish a new annual record for multifamily home sales, according to the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

The double-digit gain in annual sales volume is the largest in a decade, dating back to 1994 when sales rose 40 percent over 1993 levels, and reflects strong demand from immigrants and first-time buyers, as well as renewed confidence in the multifamily market among investors.

In 2004, a total of 9,726 two-, three- and four-family homes were sold in Massachusetts, the most ever recorded in a single year in state history. The prior record was set just last year when 8,086 multifamily homes were sold statewide.

"The demand for multifamily homes has never been greater," said MAR President Maggie Tomkiewicz. "While they don't reflect the traditional image of starter homes, duplexes and tripledeckers do provide entry-level buyers with an affordable option into the housing market, especially for single persons and young families who may ben-

Margie Duffy
'meticulous care...'

Jack Conway, REALTOR®

Dear Jack,

My home in Quincy has been sold and I have Margie Duffy of your Quincy/Wollaston office to thank. She had an uncanny feeling for pricing – not too high to scare off buyers, just right for winter buyers.

Since we were in Arizona the house was empty, but Margie took loving care of all the details – the water in the boiler, the locks on the doors after showings, even the shoveling of snow.

When we needed special information from the Registry in Dedham Margie again took care of our needs, even calling in from her vacation in Puerto Rico.

To top it all off when I needed to get a car driven from Quincy to Gilbert, Arizona Margie again responded to our needs and found a safe, reliable driver.

Margie is not only a true professional, she is also meticulous in her caring attitude. We recommend her to all others needing caring assistance in the Quincy market.

efit greatly from the additional rental income to help pay the mortgage."

Investors also are turning to the multifamily market with increasing regularity, according to industry observers.

"Compared to the ups and downs in the financial markets, the housing market has offered far better returns for investors in recent years, and many are purchasing multifamily homes and turning them into condos," Tomkiewicz said.

Condo conversions have been occurring with increasing frequency in Boston, Cambridge, Worcester and other urban markets where a shortage of land and lack of production of new single-family units has created intense demand for housing.

Regionally, sales of multifamily homes rose in all seven market areas of the state during the past year, with the most significant sales gains occurring in northeastern and western Massachusetts, where sales rose 40.3 percent and 28.7 percent respectively.

Sales activity also increased a healthy 20 percent on Cape Cod (Barnstable County) and in greater Boston over year-ago levels, and improved 10 to 11 percent in Worcester County and southeastern Massachusetts. Meanwhile, on the South Shore, sales were essentially flat, increasing a modest 0.5 percent between 2003 and 2004.

Not surprisingly, last year's record-setting sales pace led to a healthy increase in multifamily property values as well. While specific price comparisons are not available for two-, three- and four-family dwellings separately, the MAR report found total dollar value for multifamily sales increased from $2,699,162,080 in 2003 to $3,606,763,510 last year — an indication that selling prices for multifamily homes rose an average of 11.1 percent during the past year, from an average price of $333,807 a year ago to $370,837 in 2004.

Video Increases Awareness Of Home Electrical Hazards

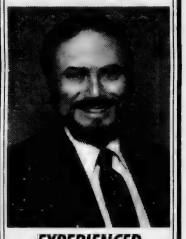
Checking to make sure your home is "Wired for Safety' could prevent a costly and potentially lethal fire in your home, according to the Electrical Safety Foundation International (ESFI).

To help increase awareness of electrical safety, ESFI is offering the "Wired for Safety" electrical safety video and companion guide, developed by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC).

"Electrical fires cause thousands of needless fires each year, resulting in deaths, injuries and more than $1.6 billion in property damage," said Michael G. Clendenin, ESFI's executive director.

Communities and organizations can use this package to help consumers identify electrical hazards and prevent fires in the home, school and workplace.

"Increasing homeowner education and the use of electrical safety technology are two of the best ways to drive down the number of electrocutions and electrical fires that occur each year," said Leonardo Alcivar, CPSC's Director of Information and Public Affairs. "With help from the U.S. Fire Administration and ESFI, this video has been updated and is now a more effective tool in educating kids and parents about electrical safety."



The 11-minute video and companion guide cover the causes and prevention of residential electrical fires. It includes steps consumers can take to replace old wiring, a major cause of deadly electrical fires.

For more information, visit the web sites of ESFI (www.electrical-safety.org) and CPSC (www.cpsc.gov).

11-Run Sixth Gives Raiders Win Over HP

By CHRIS POISSON

BASEBALL

Head coach Rick Beach believed a loss Monday afternoon to Hyde Park would've spelled disaster for the rest of the season.

His North Quincy High baseball team had lost its previous two games and a tournament against strong competition waited for them on deck.

The Red Raiders, with several starters benched for missing a practice, stumbled early on, committing a bundle of defensive, baserunning and mental errors to dig itself an 11-4 hole late in the game.

Somehow, they overcame these obstacles and exploded for 11 runs in the sixth inning to steal a 15-11 victory at Adams Field.

"I told them they were lucky they didn't lose this one," Beach said. "The way we played, that would've hurt us big time. I think the team would've caved. I really do. They would've let up. It would've been a devastating loss especially going into the tournament."

North Quincy (3-2-1 overall, 1-1 Atlantic Coast League) opened the QHS-NQHS Tournament Tuesday at Adams Field against Milton while Quincy faced Archbishop Williams. The consolation (10 a.m.) and championship (1 p.m.) games will be held today (Thursday).

Last week, North Quincy shut out Plymouth South, 2-0, Wednesday at home, dropped a tough 9-8 decision at Whitman-Hanson Thursday and fell to Canton, 4-1, Friday at home.

In his first varsity start, junior John Ridge went four innings, allowing four earned runs on five hits and five walks. Junior Joe Ceurvels picked up the win in relief, giving up three runs on five hits in three innings.

In the 11-run sixth, the Red Raiders benefited from a tiring Hyde Park starting pitcher and capitalized on a couple of errors. They sent 14 men to the plate, with four hits, five walks, two hit by pitches and two errors.

Juniors John Allen and Paul Doolan led off with singles and senior Ricky Schifone was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Senior tri-captain John Fitzgerald stroked a pinch-hit, two-run single and a runner was tagged out at second on the play.

Junior Tom Power and senior Tom Ross walked to load the bases and junior Drew Loud walked to force in a run. Senior Matt Haskins was hit by a pitch to bring home another run and senior Chris Mercurio walked to make it 11-9.

Loud scored from third on wild pitch. Allen, up a second time, reached on an error to plug the bases and Doolan reached on another error to bring home the tying run. Schifone walked to give the Red Raiders their first lead, 12-11.

Fitzgerald lined his second two-run single of the inning. The ball got by the left fielder, enabling Fitzgerald to reach third base but a runner was thrown out at the

Babe Ruth World Series Fund-Raiser Friday

The Quincy Babe Ruth World Series Committee will hold a fund-raiser Friday from 7 p.m. to midnight at Quincy Sons of Italy, Quarry Street.

There will be a light buffet and cash bar. Tickets cost $10 and will be sold at the door. Those interested in volunteering with the World Series may sign up that night.

Quincy is hosting this year's 14-year-old division of the Babe Ruth World Series at Adams Field in August.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Tryouts May 7-8, May 14-15

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth for players ages 16-18 will hold tryouts May 7-8 and 14-15 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at O'Rourke Field.

12th Annual Bob Devin Memorial Golf Tournament June 23

Plans are underway for Fontbonne Academy's 12th annual Bob Devin Memorial Golf Tournament which will tee-off Thursday, June 23 at Easton Country Club for the 18-hole tournament and at the neighboring Pine Oaks Golf Course for the 9-hole tournament.

The tournament will include a box lunch followed by a shotgun start, special on-course events, and a joint dinner at Easton Country Club featuring an awards banquet and live auction that evening.

The live auction will be emceed by Quincy businessman Dan Flynn.

All proceeds from the tournament benefit the Robert M. Devin Memorial Scholarship Fund at Fontbonne Academy.

Donation to participate is $175/person for the 18-hole tournament and $100/per person for the 9-hole tournament. Sponsorship opportunities are also available.

Planning committee members include Bill and Therese Burke of Quincy.

The father of three Fontbonne graduates, Elizabeth '92, Lisa '94 and Nicole '96, Randolph resident Bob Devin was deeply committed to the mission of Fontbonne and to the students, who build their future upon the education they receive there. His untimely death came while he was in the midst of planning a golf tournament to raise money for Fontbonne Academy.

Fontbonne Academy, sponsored by the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Boston, is a Catholic college-preparatory high school for young women. Located in Milton, Fontbonne Academy commits to fostering Gospel values and educational excellence.

To register for the 12th Annual Bob Devin Memorial Golf Tournament or for additional information regarding sponsorship opportunities call Liz Fitzsimons at (617) 698-2837.

plate on the play. Fitzgerald scored the final run when the pitcher balked as he attempted to steal home.

"I told the kids this is the difference between being a good team and a bad team," Beach said of the comeback. "We got a big win here."

The Red Raiders got off to a shaky start in the first inning with mental and physical mistakes. Hyde Park sent 10 men to the plate, with the first four batters reaching base and scoring.

They responded with three runs in the bottom half. Power led off with a double that the left fielder lost in the bright sun. After an out, Loud ripped an RBI single and hustled to score on Haskins' double down the left field line. Haskins, who reached third base on the throw home, scored on an infield error.

Hyde Park scored an unearned run in the third and North Quincy answered with a run of its own. Loud blooped a double just over the first base bag and, once again, displayed heads-up base running when he scored from second base on a wild pitch the catcher had trouble locating.

Hyde Park took a 6-4 lead in the fourth thanks to two more North Quincy errors and scored four runs with two outs in the fifth to grab a 10-4 advantage.

North Quincy, meanwhile, missed out on a golden opportunity in the fifth when it loaded the bases with no outs and failed to score, grounding into a 1-2-3 double play and flying out.

Hyde Park made it 11-4 in the sixth when the leadoff hitter tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly.

Quincy Opens With Three League Wins

SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The start of the season couldn't have been scripted any better for the Quincy High School softball team.

There was the feel-good story of Rachel Sorensen returning to the mound and tossing a perfect game in the season opener against Plymouth South.

Her younger sister Rebi shuts down league rival Whitman-Hanson last Wednesday in a thrilling 1-0 win in extra innings.

And the following day the Presidents avoided a letdown by pounding Plymouth North, 16-2, on the road.

"We got three league wins and that's always great," said head coach Mike Sedar.

Next up, three tough non-league games. Quincy (3-0), which played powerhouse Cardinal Spellman Tuesday, will travel to Stoughton today (Thursday) at noon and host Fontbonne Academy Friday morning at 10.

Against Plymouth North, captain Rachel Sorensen turned in another stingy performance, allowing one earned run on three hits and striking out 10

Quincy led 10-1 before erupting for six runs in the sixth inning to push the game out of reach. Captain Rebi Sorensen powered the offensive attack, going 4-for-4 with three RBI.

Senior captain Rebecca Williams, juniors Leanna Lam (three runs) and Kim LeBel, and sophomore Brighid Kyle each banged out three hits.

"Bec Williams is having a super year so far," Sedar said. "She's the hardest worker. She's a jewel, a coach's dream."

Freshman Marybeth Torpey made her first start in right field in place of senior captain Katie Walsh (back injury) and made several nice catches.

"I just had to watch out for a letdown," Sedar said. "I was concerned about that. But we broke it open in the sixth and that was good."

Sedar may have been a bit concerned heading into the game because the previous day the Presidents pulled out a heart-pumping victory over Whitman-Hanson.

"They're our biggest competition, no doubt about it," Sedar said. "It was nice to get that win. It was a phenomenal game, a great pitcher's duel."

Rebi Sorensen followed up her sister's perfect game with a masterful shutout, punching out 14 and scattering five hits.

Matched up against Lisa de la Campa (13 strikeouts, five hits), the two premier pitchers in the Atlantic Coast League matched pitch for pitch before the Presidents got to de la Campa in extra innings.

In the eighth, Williams led off with a single and senior Marissa Powers reached on a bunt single. Two outs later, LeBel cracked a single to right field to plate Williams with the game-winner.

Good Pitching Foils Presidents

BASEBALL

The Quincy High School baseball team probably saw zeroes in its sleep last week.

The Presidents suffered consecutive shutouts, falling to Whitman-Hanson, 6-0, last Wednesday and to Plymouth North, 5-0, the following day to at Adams Field.

"We're only getting four or five hits a game," said head coach Mike Draicchio, whose team has been held scoreless for 18 straight innings. "I'm not discouraged. We've seen good pitching. We're not striking out a lot. We're making contact. My guys are hitting the ball right at people. I can see us breaking out soon. We just need some balls to start dropping in."

Quincy (3-3 overall, 2-1 Atlantic Coast League) will try to rekindle its offense this week in the QHS-NQHS Tournament at Adams Field. It opened Tuesday against Archbishop Williams while North Quincy took on Milton. The consolation (10 a.m.) and championship (1 p.m.) games will be held today (Thursday).

In the Plymouth North game, senior quad-captain John Santon tossed five innings, allowing three earned runs on five hits and seven walks. Senior quad-captain Steve Sullivan gave up one hit and struck out four in the final two innings.

Senior quad-captain Steve Priscella, senior Zach Eaton and junior John Orlando had the only hits.

Against Whitman-Hanson, senior quad-captain John Folino pitched well enough to win, yielding only two earned runs on four hits while punching out nine and walking none. He has not walked a batter all season. Sophomore Steve Connolly tossed a perfect sixth inning in relief.

The Presidents committed five errors in the game, accounting for four unearned in the fourth inning.

"When you make mistakes against better teams, they're going to capitalize," Draicchio said. "Our pitching has been pretty darn good. Our ERA for the team is 1.54 after six games."

Sullivan, who is batting over .400 this season, cracked a two-out triple in the fouth inning. Priscella stroked a double and Folino and Eaton each had a base hit.

Registration April 25, April 27 For Koch Club Youth Baseball

Registration for Koch Club Youth Baseball will be held Monday, April 25, and Wednesday, April 27, at 6 p.m. at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School, Hollis Avenue, North Quincy.

Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible to register to participate. The season begins May 2 and ends June 29. All games are played at O'Neil Field Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. Cost for registration is $18 and each participant will receive a hat and T-shirt.

The program is dependent on volunteers and parents are encouraged to volunteer and assist with coaching and organizing the games for the youngsters. Games are informal and there is a greater emphasis on participation and instruction rather than competition. No tryouts are held.

The Koch Club was founded in 1948 by the late Richard J. Koch and has provided countless opportunities for youngsters to participate in various sports programs for pleasure. In addition, the Koch Club co-sponsors the city's annual Flag Day parade and participants are invited to march in the parade scheduled for Saturday, June 11.

For more information, contact Chris Hall at 617-471-0823 or Tom Koch at 617-471-7145.

Atlantic Wins Recreation Dept. Basketball Jamboree

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual Elementary Basketball Jamboree with host Atlantic emerging as champions with a 14-6 victory over Wollaston.

The jamboree brings together boys and girls from recreation centers around the city for a morning of round-robin basketball with all teams playing mini-games. After pool play the event moves to a single-elimination format for the final four teams.

Recreation Director Barry Welch presented Atlantic with the Jamboree Cup and championship ribbons to both teams.

All teams are coached by recreation leaders from various city-wide recreation programs. Welch also praised the work of recreation leaders Chris Meade, Ryan Herlihy, Shelly Donovan and Sarah Goreham, who served as officials.

In the championship, Dan Gould scored five points to lead Atlantic. Pat Gould tossed in four, Emmett Harrow and Joey Lawlor each had two, and Thomas Mannion one. For Wollaston, Sarah Ryan and Tyler Braun scored three points apiece.

Atlantic, coached by Keith Deshler, defeated Merrymount, 36-12, Beechwood Knoll, 27-6, and Montclair, 26-2, to storm to the finals. Against Merrymount, Matt Costa had 10 points, Tom Mannion eight, Pat Gould and Dan Gould six apiece, Lawlor four and Ryan Evans two.

In the Beechwood game, Costa also had 10, Dan Gould seven, Pat Gould and Mannion four apiece and Ryan Evans two. In the jamboree opener against Montclair, Evans led the way with six, the Goulds and Mannion four apiece, and Lawlor, Harrow and Connor Clifford two each.

Wollaston, coached by Paul Griffith, defeated Bernazzani, 12-4, Montclair, 24-2, and Merrymount, 8-6, on the road to the finals. Against Bernazzani, Darren McGrath and Tyler Braun each had four and Walter Hannon and Sarah Ryan two apiece.

In the Montclair game, Eddie McDonough and Tommy Garland each tallied eight points. Alex Colon, William Lunny, McGrath and Ryan had two apiece. Against Merrymount, Colon scored four and McDonough and Braun two each.

Bernazzani, coached by Meghan Foley, advanced to the semi-finals against Wollaston after beating Montclair, 20-10, and taking early losses to Beechwood Knoll, 6-5, and Merrymount, 12-2.

In the Wollaston game, Sean O'Callaghan and Ciaran McDevitt each scored two. Against Montclair, Nick McGaughey, Josh Haywood, Stephanie DiPietro, Gabriella Bertoldi and O'Callaghan scored four apiece. DiPietro scored the only basket against Merrymount and O'Callaghan had all five points against Beechwood.

Montclair, coached by Mark Nolan and Matt Haskins, lost to Atlantic, 26-2, Wollaston, 24-2, and Bernazzani, 20-10. Eddie Costello had two against Atlantic and four against Bernazzani. Jeffrey Nguyen scored six against Bernazzani and Joe Cochrane had two against Wollaston.

Merrymount, coached by Corey Awed, reached the semifinals against Atlantic with wins over Beechwood, 17-4, Bernazzani, 12-2, and loss to Wollaston, 8-6. In the Atlantic game, Connor Doherty scored four and James Dunn, Shawn Grady, John Jones and Connor Dixon each had two.

Against Beechwood, Terrance Rooney netted nine, Dunn four and Jones and Grady two apiece. In the Wollaston game, Rooney had four and Doherty two.

Beechwood, coached by Andrew Dwan, beat Bernazzani, 6-5, and lost to Merrymount, 17-4, and lost to Atlantic, 27-6. Mattie Donovan and Andrew Minton each had two against Bernazzani and Atlantic. Robert King had two against Bernazzani and Merrymount and Colin Evans had two against Merrymount.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Quincy College Health, Wellness Fair April 28

Quincy College, along with funding from the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance, will present the Quincy Health and Wellness Fair Thursday, April 28, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Atrium of Presidents Place in Quincy Center.

The fair is co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun and Lincoln Property.

The fair's goal is to promote physical and mental health for people of all ages and bring various community based organizations together in order to collaborate on effective ways to improve the health and wellness of Quincy residents.

"We have begun a campaign at the College encouraging our students to improve their health," said college President Sean Barry. "We established 'smoke-free' zones around our facilities in hopes of raising awareness of the dangers of tobacco. We are excited at this opportunity to bring many community organizations together to help promote healthy living among our students and residents of Quincy."

The City of Quincy has the highest ranking for underage drinking of any community in Massachusetts, according to the Department of Public Health.

According to Joe Bradley, Director of College and Community Development,

"The fair focuses on general wellness, and will highlight health issues specific to Quincy as identified in a needs assessment," said Joe Bradley, director of College and Community Development. "Specific attention will be paid to substance abuse, especially for adolescents and young adults, which is higher than state averages, and breast health care/mammograms since Quincy is among the lowest rankings for mammograms in the state of Massachusetts," he added.

Over 30 exhibitors, including Quincy College RN students, are expected to be on hand with demonstrations, free prizes, healthy snacks, "bear check-ups" for children, and plenty of helpful tips.

Representatives from the South Shore Hospital will conduct posture screening and discussing exercise physiology. Body fat composition tests will be administered by the South Shore YMCA, RN students from Quincy College will be doing blood pressure screening.

Other exhibitors include: the American Cancer Society, Harvard Vanguard, Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, Quincy Medical Center, Blue Hills Tobacco-Free Network, IMPACT Quincy Alcohol Prevention Coalition, the South Shore Aids Coalition, Manet Community Health Center, South Shore Mental Health, SuperFITNESS, Quincy Department of Public Health and the Quincy Council on Aging.

For more information on the Quincy Health and Wellness Fair, contact Joe Bradley, Director of College & Community Development at 617-984-1778.

Varicose Veins Topic At QMC May 2

Quincy Medical Center will host a free Health Matters health education lecture, focused on new treatments for varicose veins Monday, May 2 from 6 to 7 p.m. in QMC's Conference Center, 114 Whitwell St.

Palma Shaw, MD, FACS, a board certified vascular surgeon with the Boston Medical Center Surgical Associates at Quincy Medical Center, will lead the discussion.

"Varicose veins are the twisted, enlarged veins, most commonly seen in the legs and ankles," said Dr. Shaw. "Roughly 60% of Americans experience varicose veins, which occur when the tiny, one-way valves that pump blood upward become damaged or diseased. The blood, unable to fight gravity and flow out of the legs, pools in the veins, causing them to enlarge and appear a blue-ish color."

The free lecture series is open to the public. Light refreshments will be served. Advance registration is requested and available, 24-hours per day by calling the QMC Physician Referral Service at 1-877-479-CARE (2273).

Belly Dancing May 15 At Ward 4 Community Center

Belly dance instructor Sabrina invites the public to attend her student belly dance recital entitled "Club Belly Dance" Sunday, May 15, at 4 p.m. at the Ward 4 Quincy Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., Quincy.

Student belly dancers will feature both traditional and contemporary music. Admission is $7 at the door. Dress is casual and refreshments will be served.

Modern Treatments For Seasonal Allergies

Sneezing, runny nose, itchy throat, watery eyes, wheezing, coughing, fatigue, and headache.

Do these symptoms sound all too familiar? If they occur at the same time each year or last longer than a cold, you could have seasonal allergies.

Seasonal allergies can be triggered by tree pollen in early spring, mold spores and grass pollen in the summer, ragweed pollen in late summer or even sap from cut grass.

Their effects can be debilitating, but with today's treatment options, there is no need to suffer. An allergist can administer some quick and painless tests to determine the reason for your seasonal discomfort.

"There are a number of effective treatments. Nowadays, there is really no reason to suffer from allergies," said Zuhayr Hemady, M.D., a Milton Hospital allergist with a practice in Quincy.

"You can get a lot of relief from certain medications, allergy shots, or by using air conditioning," Dr. Hemady said.

Simply avoiding allergy-producing agents, or allergens, can eliminate allergy symptoms. By keeping car and house windows closed, washing your hair at night if you've been outside, and keeping your pets clean, you can limit your contact with pollens. But avoidance is not always a practical solution.

In many cases, a single pill or liquid can treat an entire range of allergy symptoms. Antihistamines block the effects of histamine, which causes sneezing, itching, and wheezing. Corticosteroid sprays deliver medication directly to the inside of the nose, reducing uncomfortable nasal inflammation. Eye drops can help control itchy and watery eyes.

For some, allergy shots are the most effective treatment. Allergy shots consist of small amounts of an allergen. After a few weeks of routine injections, the body's immune system builds a tolerance to the allergen.

Proper treatment can help you feel better when pollens take flight. For a list of allergy specialists, call Milton Hospital's DoctorLine at 617-696-8809.

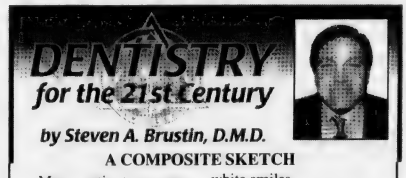
Varicose Veins

Q: I've noticed the beginning signs of varicose veins in my legs. Although they are becoming visible, they do not cause me any pain or discomfort. I enjoy exercising, but I'm not sure if exercise is contributing to this condition. Should I continue to exercise?

A: Varicose veins are described as enlarged and twisted veins that are commonly found in the legs and feet. This condition occurs when the one-way valves of the veins malfunction, causing blood pools and increased pressure against the vein walls, which weaken and become enlarged and twisted.

Approximately 60 percent of American adults deal with this condition, which can be caused by genetics, aging, hormonal changes, being overweight, pregnancy and occupations that require standing or sitting for extended periods. Although most cases are not serious, you should discuss this condition with your physician.

Along with proper nutrition, exercise is recommended for most people with varicose veins as long as it does not cause discomfort or pain. Staying active and fit can maintain or increase the muscle tone in your legs, while helping to facilitate proper blood flow and circulation.



A consistent exercise program will also help keep your body-fat and weight under control. Since one of the causes of varicose veins is being overweight, exercise and a balanced nutrition plan could possibly help lower your risk.

If you find yourself sitting or standing for long periods of time during the day, take a few minutes whenever possible to move around and stretch. This will improve circulation and reduce the pressure buildup against the vein walls.

Unless advised by your doctor, continue with your exercise routine. An exercise program that includes strength and cardiovascular training, plus flexibility and balance exercises, can help keep your muscles (including your heart) strong and aid in proper circulation. If you begin to develop symptoms that become progressively worse, consult your physician immediately to seek medical options and treatment.

If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws @hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

A COMPOSITE SKETCH

Many patients are surprised to learn that there is an alternative material to silver amalgam for cavities. Composite resin dental fillings, made of plastic dental resin, can be formulated to match the color of teeth in a way that the silver color of amalgam obviously cannot. As a result, composite resin fillings avoid the noticeable darkened look that is so commonly associated with amalgam fillings. In addition, composite resin fillings achieve their strength by being applied and light-cured in thin layers. The result is strong, tooth-colored fillings that enhance the tooth's natural structure by bonding with the surrounding surfaces. The superior attractiveness and durability of composite resin fillings make them very popular with patients who desire white smiles.

Regular dental examinations are important because fillings that are broken or no longer intact generally can be detected in the early stages. Please feel free to discuss all of your oral health concerns with us. We stress preventive dentistry and recommend regular dental check-ups for all family members. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Come in and see what a difference we can make in your smile – and what a difference your smile can make in your life. We welcome your call at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Unlike amalgam fillings, composite resign fillings will not shrink over time.

Expanded Asian Unit Opens At Quincy Rehab And Nursing Center

Quincy Rehabilitation and Nursing Center, 11 McGrath Highway, unveiled its newly renovated and expanded Asian unit, the Jade Villa, during a recent Open House.

The new 50-bed unit, the only one of its kind south of Boston, includes a Chinese menu, satellite television direct from Hong Kong, religious services, recreational activities, and a bilingual staff that speaks various dialects.

"The renovations to the unit have a created a warm and inviting environment," said Betty Chan, director of Social Services. "The traditional Chinese de´cor of the Asian unit helps the seniors feel more at home."

A new full-time Chinese director of Social Services and a full-time Chinese cook have also been added.

"I am sensitive to the cultural concerns and fears that arise when faced with admitting a loved one to a nursing center and I try to make the transition as easy as possible for residents and their families. I am available to speak with residents and family members throughout their stay," Chan said.

There are currently more than 40 Asian residents at Quincy Rehabilitation and Nursing Center.

The center provides both short-term rehabilitation, including physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy, nutritional services and social services as well as long term care.

"All of these agencies that service the Asian community need to work together, because we all have the same mission . . . which is to provide the quality of life for the Asian seniors," said Frank Poon, Asian outreach worker for South Shore Elder Services.

"I think the commitment is wonderful and very much needed," Poon added.

Tours of the center are available seven days per week. For more information, contact the Admissions Department at (617) 479-2820.

Aging And Family Subject Of Faxon Woods Sessions

Aging expert Deborah Colgan will speak on aging in a family setting Wednesday, April 27, at 7 p.m. in the Atrium at Faxon Woods, 2003 Fall Boulevard, South Quincy. The session is free.

She will discuss aging as a normal developmental process and how change affects the whole family and the need to restructure and redefine roles that individuals play in relationship to each other.

A light dinner will be served. Seating is limited so this planning to attend should RSVP to 617-471-5595.

'Anadromous Awakening' Features Neponset River Fish

The Neponset River Watershed Association will sponsor a Boston Cyberarts Festival along the Neponset River at Milton Landing on Wharf Street and at the Milton Yacht Club, 25 Wharf St., Milton.

The events, called "Anadromous Awakening," will take place on three Saturday, April 23, 30 and May 7 with exhibits open along the Landing from 4 p.m. and lectures starting at the yacht club at 8 p.m.

Anadromous Awakening, designed by environmental artist Joseph Ingoldsby, will blend art, science and technology to make an invisible event visible through outdoor sculpture, video, banners and lectures.

Art installations will change with the spawning cycles of anadromous fish, the first installation representing smelt, the second herring and the third shad and the environmental conditions that trigger spawning.

The project was developed with support from the State Division of Marine Fisheries and the Neponset River Watershed Association with technology from the UMass-Boston Geographic Systems Labs.

QMC Names Interim CEO

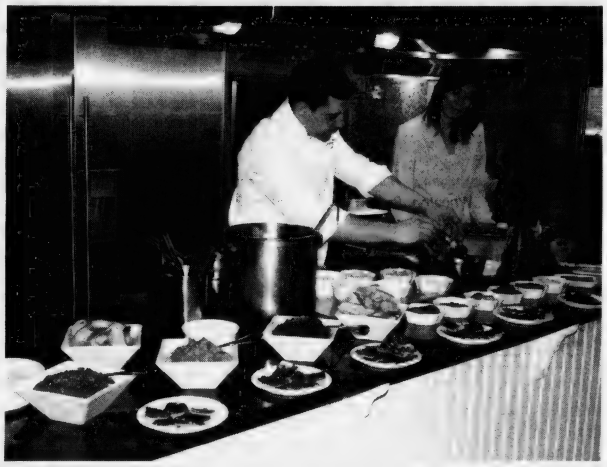
the presidency of Emerson Hospital Health System in Concord. Dr. Gibbons is a nationally recognized leader in the field of diabetic and vascular surgery.

In his current role as Chief of Surgery, he oversees all surgical operations including orthopedics, vascular, minimally invasive/laparoscopic, colorectal, plastic, gynecologic, podiatric and ear, nose and throat surgery.

"Dr. Gibbons has the respect and confidence of the Board of Trustees," said Robert Curry, chairman of the QMC Board of Trustees. "We believe that, together with the QMC senior management team, Dr. Gibbons will provide strong, effective leadership for QMC during this transition period."



Dr. Gibbons joined QMC in 2000 through the Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC). He is also executive director of BMC Foot Care Specialists, a multi-disciplinary practice specializing in the prevention and treatment of diabetic wound and foot problems. He is also a member of BMC Surgical Associates, a multi-specialty group of surgeons who practice at QMC.

A Board Certified General and Vascular Surgeon, Dr. Gibbons is a pioneer of the Dorsalis Pedis Bypass, or Foot Bypass Surgery. The procedure helps avoid amputation for patients with diabetic foot problems.

Dr. Gibbons received his medical degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1971 and completed residencies at Boston Medical Center and the New England Deaconess Hospital. He is an international lecturer on the subject of diabetic foot and vascular surgery and has published numerous articles in clinical journals and book chapters on the subjects. He is a Professor of Surgery at Boston University School of Medicine.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is an acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliance for Quality with BMC, formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community.

At QMC, physicians from BMC direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine and psychiatry. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work with community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

Rabbi Jacob Mann, 95

Served Beth Israel Synagogue For More Than 60 Years

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

RABBI JACOB MANN

A funeral service for Rabbi Jacob Mann, 95, one of the most revered and well-known clergymen in Quincy, was held April 14 at the Beth Israel Synagogue, the spiritual center at which he served for more than 60 years.

He died April 13 of natural causes in Petach Tikvah, Israel, a suburb of Tel Aviv. His remains were flown to Quincy for the funeral and subsequent burial at the Quincy Hebrew Cemetery at Baker St., West Roxbury.

More than 200 congregants, elected officials and dignitaries attended last week's funeral service, which served to highlight Rabbi Mann's life and his contributions to the community as a spiritual leader. The funeral service was conducted under the direction of his immediate successor at Beth Israel Synagogue, Rabbi Shmuel Bronstein.

Mayor William Phelan ordered all municipal flags be flown at half staff on April 14 in Rabbi Mann's memory.

During the hour-and-a half service, Rabbi Mann was praised by family members for being a man who strengthened the city's Jewish faith while reaching out to the city's diverse neighborhoods.

Rabbi Mann's eldest son, Professor Jonah Mann, said his father made two "monumental" trips to the United States from his native homeland of Israel: His initial trek to the states as a young man when he married and became a rabbi in Quincy, and his latest trip home to be buried.

Jonah Mann also recalled his father's keen sense of humor, sharing a story of how a dying man had asked an aging Rabbi Mann to eulogize him at his funeral. "My father, who was in his 90s at the time, said 'You better hurry up,'" he told the crowd, which burst out laughing.

His younger son, Rabbi Abraham Mann, remembered how devoted his father was to the basic tenets of Orthodox Judaism.

"He rejected any attempt to impose upon Jewish tradition," he told those in attendance. "My father would not compromise, and yet he accomodated. Why, because my father was inclusive, not exclusive," he said.

His grandson, Rabbi Daniel Mann, recalled the ease with which Rabbi Mann was able to mingle with both elected officials or judges and the common man or woman.

"He never forgot the people, the old, the young, the widow, the destitute, and even the prisoners for whom he was a chaplain," he said of his grandfather.

He also offered some consoling words to those who knew and worshipped with Mann.

"And finally a word to the Jewish community of Quincy," he told those in attendance. "You were his home. This is his palace. You were his flock. You were his friends and indeed, you were his children."

And Rabbi Abraham Halbfinger, a prominent Boston rabbi, mourned the loss of "a friend to all."

"He was concerned for all members of the congregation, rich and poor, tall and short, men and women," Rabbi Halbfinger said. "He had a unique love for people."

Among those in attendance at the funeral service were Phelan, former Mayor and Clerk Magistrate at Quincy District Court Arthur Tobin, Police Chief Robert Crowley, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, Quincy District Court First Assistant Clerk Robert Bloom, Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry "Hank" Bradley, Park and Recreation Director Thomas Koch, Quincy District Court Judge Marc Coven, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Rep. Stephen Tobin, Past National Commander of the American Legion John "Jake" Comer and Irving Isaacson, past Commander of the Jewish War Veterans.

Rabbi Mann had lived near his son and daughter, Esther Mann Snyder, in Israel since 2003.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

LET'S DEVELOP EMPATHY.

"Empathy" is the ability to put ourselves in the other person's place and have some understanding of their situation.

A little girl was late returning from school. Her mother asked the reason for her delay. The little girl explained that a playmate had broken her doll and she had stopped to help her. The mother, wondering how her daughter could fix the little girl's doll, asked how she helped and her daughter replied, "I sat down and helped her cry."

As we go through life many of us have been placed in situations where we could find no words to express comfort and encouragement. All we could do is to help them cry.

In this needy world, wouldn't today be a good day to show empathy toward those who are less fortunate?

It is a mistaken idea that everyone has an equal chance in this life and if they do not make it, it is their own fault... The person who will reach out to someone else will discover a satisfaction that only empathy can bring...

Rabbi Jacob Mann, 95

Served Beth Israel Synagogue For More Than 60 Years

(Cont'd From Page 30)

He was the husband of the late Isabelle Mann, who died in 1990. He was previously married to the late Leah Mann, who died in 1962.

The rabbi, a native of Jerusalem who came to the United States in 1931, served Beth Israel Synagogue for more than 60 years, from 1942 until he retired in 2003. He also conducted religious training sessions at the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton and served as a prison chaplain.

Rabbi Mann worked on several causes over the course of his life, from wartime blood drives to work in jails and on behalf of charities.

Last year, Quincy District Court created the Rabbi Jacob Mann Social Justice Award. The award's first recipient was the Rev. William R. McCarthy, "Father Bill," a former pastor at St. John's Church and founder of Father Bill's Place.

In addition to his children, Rabbi Mann leaves eight grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

Rabbi Bronstein said he was fortunate enough to meet Rabbi Mann a few months before his death. Bronstein and his family met Rabbi Mann in Israel, immediately noticing his warm personality.

"I was able to tell what a caring person he was," said Rabbi Bronstein. "He was so curious about Quincy, and so happy that there was a new Rabbi here.

"Most of what I know of him comes from the community - his fingerprints are everywhere here," said Rabbi Bronstein.

While living in Israel, Rabbi Mann longed to come back to his adopted home in Quincy.

"My father had loved this House of God," said his son, Abraham. "He felt as though he had built it, and sustained it, and invigorated it. And he loved Quincy. Take me home, he would say."

Rabbi Jacob Mann is home.

Arrangements were made by Stanetsky Memorial Chapels in West Roxbury.

Charitable donations in Rabbi Mann's memory may be made to Yeshiva University, 500 West 185th St., Suite BH304, New York, NY 10033.

A graveside service for Mary L. (Smith) Chilenski, 80, of Port Orange, Fla., formerly of Quincy, a homemaker, was held April 16 at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

She died April 11 at home.

Mrs. Chilenski was a bookkeeper at the former Remmick's in Quincy Square for several years.

Born in Newport, R.I., she was raised in Quincy and graduated from Quincy High School in 1942. She lived in Quincy and in Marietta, Ga., for five years before moving to Port Orange 20 years ago.

She is survived by her husband, Frank T. Chilenski; a daughter, Gail C. Battista of Plano, Texas; and four grandchildren. She was the mother of the late Janet C. Scanlan.

Arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to National Audubon Society, c/o Audubon — Dept. W, 700 Broadway, New York, NY 10003.

William Luther, 83

William "Bill" Luther, 83, of Grand Junction, Colo., formerly of Quincy, died March 11 at Mesa Manor in Grand Junction.

Mr. Luther was an employee in the heating industry.

He was a World War II Army Air Corps veteran.

Born in Worcester, he lived in Quincy, Whitman and Stamford, Conn., before moving to Colorado.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie (Hallahan) Luther; a son, Steven Luther of Denver; two daughters, Carol O'Brien of Manchester, Conn., and Barbara Luther of Orange, Calif.; two sisters, Harriet Haggett of Plymouth and Dorothea Stenberg of Rockland; a granddaughter and two great-grandchildren. He was the father of the late James Luther.

James W. Bollen, 88

Labor Journalist, Shop Steward

A funeral service for James W. Bollen, 88, of Lynn, formerly of Quincy, a labor journalist and shop steward, was held April 12.

He died April 9 at Essex Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Care Center in Beverly.

Mr. Bollen worked at Grossman Lumber Co. during the Great Depression. He was a shop steward at Colonial Provision Meat Packing Co. in Boston for 20 years, participating in the longest strike in Massachusetts history during that time.

He edited the news journal for the Model Cities program in Lynn. He was a labor journalist for the American Foundation of State, County and Municipal Employees Council 94 in Rhode Island. He later edited The Bay State Employer for AFSCME Council 93.

Involved in the civil rights movement, he took part in marches in Washington, D.C.

Born and raised in Quincy, he graduated from Quincy High School in 1935.

Husband of the late Frances L. (Bailin) Bollen, he is survived by four sons, Peter D. Bollen of Bridgton, Maine, Jeffrey Bollen of Carver, Todd R. Bollen of Lynn and Douglas J. Bollen of Salem; a daughter, Ruth Bollen of Camby, Ore.; two brothers, Robert Bollen and Clifford Bollen, both of Quincy; a sister, Marjorie Bollen of Braintree; seven grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

A funeral Mass for Dean J. Malchionno, 41, of Abington, formerly of Quincy, an auto body technician, was celebrated Wednesday at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

He died April 16 at South Shore Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Malchionno worked at Craig's Auto Body in Braintree and at Quirk Auto Body.

Born in Boston, he was raised and educated in Quincy and lived in Abington for 10 years.

He is survived by his life partner, Nicole A. Plant; a son, Dean J. Malchionno Jr. of Abington; two brothers, Ernest Malchionno Jr. and Gerald Malchionno, both of Brockton; three sisters, Debra Malchionno of Washington, and Marie Collier and Dianne Champagne, both of Brockton; two nephews, a grandniece, an uncle and several cousins.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Norman J. Ebsary Sr., 81

Retired Boston Police Official, WWII Veteran

A funeral Mass for Norman J. Ebsary Sr., 81, of Quincy, a retired deputy superintendent of the Boston Police Department, was celebrated Tuesday at Holy Family Church in Rockland.

He died April 15 at Quincy Medical Center.

Mr. Ebsary was a Boston police officer for 36 years, retiring in 1983.

He was a World War II Navy veteran, serving as a pharmacist's mate, first class.

He was a member of Toastmasters, the Saugus Elks Club, the Boston Police Benevolence Association and the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association.

Born in Boston, he was raised and educated in Charlestown. He lived in Saugus and Rockland for many years before moving to Quincy two years ago.

He graduated from Northeastern University with bachelor's and master's degrees in criminal justice.

Husband of the late Claire M. (Hamilton) Ebsary, he is survived by three daughters, Katherine L. Duchaney of Pembroke, Claire M. Murphy of Norwell and Judith A. Ebsary of Northboro; two sons, Norman J. Ebsary Jr. of Florida and William J. Ebsary of Norwell; and 11 grandchildren. He was the father of the late Regiana M. Arvidson.

Burial was in Holy Family Cemetery, Rockland.

Funeral arrangements were by Magoun-Biggins Funeral Home, Rockland.

Donations may be made to the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition, 1419 Hancock St., Suite 202, Quincy, MA 02169.

George F. Taylor Jr.

Former Quincy Police Officer

George F. Taylor Jr., a former Quincy police officer, died April 14 at home after a long illness.

Mr. Taylor grew up in Quincy and attended Quincy schools.

He was a graduate of Northeastern University.

He enjoyed his two Siberian huskies.

He is survived by two sons, Lance B. Taylor and Mark D. Taylor, both of Quincy; a daughter, Michelle Garrett of Marshall, Texas; a sister, Jean Maver of Maynard; and four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Arrangements were made by the Eaton Funeral Home in Needham.

Irja O. Davis, 90

Irja O. (Hokkanen) Davis, 90, of Inverness, Fla., formerly of Quincy, a homemaker, died April 14 in Inverness.

A Quincy native, she moved to Florida from Braintree in 1981.

Mrs. Davis was a former member of the Inverness Good Timers Club.

She is survived by a daughter, Helen M. Tempesta of Inverness; a son, Russell V. Davis Jr. of Braintree and four grandchildren.

Arrangements were by Fero Funeral Home in Beverly Hills, Fla.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be put off by a seemingly too-tangled situation. Sometimes a simple procedure will unsnarl all the knots and get you in the clear fast and easy, just the way the Lamb likes it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to go through your work space — wherever it is — and see what needs to be replaced and what can be tossed (or at least given away) without a second thought.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Someone who disagrees with your position might try to intimidate you. But continue to present a fair argument, regardless of how petty someone else might be while trying to make a point.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might find yourself exceptionally sensitive to family matters this week. An issue could come to light that you had overlooked. Ask other kinfolk to discuss it with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have more questions about a project (or perhaps someone you're dealing with on some level) than you feel comfortable with. If so, see which can be answered, which cannot, and why.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to clean up and clear out what you don't need before your tidy self is overwhelmed by "stuff." Then go celebrate the Virgo victory over clutter with someone special.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might feel a mite confused about why something you were sure couldn't go wrong didn't go all right either. Be patient. Things soon move into balance, exactly as you like it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) At this decision point, you could be moving from side to side, just to say you're in motion. Or you could be considering making a move straight up. What you choose is up to you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although your finances should be in an improved situation at this time, thrift is still the savvy Sagittarian's smart move. Advice from a spouse or partner could be worth heeding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Taking on a new challenge brings out the Goat's skills in maneuvering over and around difficult spots. Best of all, the Goat does it one careful step after another. (Got the idea, Kid?)

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your well-known patience might be wearing thin because of a disturbing (and seemingly unending) problem with someone close to you. This could be a time to ask for help. Good luck.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about a new venture that lures you into a "just-look-and-see" mode. Be sure that what you're being given to see isn't hiding what you should be seeing instead.

BORN THIS WEEK: Aries and Taurus give you the gift of leadership and the blessings of care and concern for all creatures.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

City Of Quincy
District Improvement Financing (DIF) Application
Department of Planning and Community Development

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The City of Quincy, through the Department of Planning and Community Development, will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, April 27th, 2005 at 7:00 p.m. in Council Chamber, second floor Old City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, for the purpose of considering the proposed Quincy Center District Improvement Financing (DIF), a DIF Development District and a Master TIF for Quincy Center District (QCD). This hearing is being conducted pursuant to Chapter 40Q of the Massachusetts General Laws and 402 CMR 3.04 (3).

The City of Quincy has proposed Quincy Center as a District Improvement Financing area. The use of DIF is a financing tool that will enable the city to use "new tax growth" generated within the District to fund infrastructure improvements, streetscape upgrades, marketing plans and other general public improvements such as renovations to existing public parking and new public parking facilities, as well as completion of the final phase of the Concourse that will allow the linkage of several downtown transportation corridors.

District Improvement Financing (DIF) will impose no new taxes on property owners, businesses or individuals residing within the District.

The City of Quincy has also proposed a Master Tax Increment Financing (TIF) for the Quincy Center District. The concept of the Master TIF is to designate in advance, the QCD or portions thereof, as an Economic Opportunity Area or Areas ("EOA"). The City proposes to provide a modest tax exemption related to new tax growth generated by development projects, the projects would then be entitled to a 5% Economic Opportunity Area (EOA) State tax credit under the Massachusetts Economic Development Incentive Program ("EDIP").

The City of Quincy is required to conduct a Municipal Public Hearing and to file a hearing report with the City Council. Council approval for DIF boundaries and DIF development is required by Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 40Q. If so approved, the DIF District application will be submitted to the Massachusetts Economic Assistance Coordinating Council for its review and approval.

Written comments may be provided to the Department of Planning and will be accepted for inclusion in the hearing report until 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 29, 2005. Comments received before the Public Hearing on April 27, 2005 will be reviewed and included in the Public Hearing record.

Copies of the text of the DIF application with District Boundary Map as well as the Master TIF for the Quincy Center District as submitted to the City Council pursuant to 402 CMR 3.04 (5) (6), may be reviewed in the Department of Planning at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, 3rd Floor and in the Thomas Crane Public Library main branch at 40 Washington Street.

While City Waits For SBA Ruling

School Committee Wants Alternative HS Plans

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The school committee's building needs subcommittee is expected to review alternative plans for the construction of a new high school in the next week or so.

A meeting has been tentatively scheduled for the first week in May, according to subcommittee Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg.

A definitive plan for the construction of a new Quincy High School remains a mystery nearly eight years after the city first hatched its intentions to undertake the largest construction project in its history.

And it appears the wait will continue as city officials and the school committee try to figure out the best plan for Quincy given the funding and environmental constraints associated with the proposed site of the high school, Faxon Field.

JO-ANN BRAGG

At last week's school committee meeting, members agreed to ask the city's architect to draft new alternatives for a school by the end of the month.

School committee members said they want to see fallback plans in case the city does not receive approval for 90 percent reimbursement from the state School Building Authority (SBA), the agency which oversees funding of school projects.

Architects recently unveiled two possible alternatives for the construction of a new high school, described as "Option One" and "Option Two." The latter plan has been vigorously pushed by Mayor William Phelan, and the school committee endorsed the plan as the best option, regardless of funding contstraints.

But SBA has ruled it is unlikely that Option Two would qualify for a 90 percent reimbursement because it represents a dramatic change from the plan the city received approval for in 2003.

In the meantime, committee members want the city's architectural firm, Symmes Maini & McKee Associates, to draft plans with different wetlands impacts and other variables, with a cost analysis and timelines.

"We want the architects to go back to the drawing board while we are waiting for SBA to determine the reimbursement rates for options one and two," said Bragg.

Last month, the school committee agreed to give Phelan a few more weeks to convince SBA that Option Two remains eligible for 90 percent reimbursement. But Phelan was not present at last week's meeting, prompting committee members to postpone a final vote on an actual plan. Phelan and the school committee have said they will not pursue a plan which does not receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

Option Two calls for the construction of a new Central Middle School on Faxon Field and a partially renovated Quincy High School at the site of the current high school and the Center for Technical Education.

The 2003 plan calls for the construction of a new Quincy High School at Faxon Field on the corner of Southern Artery and Coddington St. But the city has been looking for alternatives after that plan became bogged down due to numerous environmental hurdles. The proposal calls for the destruction of three acres of wetlands, a move that is unlikely to win approval by environmental regulators.

The state Department of Environmental Protection recently ruled that the city could take up to one acre of wetlands at Faxon Field for the school project. Some school committee members said they have not seen design options that include using up to one acre of the wetlands.

Option One has not received an enthusiastic response because it calls for a new, five-story building on Faxon Field at Woodward Ave. The building virtually wraps around wetlands.

Phelan and City Solicitor Monica Conyngham contend the plan is so instrusive on the neighborhoods and wetlands that it would create more environmental hurdles, thus delaying construction by months or even years.

Squantum Gardens Meeting Tonight

The new design would incorporate the 223 affordable units in two four-story buildings. The number of parking spaces would remain at 280 and the amount of impervious space would decrease by 10 percent.

The zoning board of appeals will also conduct an open public meeting regarding the proposal on Tuesday, April 26 at 7:15 p.m. in the city council chambers, 1305 Hancock St.

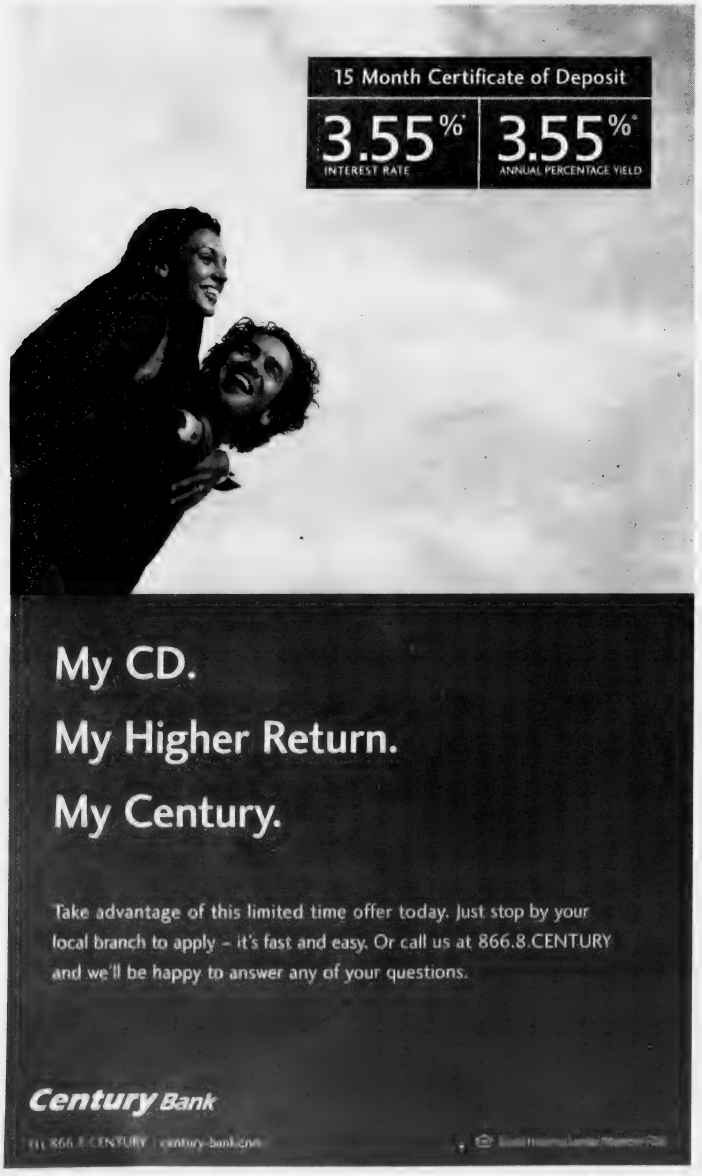
Substitute Bus Company Comes Through For Atlantic

Students in grade six of the Atlantic Middle School wanted to see the play "Anne of Green Gables" at the UMass-Boston McCormick Theater.

But the cost of transportation, $1,100, for buses for the kids was a little too much.

They were giving serious consideration to taking the MBTA, when Officer Kent Yee, the school's community policing officer, had an idea.

He contacted the Fung-Wah Bus Company, who not only took the youngsters to the show but did it for free as a community service.



The kids said they had a wonderful time.

'Save 271 Sea St.' Fundraiser April 29

A fundraiser designed to preserve 271 Sea St. as open space will be held on April 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Hough's Neck Congregational Church, 300 Manet Ave., Quincy.

A developer plans to build five townhouses and four homes on the three-and-a-half acre site.

The fundraising event will feature food, beverages, door prizes and a raffle.

Owners Can Maintain Parcels With Permit

City, State Agree On QSD Land

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Property owners along Quincy Shore Drive will be allowed to maintain parcels of land affected by the ongoing sewer line construction project, under a new agreement hammered out by city and state officials.

News of the agreement ends the long-standing question of whether property owners along Quincy Shore Drive could maintain strips of land owned by the state. The work being done is part of a large sewer and water rehabilitation project that will improve water quality in the city, and especially in the Wollaston Beach area.

Last year, abutters were forced to take down fences, walls and shrubbery to make way for work on city sewer lines that run under state-owned land. Yards and sidewalks have been dug up to access the sewer and water lines.

According to the five-year agreement, signed last week by Mayor William Phelan and Stephen Pritchard, acting commissioner of the state Department of Conservation and Recreation, the city will implement a permitting program which will allow land owners to maintain parcels of land. Owners who obtain a permit from the city will be able to replace plantings, conduct landscaping improvements and erect fences that were originally taken down.

"We are pleased that we have been able to work through a myriad of issues and now the residents of Quincy Shore Drive can return their properties to the conditions that they have Seen 'Huge Step Forward'

Quincy Business Council Endorses Downtown Plan

Mayor William Phelan's downtown rezoning initiative has received a ringing endorsement from the Quincy Business Council.

At a meeting held last week at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, about 30 business representatives from the group unanimously approved Phelan's proposal to rezone a large portion of the downtown area.

Business council members were generally enthusiastic about the proposal after viewing a presentation by Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

DAN FLYNN

"Personally, I think this is a huge step forward that will help to re-ignite development in the heart of the city," said Dan Flynn, chairman of the Quincy Business Council.

Phelan's proposal calls for changing zoning rules downtown to allow for taller buildings, more residential development and a streamlined regulatory process.

Boundaries of the new downtown zoning district include Burgin Parkway, Dimmock St., Washington St., School St. and Elm St., as well as areas along Coddington St. past Faxon Field.

The general public weighed in on the issue a few weeks ago during a hearing held at city hall.

Flynn said he is encouraging business council members to contact the city council to express their support for the initiative.

"We need to grow our commercial tax base," said Flynn. "So it's time to roll out the red carpet to encourage developers to come to Quincy."

MARIN BAILEY, 4, of North Quincy, receives dental impressions from Dina Troila, a dental assistant and volunteer, during last Saturday's CHIP (Child Identification Program) activities, which were held at the Wollaston Child Care Center. Sponsored by the child care center and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, the program serves as a means of tracking and identifying children. Other photos on Page 10.

Red Cross Blood Donors Can Win Red Sox Tickets

The Red Cross and Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center have joined forces with the Red Sox to increase blood donations through the 2005 baseball season.

The Red Cross will hold a blood drive Tuesday, May 3, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, 1600 Crown Colony Drive, Quincy.

Each donor will be entered in a contest to be Blood Donor of the Game, winning two tickets to a game at Fenway Park, special souvenirs and broadcast recognition.

The contest will continue until Sept. 16 in the Red Cross' New England and Connecticut regions.

To donate blood of the Red Cross, donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in general good health. They can give blood every eight weeks.

FOURTH GRADE STUDENTS at St. Ann School in Wollaston recently learned about the Civil and Revolutionary Wars by creating projects for display and writing a research paper on a particular topic. The children displayed their written work and projects at a recent exhibition in the school's gymnasium. Pictured showing their projects are, from the left, Emily Mazza, Grace Anderson and Miguela Murray. Behind them are Kiera Bruce and Devin O'Brien.

Fundraiser Friday To Save 271 Sea St.

The Committee to Preserve 271 Sea Street will hold a fundraiser Friday, April 29, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church. 300 Manet Ave.

The committee is seeking to have the city purchase a 3.5-acre section of the Board Meadows marsh to block a developer from building five townhouses and four homes on the site.

Funds raised Friday will go toward hiring an attorney for ongoing litigation as well as an independent surveyor and wetlands specialist to assess the property.

A contribution of $25 will get two raffle tickets, a chance to win a door prize, a glass of wine and hors d'oeuvres.

For more information, call 617-482-3384.

Despite Strong Support Germantown Beer, Wine License Denied

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Apparently a "good reputation" being a good businessman who does "great things" for the community, running, a popular convenience store, support from Police Chief Robert Crowley and a petition signed by 150 persons in support did not guarantee a beer and wine license to Ashok "Sonny" Patel owner of the Palmer Street Market, 231 Palmer St.

Tuesday, the License Board denied a request from Patel, who has owned the store for the past eight years, a beer and wine license on a 3-2 vote.

On a motion made by Crowley, seconded by James Anderson, in place of Jay Duca, director of inspectional services, and who both ultimatley voted in favor.

Voting against the proposal was Chairman Joseph Shea, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell.

Speaking articulately to the board and representing Patel, Atty. Edward Fleming said that community police in the Germantown area have praised the way Patel runs his store. He said Patel has installed an ATM machine for the convenience of his patrons, as well as being able to accept money orders.

He added that Patel delivers to the elderly who live at 73 Bicknell St., and participates in charities as well.

Fleming, who presented the board with the petition including the 150 names in support, said Patel had designated an area for the coolers in the rear of the store and said he thought it was an appropriate location for the store. He said the only other store selling beer and wine was the Houghs Neck Package store.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said he was in "strong opposition" to the request, and presented a petition with 50 names. Kelly cited parking concerns, trash and loitering as reasons for his opposition. However Crowley questioned Kelly as to how many names on the petition were actually from Germantown residents and not from Houghs Neck Package Store patrons. He said he had a problem because the package store is in competition with Patel.

Kelly said he didn't know exactly how many, but said most of them were actually from Germantown.

Crowley said although he agreed with abutters and also feared persons 22 years of age may purchase beer for teen-agers, he nonetheless said Patel who he called a "very responsible person," "deserves the opportunity " to be able to sell beer and wine.

Abutters cited a lack of parking especially when delivery trucks emerge in the morning.

Fire Chief O'Connell said he was a former Germantown resident and remembered the store before Patel was called Lester's . He said with Baker Beach in the area and his respect for the abutters, he said he would not vote in favor.

Anderson had earlier said he was concerned whether the building was inspected . However, Shea said "it isn't as if the store is becoming a furniture store or some other business," and said they could put in writing if the board voted in favor that it would be pending proper inspections.

In the end it didn't matter. The board voted against it.

Debate On Downtown Plan To Be Rescheduled

Committee Meeting Cancelled Pending Status Of 2 Councillors

The ordinance committee's scheduled debate on Mayor William Phelan's downtown rezoning initiative was postponed Monday night pending the legal determination of whether participation would constitute a conflict of interest for two Ward councillors.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, chairman of the city council's ordinance committee, cancelled Monday night's meeting because he said he had not received a legal opinion from the city solicitor's office on whether Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi and Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis can vote on the issue.

"The rationale for postpoining the meeting was the lack of a definitive answer as to the ability of two ward councillors to participate in the discussion and vote upon probably one of the most important pieces of legislation this city council will take action upon," said Coughlin.

On Tuesday, Davis said he would abstain from debating or voting on the rezoning proposal.

"The state Ethics Commission ruled that it is a close call, and unless they have more information to rule otherwise I will not be participating," said Davis.

Davis has an ownership interest in property on Revere Rd., and the state Ethics Commission ruled that his participation may constitute a conflict of interest. The property falls within the mayor's proposed rezoning initiative.

Davis said the Ethics Commission questioned whether the value of the property on Revere Rd. would be affected by the passage of the rezoning proposal.

Raymondi said Tuesday that his status remains unclear.

"I'm waiting for an answer from the city's law department or state Ethics Commission," he said.

Raymondi lives on Elm St., which is near but not in the proposed rezoning district.

Coughlin said he would reschedule the ordinance committee meeting during Monday night's city council meeting.

Council Asks Comcast To Offer Cantonese Broadcasts

The city council is asking Comcast to reinstate a cable TV subscription channel that offers broadcasts in the Cantonese language.

At the urging of Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, the council passed a resolve last week asking Comcast and Jim White, manager of Government and Community Relations, to offer the subscription channel to its digital lineup in Massachusetts.

The request has been made so certain Quincy residents "will not feel disconnected from society and isolated," according to the resolve.

Davis said he has received a number of complaints from Ward 4 residents about the lack of broadcasts in Cantonese. Comcast's channel 9 in Quincy once offered daily broadcasts in Cantonese, but they have stopped, he said.

"With such a large number of Cantonese-speaking residents, this is one way they get their news," said Davis. Many Asian residents in Quincy are elderly and have difficulty understanding English broadcasts, he said.

Davis said he is working with state Rep. Bruce Ayers and U.S. Rep. William Delahunt to press Comcast on the issue.

Ward 4 Meeting Tonight For Cleaner, Greener Event

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis will host a neighborhood meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Neighborhood Center, 100 Brooks Ave., for those residents interested with the city's Cleaner Greener campaign.

"I have received several commitments from area businesses, including Fallon Ambulance, the Boston Marriott Quincy and BFI, community groups, such as the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, and our schools to make this year's event a great day," said Davis.

During tonight's meeting, representatives from various groups will be on hand to determine which sites in Ward 4 will be cleaned and where volunteers will be assigned.

The citywide cleanup is scheduled for May 7.

Where Did Fido And Lassie Go?

Whatever happened to Fido, Rover and Lassie? It wasn't so long ago that they were the "in" names in the city's canine population.

But not so now, according to the Vital Statistics Department of City Clerk Joseph Shea's office.

SHEA

Carol Damiano and Jo-anne Renda not only keep track of births, deaths and marriages, but also issue hunting, fishing and dog licenses.

And the latter department shows a drastic shift in popular names for pet dogs. At the moment, for example, there's only one licensed Fido and one Lassie in town. And, no Rovers. (Two formerly lived in North Quincy but have moved.)

Good old Spot is also slipping in the popularity department. There are only seven by that name now. And only two Kings, also a once upon a time popular name. The lone Princess has moved.

But Smokey is still in the running with 17.

Brandy was a long-time favorite numbering as many as 102 but is now down to 21.

Most popular names right now: Buddy (62), Lucky (34), Daisy (30), Bear and Buster (20 each) and Rudy (18).

But regardless of your dog's name, he or she has to be licensed for 2005. Fee is $10. And time is running out.

In fact, the deadline for renewing dog licenses or obtaining them for the first time was April 1. But Shea is giving owners until May 2 to get them. After that there is a $10 late charge.

Owners are also asked to provide proof of a current rabies shot.

At the present time some 1,545 dogs are registered as licensed. Another 1,000 are expected before May 2.

IT'S NOSTALGIA time in Quincy Point.

Present and former residents will get together for a reunion Saturday from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse on Nevada Rd.

This is the fourth get together that started out as a Quincy Point Junior High School reunion in 1994 and has branched out to include the whole Quincy Point area.

Proceeds go to memorial scholarships in memory of deceased Quincy Point residents.

The record hop will feature dancing to the "good old tunes" and there will be a buffet table. Tickets are $10 each.

They may be obtained from Rosemary Nolan (857-204-5134) and Donna (Shaheen) Bertrand (617-479-5346) who are chairing the event. Tickets can also be obtained at the door.

NOLAN

Incidentally, Rosemary, former program manager at the Quincy Public Works Department, has a new job with the state Department of Environmental Protection.

She's Municipal Assistance Coordinator for recycling, trash and environmental issues for 35 communities from Plymouth to Boston including Quincy. Off her Quincy DPW performance, they picked the right person for that job.

"THE KILROY WAS HERE" essay and photo contests being sponsored by Discover Quincy, The Quincy Sun and the USS Salem has generated a lot of interest and brought back fond memories for many.

The famed World War II catch-phrase, as most know, originated at the Fore River shipyard during World War II. James J. Kilroy, a rivet inspector, scrawled "Kilroy was here!" on the bulkhead of ships to show that he had been there to make the inspection.

The phrase went out to the Pacific with the ships and then around the world as sailors, soldiers and marines picked it up and left it everywhere. Even on the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

Wherever those sailors, soldiers and marines landed or went, Kilroy always seemed to have gotten their first.

But apparently not always.

A Sun reader writes:

"I enjoyed your 'Kilroy Was Here' article which brought to mind when I was a very, very, very young girl at the Loew's Orpheum Theater in Boston.

"I was sitting in the ladies room looking at the graffiti written on the door which read:

"Here I sit filled with Joy.

"Cause I was here before Kilroy."

To Assist Homebound Quincy Residents

Meals On Wheels Seeks Volunteers

The Quincy Meals on Wheels program is seeking volunteers to help deliver food to hundreds of elderly, homebound residents.

Administered by South Shore Elder Services, the program utilizes volunteers to distribute hot meals on a daily basis to approximately 300 Quincy residents.

About 20 volunteers are needed to adequately address the needs of homebound residents. Currently, the program is down five volunteers, according to Debbie Killeffer, volunteer coordinator for the Meals on Wheels program.

"The bad winter took a toll on our volunteers," said Killeffer. "In addition, many of our volunteers are senior citizens themselves. So we really need the help right now."

Volunteers who take part in the program at least three days a week receive a pay stipend, she said. Transportation reimbursements are also available, she said.

Killeffer said program coordinators are also seeking to recruit local businesses to assist with Meals on Wheels. Some employees from local businesses are already volunteering their time for the program, she said.

For more information or to volunteer for the program, contact Killeffer at 781-848-3910, ext. 430.

Identity Theft Subject Of Library Discussion

The fast-growing crime of identity theft will be the topic of a free informational program Tuesday, May 24, from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The program is entitled "Identity Theft: Preventing, Detecting and Addressing ID Theft Crime," and is open to people of all ages.

JoAnn Cohen of the Better Business Bureau will speak on how to use the Internet wisely and keep your personal and financial information private.

She will also give advice on how to avoid charity scams as well as handle telephone and mail solicitations.

Friendly Visitors Sought For Seniors

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with the program coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1930 postcard reproduction showing one of the fleet of prized horse drawn milk wagons of the White Brothers Milk Company on French Street in Norfolk Downs. Adam and Edwin White, who grew up in Atlantic, founded the company in 1914. They built this modern milk processing and bottling factory in 1928. They were widely known for their high quality "Creamy Milk" and they sold it in cream-top milk bottles as shown on the wagon. The company was also very proud of their carefully selected horses. Shown here is Sandy, probably their best known Clydesdale, who was an undefeated New England horse show champion. In 1940 the company was forced to abandon its horse drawn wagons in favor of faster motorized trucks and Sandy and their other blue ribbon horses were retired to Edwin's farm in Marshfield. The company was sold to the Whitings Milk Company in 1961 and this building was demolished in 1967 to make way for the Quincy Commons apartment complex now on the site. Scenes From Yesterday Correction

In the March 31 Scenes From Yesterday postcard of Echo Lake, we wrote that the quarry had been filled in many years ago.

That report of its demise was premature.

Thanks to reader John Bidorini, we have learned that there is still 30 feet of water in the old quarry hole, and it is actively used for testing underwater acoustic products developed by the Ocean Systems segment of the Ultra Electronics Company in Braintree.

Baseball League Suspends Play For Duration Of War

This Week
1943
62 Years Ago

The four remaining members of the South Shore Baseball League voted to suspend operations for the duration of the war due to lack of players and problems brought on by gas rationing.

President Tom Lonergan said that out of 120 players on the rosters during the 1942 season, a total of 103 had been inducted into the armed services.

The folding of the Braintree White Sox and the Thorp Motors team from Weymouth left the league with only four teams: the Sagamore Plebes, the Coalers, Sqauntum and Hingham Ammunition Depot.

DAY CARE PLANNED

The Quincy Day Nursing Association took steps to establish a day care center for children in Quincy at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Archer M. Nickerson, 116 Putnam St., Quincy Center.

The center would care for youngsters while their mothers worked at jobs in defense plants.

Recently, a committee headed by Public Welfare Commissioner Anthony J. Venna founded that there was no present need for such a center and referred the matter to the Quincy Council of Social Agencies.

GLEE CLUB GOES COED

The Wollaston Glee Club, faced with a shortage of men lost to military services and defense plants, turned to women to fill the gap for the first time.

Ladies were selected from the Wollaston Choral Art Society and local church choirs to assist the club at its opening concert in the Quincy High School Auditorium.

BENCH REPAIRS URGED

City Councillor William W. Jenness filed a resolve urging the Park Department to fix the benches on the traffic island at Coddington and Washington Sts. where riders wait for the Houghs Neck bus.

The benches, said Jenness, "are so dilapidated that whenever a man sits down on them he risks getting up without his pants."

FIRE BOAT SHOWS OFF

Fire Chief William J. Sands and Deputy Thomas Gorman attended a demonstration of the fireboat, CG-30109-F, the first ever assigned to the Fore River shipyard.

The boat was capable of directing six simultaneous streams of water a distance of 50 to 100 feet at a rate of 2,000 gallons a minute.

Papajiannis, whose two daughters graduated from Fontbonne Academy, has been a member of the school's Social Studies Department since 1981. They were honored at the at the school's 50th anniversary "Golden Gala" held at the Fairmont Copley Plaza in Boston.

THE FLYNN SISTERS, natives of Quincy, were inducted into the Fontbonne Academy Legacy Guild at the school's Golden Gala. From left: Nancy Flynn Figueiredo, Colleen Flynn Gibbons, Michelle Lavoie, Erin McDonough, Maureen Flynn Burton, Judith Flynn Coyne, Denise Flynn McDonough and Maryann Flynn Lavoie with WCVB-TV reporter Gail Huff, who served as mistress of ceremonies of the gala. Michelle and Erin are among the next generation of Flynn women carrying on the Fontbonne Academy tradition.

QUINCY RESIDENTS Camille Austin and her daughter Lauren had lots to smile about at Fontbonne Academy's Golden Gala. Mrs. Austin served on the planning committee for the event, while Lauren, in her junior year at Fontbonne, performed at the event with the school's Jazz Choir.

State House Recognizes Silver Haired Legislature At Awards Ceremony

The Massachusetts Silver Haired Legislature celebrated their 25th Annual Award Ceremony recently at the State House.

Sally Hoyt, president of the Silver Haired Legislators, said, "This is a milestone achievement for the organization. We work in collaboration with the members of the House and Senate to advocate for issues of importance to the senior citizens in our elected districts."

Rep. Bruce Ayers also was recognized for his hard work and efforts towards advocating for their legislative agenda on such issues as home care and care management, supportive housing, protective services to resolve cases of elder abuse, the Money Management program to prevent financial exploitation, and Meals on Wheels.

"The Silver Haired Legislators come from the greatest generation," Ayers said. "It is great to work collectively towards the same quality of life goals for the seniors. They have worked hard all their lives and as legislators we have an obligation to provide them with the benefits they deserve."

In addition to Ayers' legislative senior agenda, he also founded the Quincy Helping Hand Program fourteen years ago. The program offers free durable medical equipment, such as wheelchairs, hospital beds, walkers, crutches, etc., for seniors and others who cannot afford such items.

Anyone who could benefit from this program is encouraged to contact Ayers at 617-472-9877.

Quincy Symphony's 51st Season Continues With 'Evening With Pops'

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present the fifth concert of its 51st season Thursday, May 12, at 8 p.m. at the Boston Quincy Marriott Hotel, 1000 Marriott Drive, West Quincy.

Proceeds of the concert, billed as "An Evening at the Pops," will benefit the Music Department of the Quincy Public Schools.

The program will feature soprano Junko Watanabe, and the orchestra, under the direction of Yoichi Udagawa, will play lighter classical music. There will also be audience participation in a patriotic sing-along.

Tickets at $20 may be ordered by calling 617-984-8888 or 617-773-2544 or by sending orders to The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, P.O. Box 2, Wollaston, MA 02170. They will also be available at the door.

The orchestra is sponsored by the Quincy School-Community Partnership.

Flutists Hannah Whitehead, Angela Baglione Win Conservatory Awards

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Eggless, Milkless Spice Cake

Recently I was asked to bake something for the hospital auxiliary. I decided to bake a cake which my mother used to make years ago. It's a spice cake made without eggs or milk and a family staple and so delicious.

This recipe was printed in my column a few years, ago, but maybe there is someone out there who didn't see it. It is so delicious and can be eaten just plain and or with cream cheese. It keeps for days in the refrigerator.

Eggless, Milkless Spice Cake

1 cup raisins
2 cups water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
'1/2 teaspoon ginger
1 cup sugar
1 3/4 cup flour
1 stick butter or margarine
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Boil the water and raisins for about five minutes. Turn jet off, and add the butter or margarine. Cool for three or four minutes before adding all of the other ingredients. Mix by hand until well blended.

You can either use a loaf pan greased and floured, or a cake pan. Bake for about 35 minutes depending on the size of the pan.

Aviva Corporate Sponsor For 'Cleaner, Greener Quincy'

Aviva Life Insurance Company in North Quincy will be the corporate sponsor of Cleaner, Greener Quincy for the second consecutive year, announces Mayor William Phelan.

The annual day dedicated to sprucing up the city's parks, beaches, marshes and open space areas is scheduled to take place Saturday, May 7, from 9 a.m. to noon.

"I am pleased that Quincy's business community is again taking an active role toward the betterment of our city and I am thrilled to have Aviva on board," Phelan said. "I want to thank them for their continued support of this important community event."

Aviva is presenting the city with a check in the amount of $5,000. Their corporate logo will appear on the T-shirts distributed to all volunteers that participate in the cleanup.

Aviva, which has over 300 employees at its North Quincy headquarters, sells life insurance and annuity products and is part of Aviva pic, which is among the 10 largest insurance groups worldwide. In addition to providing sponsorship funds, Aviva Life Insurance Company is providing a team of employees to participate in the cleanup activities for the 16th annual event.

Following is a list of locations already selected by residents who are organizing cleanup teams:

Ward 1: Shoreside Road Beach, Post Island Road Beach, Parkhurst Marshes, Lower Germantown Beach (behind fire station).

Ward 2: Avalon Beach, Mound Street Beach.

Ward 3: The Bog, Bishop Field (Montclair).

Ward 4: Lincoln Hancock, O'Rourke Park.

Ward 5: Wollaston Beach (meet at Wollaston Yacht Club), Caddy Park (meet at Grossman Memorial), Merrymount Park Trails.

Ward 6: Nickerson Beach, Orchard Beach, Squantum Causeway, Marina Bay Marshes.

In addition to community volunteers, the Park Department, Department of Public Works and the Cemetery Department will be supporting the cleanup effort by hauling trash and litter and using the necessary equipment to remove larger debris from various sites.

Phelan encourages residents to participate in the event or organize a group to beautify a location in their neighborhood. The Park Department will provide rakes, gloves, shovels, bags and other tools for those interested in designating a cleanup site. Contact the Park Department at 617-376-1251 to make arrangements.

Following the event, volunteers are invited to join Phelan at his appreciation barbecue held on the lawn of the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway. The barbecue will be from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

SPECIAL FUNDRAISER sponsored by WJDA, The Outback Steakhouse and the Quincy service clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions, raised some $2,000 for the relief of victims of the Southwest Asia tsunami. Quincy High School Girls Defy Science Stereotypes

Who says women can't cut it in science?

Twenty-one Quincy High School students, female all, spent a day recently investigating DNA transformation at the Museum of Science in Boston.

Their experience was part of the Southeast Consortium of Women in Technology programs of which Quincy High School/Center for Technical Education has a chapter.

For more than two hours in the laboratories of the Museum, the students conducted experiments that would lead to changing the DNA of common e-coli bacteria.

The young women on the science field trip included Kristen Daskevich, Leanne Hall, Rosalee Pagan, Tahina Chery, Diana Giunta, Wei Man Fan, Yi Dong, Lee Ramos, Ida Ramos, Samantha Mailles, Kimberly Sheridan, Melissa Stacy, Tanya Pettinelli, Lauren Dockham, Kerry Mermino, Corrine Pettinelli, Kara Murphy, Daphne Walker, Kristen Newsom, Jen Fooks and Eugenia Andrade.

They were chaperoned by Diane Merrill, program advisor, Paulette D'Oyley and Pam Campanale.

Help With Simple Wills Monthly

Atty. Ed Conroy will be at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy, every third Friday of the month to assist the elderly with a free explanation of simple wills.

Call 617-376-1506 for an appointment.

Rev. Patricia Langevin Ordained In Wollaston

Nearly 100 people from all parts of the state turned out recently for the ordination of Patricia Grace Langevin to the Christian ministry at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston.

Langevin and her brother, Gene, have been youth ministers and co-directors of "The Way Up," which has worked with Quincy parents and kids for the past 41 years.

She has been associated with her brother in "The Way Up" since 1983 when she and her daughters, Mindi and Marci, moved to Quincy from Michigan.

PATRICIA LANGEVIN

Langevin is a graduate of UMass-Boston and completed her seminary education at the Boston University School of Theology.

She received her clinical pastoral education at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Boston, where she served as a Protestant chaplain.

Langevin and her brother work with five different kinds of kids in The Way Up — church kids, kids in public schools, kids at risk, kids in trouble and kids held by juvenile courts.

They provide such activities and services as worship services, Bible study, counselling, advocacy, art and drama programs, youth fellowships and choir.

Track Site Committee To Hold Public Hearing Tonight

The committee formed by Mayor William Phelan to recommend a site for the city's new track facility will hold a public hearing tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 in the community room of the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

Several municipal and state owned sites are being considered, including Faxon Field (next to Quincy High School), a parcel of land behind the Department of Public Works facility (55 Seat St.), Faxon Park and Squantum Point Park.

The committee members include:

Thomas Koch, executive director, Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments; Geoffrey Hennessy, Quincy Track Club founder and North Quincy High School track and cross country coach; Brendan Walsh, Quincy High School track coach; Michelle (Millane) Bell, former Quincy Track Club and North Quincy High School track participant; Recreation Director Barry Welch; Connie Driscoll, Quincy Park and Recreation Board member; and Louis Tozzi, member of the Massachusetts Track Coaches Association and former North Quincy High School track and cross country coach.

Mitchell/McCoy Softball Field Opening Tonight

Mayor William Phelan will officially reopen the newly renovated Mitchell/McCoy softball facility in a ceremony preceding the North Quincy-Quincy high school softball game tonight (Thursday) at 7.

"I look forward to reopening this new, first-class complex dedicated primarily for girls' and women's softball use," Phelan said. "The city's baseball program enjoys a premier facility in Adams Field and I'm pleased that the softball program now has a state-of-the-art complex to call home."

The renovation was made possible through the Mayor's Park Improvement Bond, approved by the City Council, which allocates funds to improve parks and beaches and energize the city's open space acquisition efforts.

The field renovation and lighting phase of the project is complete, and the concession/restroom building and other amenities will be finished during the course of the season.

Cooking With Herbs Explained At Library

Gardener and chef Paul F. Split will speak on "Cooking With Herbs: From the Garden to the Table" Sunday, May 15 at 2:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Split, who is known as "Chef Paulo," will demonstrate how to grow, harvest, preserve and cook with herbs in the free program sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Then he will serve the foods he has prepared, including Italian bread with molded herb butter, garden fresh three leaf salad with spicy herb and vinaigrette and farfalle with garden fresh sauce and parmesan cheese.

To reserve a space, call 617-376-1331 or send e-mail to quref@oc1n.org or stop by the main library reference desk.

John Wong Graduates Military Training

JOHN WONG

Air Force Reserve Airman 1st Class John L. Wong has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and military customs and courtesies; performed drill and ceremony marches, and received physical training, rifle marksmanship, field training exercises, and special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Wong is the son of Lan Huang of Wollaston Ave., Quincy.

He is a 2004 graduate of North Quincy High School.

For 4 Automatic External Defibrillators

Masons Donate $6,000 To Quincy Public Schools Health Services

Quincy Public Schools' Health Services Program recently received approximately $6,000 in donations from the Rural Lodge of Masons in Quincy.

The donation will be used to purchase four automatic external defibrillators (AEDs) and enable Quincy Public Schools to begin implementation of a school-wide public access defibrillation program.

Dr. Carmen Mariano, assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools; Janet Powell, director of Student Support Services; and Jane Kisielius, coordinator of Health Services, accepted the donation at a recent dinner at the Rural Lodge of Masons in Quincy Center.

The school officials praised the Masons for their generosity and insight for contributing to such an important school and community effort "to help save lives."

The effort illustrated one of the Masons' main principals of charity and giving, conveying a sense of caring for our community.

Each year, approximately 250,000 people die from sudden cardiac arrest. Early defibrillation is the single greatest determinate of survival from sudden cardiac arrest.

Placing AEDs in the hands of trained personnel holds the potential to be the single greatest advancement in the treatment of cardiac arrest since the development of CPR. Schools have been identified as a key site for the placement of AED's in the community. Schools serve as a center of influence and education and host a large number of students, adults, including teachers, administrators, parents and thousands of adult visitors each year.

This program is intended to increase the chance of survival of a victim of sudden cardiac arrest prior to the arrival of local Emergency Medical Systems.

"We're happy to provide Quincy schools with an extra level of safety," said David Elsner, master of the Rural Lodge. "Although these defibrillators will not find frequent use, they will be there for emergencies, and they could result in saving the lives of children or staff."

The Rural Lodge Defibrillator Program is a new initiative geared toward saving the lives of Quincy school students and staff. In light of sudden deaths among high school students in the U.S., Rural Masonic Lodge is doing its part in saving local lives.

Many of these sudden deaths appear to be due to ventricular fibrillation – a chaotic contraction of the heart muscle, leading to cardiac arrest. The Rural Lodge Defibrillator Program purchases automatic external defibrillators (AEDs) and plays for school staff training.

AEDs are computerized, portable equipment that have revolutionized cardiopulmonary resuscitation. They are programmed to analyze the heart rhythm and restore it to normal.

The all-important timing of the measured impulse is fully automatic, removing the potential for operator error. Because each minute saved by applying the defibrillation substantially increases the person's chances of survival, the donation of AEDs by Rural Masonic Lodge is a leap forward in providing local medical care.

United Way, Letter Carriers Prepare To 'Stamp Out Hunger'

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay and the National Association of Letter Carriers are preparing for their annual "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive to stock local food pantries and the Great Boston Food Bank.

Residents of Quincy are urged to leave nonperishable food by their mail boxes on Saturday, May 14, to be collected by the letter carriers as they make their rounds.

The United Way and the Letter Carriers (NALC) have partnered in the nationwide effort since 1994. Last year they collected 70.9 million pounds of food across the country.

"If fundamental human needs such as food, clothing, shelter and safety are not being met, individuals and families have no chance of reaching their full potential," said Milton J. Little Jr., president and CEO of United Way.

"United Way supports the local letter carriers in this effort to help families not only to get by, but to get ahead."

The drive is also sponsored by the U. S. Postal Service, AFL-CIO, America's Second Harvest, Campbell Soup Company, Valpack and the Great Boston Food Bank.

Paul Harold Fund To Award Student Grants

The Paul D. Harold Fund will be awarding a grant to a senior at North Quincy and Quincy high schools who will be attending college in September 2005.

Students planning to study government, public service or political science are eligible. Applications are available in the guidance offices at both high schools.

As a public servant and educator for more than 25 years, Harold believed in the youth of Quincy. It is fitting that a grant in his name be awarded to graduating students of the city's two high schools.

PAUL HAROLD

Harold taught American government to students around the world and in Quincy. The committee hopes this award will help bring forward a young person who some day may become a public servant and continue the legacy of Paul D. Harold.

All applications must be postmarked no latter than May 10.

To support the grant and additional community programs supported by the Paul Harold Fund, you may send your donations to the Paul D. Harold Fund, c/o Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

QHS Parent Advisory Council Meeting May 5

The Quincy High School Parent Advisory Council will meet on Thursday, May 5 at 7:15 p.m. in the Pride Room.

Residents are encouraged to attend a 6:30 p.m. meeting to plan Senior Night Out for the 2005 graduating senior class.

Seniors Trip To Foxwoods

The Council on Aging will sponsor a trip for seniors to the Foxwoods casinos Thursday, May 5.

The bus will leave from Marina Bay behind the red brick office building at 8 a.m. and return at about 7 p.m..

For reservations and further details call Dorothy Dow at 617-376-1508.

CarePacks Benefit Saturday For Iraq, Afghanistan Troops

CarePacks will stage a benefit for the troops in Iraq and Afghanistan Saturday, April 30, from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the IBEW Local 103 function hall, 256 Freeport St., Dorchester.

Funds raised will enable CarePacks to continue sending packages to the troops, including the 102nd Field Artillery unit from Quincy.

To date, Carepacks has shipped more than 120 packages and is looking to expand its operation.

The event will feature Draw the Line, the official Aerosmith tribute band, a silent auction, a food court, raffle giveaways, celebrities and politicians.

To Help Young Vietnamese Girls

Students Do 'A Day's Work' For Underprivileged Peers

About 40 local students used one of their April vacation days last week to beautify the Thomas Crane Public Library and raise funds for the education of young Vietnamese girls who are at risk of being sold into child labor.

Students from Quincy and North Quincy High School, Broad Meadows Middle School and Archbishop Williams High School last Wednesday participated in "Operation Day's Work, USA," a nationwide program that seeks to help underprivileged children in poor, developing countries.

Students raked away winter's debris and planted a Children's Peace Garden outside the Children's Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center. The public library has partnered with Quincy students since the program began seven years ago.

In the afternoon, Quincy High School students conducted a workshop to educate the public on the culture of Vietnam.

Following the workshop, students conducted "child-labor-free activities." In each activity, students used only goods and foods which are guaranteed not to have been made with child labor.

To help locate "child-labor-free" goods, students interviewed 106 store managers at the South Shore Plaza.

Students used pledge sheets to raise the equivalent of a "day's pay," or about $30 each, for their effort. All of the pledge money goes to the country project.

Approximately 1,000 students nationwide participate in the program annually.

This year, students partnered with The Heifer Project to raise funds to educate and empower at least 40 young girls living in rural Vietnam. The Heifer Project serves as school builders in the partnership.

The young Vietnamese girls live in an area where 78 percent of the girls raised there are tricked into or sold into servitude in Thailand.

Quincy students participation will help to place Vietnamese girls ages 10-14 into residential schooling. Their parents will be given livestock, seeds and training on how to be more efficient farmers. Their mothers will receive micro-credit loans to start up small craft businesses. And area union activists will serve as long-term big sisters to mentor the girls about their rights.

After a year, these 40 girls must "pass it on" to 40 other girls of their age or younger. The next year, the 80 girls "pass it on" to 80 others.

In the Fall and Winter of each school year, the Operation Day's Work students vote on which country and which non-governemental organization to partner with for a project.

The U.S. Agency for International Development guides the students throughout the process of writing requests for project proposals, screening reputable nongovernmental organizations. But students make the final decision on which project to undertake.

Operation Day's Work was co-founded by Quincy, and other schools in Vermont, Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Washington, D.C.

Since 1999, these schools have raised more than $150,000 and established schools in developing countries.

QUINCY STUDENTS PRESENT Library Director Ann McLaughlin with an honorary membership in Operation Day's Work for her efforts in promoting students' efforts to establish schools in developing countries. From the left, Quincy High School student Danh Huynh, Grade 7 student Amy Walsh and Grade 6 student Tom Bloomer, both from the Broad Meadows Middle School, Grade 10 student Laura Bloomer of Archbishop Williams High School, McLaughlin, and North Quincy High School students Julie Kwong and Rita Wang.

Blood Drive For Rev. David Wooster Friday At Koch Recreation Complex

Mayor William Phelan's office, in conjunction with the Quincy Hunger Network, will sponsor a blood drive for Rev. David Wooster tomorrow (Friday) from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The blood drive will be conducted by Massachusetts General Hospital.

Quincy Hunger Network is made up of the five food pantries and the major supermarkets in the city.

REV. DAVID WOOSTER

Rev. Wooster, recovering from a heart transplant, is the executive director of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion in North Quincy. He is also the program manager for the Quincy Crisis Center.

"David has done so much for the community, and it's a nice way to give back to him," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

Wooster has undergone six surgeries in six months, and the blood drive will go a long way in assisting him during his recovery, according to Kathi Garrison, officer manager at the Sanger Center.

"He (David) is feeling stronger now than in many months," said Garrison. "He is ready to go home, but he can't do it just yet."

Wooster has been instrumental in organizing food drives for many years in Quincy.

Quincy Community Action Sponsoring Internet Home Buying Workshop May 25

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) will sponsor an Internet Home Buying Working Wednesday, May 25 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Learning Links, 1511 Hancock St., Quincy.

In the workshop, participants learn how to use the Internet to help make a home purchase. Topics covered include financing, special programs for first-time home buyers, town data and state licensing.

Carolyn Corcoran, Learning Links coordinator, and Rona Goodman, QCAP's housing coordinator, will teach the workshop.

Registration is limited to 12 people on a first-come, first-serve basis. Participants will receive a list of website references, along with reminders about information available from such websites.

Some computer experience is recommended.

For more information and to register, contact Kathy Pratt at (617) 479-8181 ext. 119.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop Saturday

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Bank of Canton, 490 Turnpike St., Canton.

All potential first-time homebuyers are invited to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be prequalified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend a free Introductory Session to evaluate credit history and determine level of mortgage readiness. It's strongly suggested attendees obtain a current copy of their credit report.

There is a $15 fee per person. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Real Estate License Renewal Program

The Conway Country School of Real Estate will offer an intensive, two-day continuing-education program for real estate licensees on Thursday, May 19 and Tuesday, May 24 at the Radisson Hotel in Rockland.

The two days of courses are open to all of the state's licensed real estate agents — whether active or inactive — and will satisfy the state's requirement of 12 hours of continuing-education credit for license renewal.

The two-hour classes, which run from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. each day, will cover closing and settlement procedures, foreclosures, auctions, estate sales, zoning and building codes, lead paint laws, offers to purchase, among other subjects.

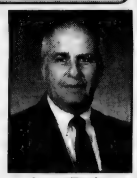
Participants may choose any or all of the six courses being offered to help fulfill their license-renewal requirements, according to Education Director Norman LaRocque.

Cost is $20 per course. For more information, call the school at (781) 826-0088 and leave name, mailing address and telephone number.

All classes will be held at the Radisson on 929 Hingham St., which is off Exit 14 on Route 3.

If It's The Right Time To Buy, Get Pre-Approved For A Mortgage

(NU) - How can you find and buy a home to enjoy for years to come?



The first step is to answer this simple question honestly: Is it the right time for you to buy?

If you answer yes and can afford and want to buy a home, the next step is to get pre-approved for a mortgage from a lender. Then, seek out an experienced real estate real estate agent – especially one who is recognized as a Certified Residential Specialist, the highest designation awarded to agents in the residential sales field. He or she can help you prioritize your needs and desires for a home.

To find agents nationwide with the CRS designation, go to www.crs.com.

Root Out Lawn And Garden Tool Hazards

For many Americans, working outdoors on the lawn and in the garden is a great way to exercise and to relax.

But safety experts warn that if you're not careful with lawn and garden tools, you could be spending more time indoors, starting with a trip to your hospital's emergency room.

"The most frequent injuries are from lawn mowers, which are unforgiving machines," said John Drengenberg, manager of Consumer Affairs for Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. (UL), the not-for-profit product safety testing organization.

As lawn and garden work begins this spring, Drengenberg and other UL safety professionals recommend taking these precautions when working with power equipment.

Lawn mowers

• Read your lawn mower's owner's manual and know how to stop the machine instantly in an emergency.

• If you have a gasoline-powered mower, store the gas in a UL-Listed safety can.

• Always start the mower outdoors. Never operate the mower where carbon monoxide can collect, such as in a closed garage, storage shed or basement.

• Do not operate an electrically powered lawn mower on wet grass.

• Use an extension cord designed for outdoor use and rated for the power needs of your mower.

• Keep your hands and feet away from the mower's blades. Never reach under the mower while the mower is running. Make all adjustments with the motor off.

• Ensure all safety guards are in place. If you hit a foreign object or have a mower malfunction, turn off the mower (and disconnect the power cord from electric models) before inspecting for damage.

• Never leave a lawn mower on while unattended.

• Keep other adults, children and pets clear. Mowers can fling rocks at up to 200 miles per hour.

• Do not allow children to operate lawn mowers.

• Make sure your shoes provide good traction and have sturdy soles to resist punctures and protect toes. Never work barefoot or in sandals, canvas shoes, etc.

Lawn and garden tools

• Use lawn and garden power tools bearing the UL Mark, which means that representative samples of that product have been tested to stringent safety standards with regard to fire, electric shock and related safety hazards.

• Read and follow the manufacturer's use and care instructions.

• Before use, inspect tools for frayed power cords and cracked or broken casings. If the product is damaged, have it repaired by a qualified technician, or replace it.

• Wear safety glasses.

• Wear proper attire. Keep your clothing, hands and feet away from cutting blades at all times. Never wear loose jewelry when you are working with tools.

• Never alter a product or remove safety features such as blade guards or electric plug grounding pins.

• Use only properly rated outdoor extension cords with outdoor electrical tools.

• Check the switch on a power tool or garden appliance to make sure it's off before you plug it in.

• Unplug all portable electrically operated power tools when not in use. These tools contain electricity even when turned off but still plugged in.

• Pay attention to warning markings. Don't allow tools to get wet unless they are labeled "immersible." When using tools outside, make sure they are appropriate for outdoor use.

• Use and store power tools and garden appliances away from water sources to avoid electric shock. Never use power tools and appliances in the rain.

• Never carry an appliance by the cord, and never yank the cord when removing it from a receptacle. When disconnecting the cord, always grasp the plug — not the wire. Keep the cord away from heat, oil and sharp edges.

Rally Past Milton For Quincy-North Invitational Title

SPORTS

Presidents Win Inaugural Tourney

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

It's only fitting one of the hometown schools captured the first annual Quincy High School/North Quincy High School Invitational Baseball Tournament last week at Adams Field.

The Presidents, who blanked Archbishop Williams, 5-0, in the opener, rallied from a 3-0 deficit in extra innings to stun Milton, 4-3, last Thursday afternoon to seize the championship.

In the morning's consolation game, North Quincy's comeback bid in its last at-bat came up short as it fell to AW, 7-6. The Red Raiders dropped the first game to Milton, 6-0:

"It's very special to win the first tournament, especially for the seniors," said Quincy head coach Mike Draicchio. "This is something they wanted to do. I think this tournament is going to grow. All the teams want to come back. The games were exciting today. North almost came back at the end."

Quincy (6-3 overall, 1-2 Atlantic Coast League), which played Medford Tuesday, will square off against neighboring North Quincy today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Adams Field in the first of two city showdowns. Next Monday it will travel to Falmouth at 4 p.m.

In the tournament final, senior quad-captain Steve Sullivan (three hits, 11 strikeouts) and Milton sophomore Ryan Stoller (three hits, 10 strikeouts) baffled their opposition with shutout ball through seven innings.

In the eighth, Sullivan hit his fourth batter of the game to lead off the inning and was lifted for senior quad-captain John Santon.

The hard-throwing righty got the lead runner out on a sacrifice bunt and fanned the next batter before running into trouble. He walked two hitters to load the bases and yielded a two-run single to Stoller. He gave up another RBI single before getting a strikeout to end the inning.

Deflated as they walked off the field to the dugout, Draicchio huddled his players together to pick up their spirit.

"I said the game wasn't over when we came in," Draicchio said. "Stick behind each other, and that's exactly what they did."

Senior quad-captain Steve Priscella quickly injected life into the team, bashing the first pitch from Stoller that short-hopped the left field fence for a triple. Senior Ray Marchand brought him home with a groundout to second.

Stoller seemed to be out of gas, walking Sullivan and senior quad-captain John Folino before being relieved. Sophomore John Alexander reached on a fielder's choice to put runners on the corners with two outs.

Quincy caught a huge break when junior John Orlando reached on an infield throwing error, allowing Sullivan to cross home with the second run and putting the tying and go-ahead runs into scoring position.

Senior Zach Eaton, who entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the seventh, slapped a ball up the middle for the game-winning hit, setting off a frenzy at home plate as the Presidents celebrated their improbable comeback.

"Zach has been a guy that has hit the ball well for us," Draicchio said. "He's a utility guy. He starts some games and sometimes comes off the bench. That's a conversation I had with him today. To come off the bench and do that. That's huge."

"I'm actually shocked to be honest with you," he added. "For our guys to come back down from 3-0 in the eighth inning, I mean it's a situation I've never had in the six years as a varsity coach. What a game that kid pitched from Milton. He just controlled the game. He was probably one of the toughest guys we've faced all year."

Milton threatened in the first inning when Sullivan hit two batters and walked one to load the bases with one out. But he settled down to get a pop-up and a flyout.

In the third, with runners on the corners, the Presidents turned a 5-4-3 double play to escape the inning. In the fifth, Milton loaded the bases again with two outs but Sullivan recorded a strikeout on a 3-2 pitch to keep them off the board.

Quincy notched its first hit in the sixth inning with Marchand's single to right field and it almost pulled out the win in the seventh.

Alexander led off with a walk and moved to second on Eaton's groundout. With

Quincy Falls To Fontbonne

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School softball team would soon like to forget last week's school vacation.

After beginning the season 3-0, the Presidents dropped three straight games in which they were no-hit twice, including a perfect game.

They had no hits in an 11-0 loss to powerhouse Cardinal Spellman at Pageant Field Tuesday, fell at Stoughton, 4-2, Thursday and were victims of a perfect game in a 4-0 loss to Fontbonne Friday at home.

"Just a bad week," said head coach Mike Sedar. "We didn't play well at all. Two no-hitters in a week against us. That's not good. We just didn't hit the ball all week. I don't know if it's April vacation stuff. I know the other day they came in real tired. I don't know if they're up late. But everyone else does it too. Can't make excuses."

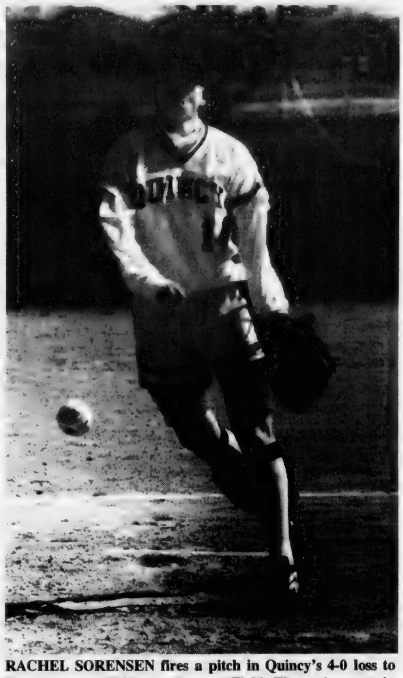
"I can't find a thing to take out of this," he added. "I normally can. When we lost to Spellman I said to myself, 'Now we know we have to wake up and get going.' Then losing to Stoughton, we had nothing out of that because I think we should've beat them. (Friday) we just didn't hit. We can't even get our bunts down."

Quincy (3-3 overall, 3-0 Atlantic Coast League) will face city rival North Quincy today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at renovated Mitchell/McCoy Field. It will host Milton Saturday at 4 p.m. and Falmouth next Monday at 4 p.m.

The Presidents ran into two of the top pitchers in the area, which was a large reason for their struggles at the plate.

Cardinal Spellman senior pitcher Ashley Bernstein struck out 12 Presidents for her third no-hitter of the season and Fontbonne junior Kat Roland punched out 13 without allowing a ball out of the infield in her perfect game.

"(Roland) throws hard but we have to hit this stuff," Sedar said. "I don't even know if they can play defense. We don't put any balls in play. But she's a burner. I think she's as fast as Bernstein. She might be a little faster.



"We're over-swinging. We have to get back in the cages. One of my problems is the two Sorensens aren't good for batting practice pitchers. We don't see a lot of live pitching. We see pitching machine balls and we need more than that."

Against Fontbonne, senior captain Rachel Sorensen started the game and went 4 1/3 innings, yielding three unearned runs on five hits and a walk. Her sister, senior captain Rebi, finished the game and gave up one run.

The usually sound defense committed four errors. "Our defense is a little shaky right now," Sedar said. "We're moving kids around because (Kim) Walsh is out (back injury). We have a patchwork lineup and have no bench right now because we have kids that are out."

MARYBETH TORPEY, a freshman, makes a great catch along the right field line to end the second inning.

RACHEL SORENSEN fires a pitch in Quincy's 4-0 loss to Fontbonne last Friday at Pageant Field. The senior captain pitched well, allowing three unearned runs before being relieved by her sister Rebi with one out in the fifth.

two outs, junior Mike MacPherson hit a ball back up the middle but the second baseman made a great play to knock it down to prevent Alexander from scoring.

"I thought we were going to win in the seventh inning, but the kid did a great job knocking it down," Draicchio said. "Defensively, probably the best team we've seen."

In the opener against AW, Folino, who is headed to the University of Connecticut in the fall, tossed the shutout with 11 strikeouts.

The Presidents got on the board in the first when Folino singled home Marchand (two hits). Folino knocked in two more runs in the fourth inning and crossed home on an error. MacPherson (two hits) plated Orlando with a double to close out the scoring.

Quincy followed the tournament last Saturday with a 7-0 victory at Randolph in a rain-shortened, five-inning game. Santon picked up the win by giving up one hit while striking out 11 and walking just one.

Quincy scored two runs in the first, second and fourth innings and a run in the fifth. Sophomore Steve Connolly drove in three runs, Sullivan two, Folino one and senior Mike Kearney one.

Five Named All-Stars

Five players were named to the all-star team for last week's first annual Quincy High School/North Quincy High School Invitational Baseball Tournament at Adams Field.

They are: seniors John Folino and Zach Eaton, both of Quincy; senior John Fitzgerald of North Quincy; senior Scott Weber of Archbishop Williams; and sophomore Ryan Stoller of Milton.

JUNIOR LEANNA LAM tries to bunt her way on base against Fontbonne's Kat Roland in the fifth inning.

Raiders Bow In Both Games

The North Quincy High School baseball team dropped both games in the first annual Quincy High School/North Quincy High School Invitational Baseball Tournament last week at Adams Field.

After being blanked by Milton, 6-0, in last Tuesday's opener, the Red Raiders put forth a better showing in last Thursday's consolation game, falling to Archbishop Williams, 7-6.

North Quincy (3-4-1 overall, 1-1 Atlantic Coast League) hosted Brockton Monday and Plymouth North Wednesday (4 p.m.). It will face off against cross-town rival Quincy today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Adams Field. It will host O'Bryant next Monday at 4 p.m.

In the consolation game, AW scored two runs off junior pitcher John Allen in the first inning on an RBI triple by Kevin Bossart of Quincy and an RBI single by Scott Weber.

The Red Raiders evened the score in the bottom half against junior pitcher Paul Galligan. With two outs, junior Drew Loud was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on senior Matt Haskins' single to right field. Haskins later scored when the ball got by the third baseman after stealing the base.

AW chased Allen out of the game in the fifth. Bossart ripped a leadoff double down the first base line and scored one out later on Weber's single. After giving up a walk and a single to load the bases, junior Joe Ceurvels relieved Allen.

Senior Joe Caparotta singled to left field to knock in two runs and the third runner scored on the play when the ball got past the fielder. Brendan McDonald knocked in Caparotta to make it 7-2.

North Quincy almost pulled off a dramatic win its last at-bat. With two outs, junior Tom Power singled home sophomore Shaun McBrien from second. Senior John Fitzgerald walked. Loud banged an RBI double and sophomore Dave Guerriero delivered a two-run single.

In the opener against Milton, Fitzgerald's third-inning single turned out to be the only hit off Tim Doyle, who fanned 11 Red Raiders.

Haskins gave up only one earned run on seven hits and struck out eight. Milton scored five unearned runs in the third inning as the defense fell apart behind Haskins.

Boating Public Safety Course

The Quincy Police Marine Unit and the Massachusetts Environmental Police are co-sponsoring Boat Massachusetts, a boating public safety course.

The course will be held May 14, 21 and 28 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club. All three Saturdays are required for state certification.

Offered to the public at no charge, Boat Massachusetts fosters safe boat operation through increased awareness of required safety equipment, safe boating practices and legal responsibilities.

Youth ages 12-15 who successfully complete the course will be issued a safety certificate allowing them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision, as required by state law.

The course will also satisfy the state requirements for personal watercraft users who are ages 16 or 17. All graduates will be issued a course completion diploma and a safety certificate.

Pre-registration is required. Contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police, Boat & Recreational Vehicle Bureau, at 508-790-9360 or 617-727-8760.

Quincy-North Girls' Track Defeat Nauset, Plymouth

The Quincy/North Quincy High School girls' track team recently took both ends of a tri-meet on the Cape and finished vacation week with an 11th-place finish out of 30 teams at the Route 228 Invitational at Hingham High.

Q/NQ beat Nauset, 80-52, and Plymouth, 70-61, in the meet at Nauset, which was held in a raging snow squall that at times hampered visibility.

Winners included Jenny Tam (long jump), Krystin Newsom (100 meters, 200, triple jump), Paula Morgan (shot-put, discus), Shauna Kelly (javelin), Kerry Regan (2 mile, 300 hurdles), Jessica Johnson (800, mile) and Krystin Kelley (400).

At the Route 228 Invitational for freshmen and sophomores, Kelly Pineo finished a close second in the shot-put with a best-ever 34 feet, 2 inches. Virginia Wong, a relative rookie, in her first-ever meet, tossed the javelin 91'4" for second place, beating the previous meet record.

SHAWNA KENNEDY bundles up against a raging snow squall in a recent tri-meet at Nauset Regional High School. The captain scored in both the 100 and 200 meters, helping Q/NQ to victories over Nauset and Plymouth South for the sweep.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

From Start To Fitness

by Andrea Wyatt M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Problem Areas

Q. I have been working out and eating well for the past several months, and I am seeing good results and feel great. I can tell that my body is changing by how my clothes look and by how I feel, but I still don't see much change in my problem areas. Is there anything I can do to see results in these problem areas?

A. You're not alone — many people have this same concern. Workout progressions, nutritional and lifestyle habits, in addition to medical conditions and genetics, play a large part in how your body responds to exercise and nutrition. Developing a plan that takes into consideration all of these factors can guide you toward reaching your goals.

Unfortunately, we have to rule out the option of spot training. Focusing your exercise routine on one particular muscle group in hopes of seeing results in that area alone is not possible. A total body exercise routine that consists of resistance and cardiovascular training will help you gain lean muscle mass and lose fat throughout your whole body.

Monitor your exercise program and be sure to keep progressing. If you are performing the same workout routine for long periods of time, your body will become efficient at performing those exercises and not have to exert as much effort. This is your cue to change or modify your program to create a challenge.

Nutrition and lifestyle habits are other factors to evaluate. Practicing balanced eating habits and keeping a stress-free lifestyle are necessary for your body to fully have the opportunity to change. As with exercise, you want to monitor your eating and lifestyle habits to be sure they are complementing each other.

It is important to recognize the role that certain medical conditions and genetics play in your body composition. Speak with your physician about any medical conditions and medications that may have an effect your body. Be sure to be honest about your activity level and nutritional habits.

Genetics plays a large role in determining how your body will respond to exercise and where it decides to place body fat. Looking at immediate family members can sometimes give you an idea of places, such as hips and thighs, where you may find a problem area. Don't fret if you are not happy about what you see. Keep working hard and stay consistent to get closer to the results you desire.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@ hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

South Coastal Bank 'Strutters' To Walk In Honor Of Colleague

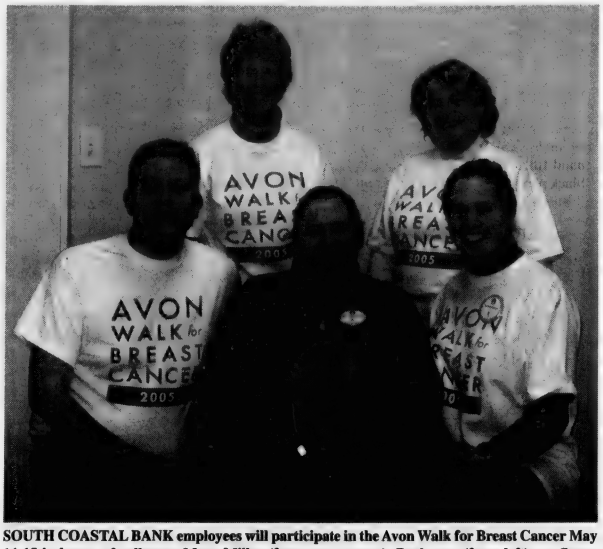
For the second consecutive year, South Coastal Bank employees will participate in the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer in Boston May 14-15.

Returning members of the south Coastal "Strutters" team include Susan Lincoln, senior vice president and director of retail banking; Ann O'Keefe, vice president and retail operations manager; and Danielle Walsh, assistance vice president and assistant controller.

Joining the team is their first male member, network administrator James Gordon.

They will walk in honor of South Coastal Bank colleague Mary Miller, who was diagnosed with breast cancer last summer.

The Avon Walk requires each walker to raise a minimum of $1,800. As part of the South Coastal Strutters' fundraising efforts, all South Coastal Bank branches are selling raffle tickets for a chance to win four Red Sox tickets, plus a parking pass, for the Sunday, May 22 game against the Atlanta Braves. Local branch is located at 1259 Hancock St., Quincy Center.



The winning ticket will be drawn Monday, May 9.

South Coastal Strutters are also selling breast cancer awareness bracelets at all South Coastal Bank branch offices. The pink silicone wristbands bear the message "Strive for a Cure."

Besides helping his colleague, Gordon's walk will celebrate his 105-pound weight loss. Gordon, who is in his mid-20s, was prompted to address his weight issues when he was diagnosed with a pulmonary embolism and high cholesterol. He has been following the Atkins/low carb diet for the past eight months and has been walking regularly to train for the Avon Walk.

Gordon said his participation in the walk is in honor of his girlfriend's mother, who has been in remission for five years. He encourages other men to participate in the Avon Walk.

To make a donation in support of the South Coastal Strutters, visit the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer website at www.avonwalk.org.

Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month

(NU) - Colorectal cancer is 90 percent preventable and 90 percent treatable when detected early, yet it continues to be the second leading cause of cancer-related death in the United Sates.

To help spread the message about the importance of early detection, the Cancer Research and Prevention Foundation and its 54 partners have joined together to celebrate National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month by introducing the "Buddy Bracelet."

The bracelet reminds those who wear it to get screened for colorectal cancer. Its theme, "Wear it, share it," is a message that could save thousands of lives.

To purchase a Buddy Bracelet for $1, call toll-free (877) 35-COLON (352-6566) or visit www.preventcancer.org.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE BEST D-FENSE

It is well known that vitamin D helps the body absorb calcium, without which bones and teeth become brittle. What is just now coming to light is that vitamin D also plays another important role in promoting oral health. In a recent review of the dental records of more than 11,000 subjects nationwide, it was found that those over the age of 50 who had the highest levels of vitamin D were the least likely to have periodontal (gum) disease. This chronic condition is characterized by gums that become so inflamed from plaque that tissue and bone supporting the teeth eventually erode. It is thought that the newly discovered anti-inflammatory effects of vitamin D could explain its healthy-gum benefit.

Your teeth are intended to last a lifetime – and they can, with proper care. You need not lose your teeth to gum disease. Periodontal disease is usually a slow, painless, progressive disease. We will check your mouth for any disorders, including gum disease. We will do everything possible to insure that your visits to us will be as comfortable and pleasant as possible. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our sole aim is to provide gentle, compassionate dental care of the highest quality. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Vitamin D is found in fish and fortified milk. The body also manufactures it, after 10-20 minutes in the summer sun, as well as in lower latitudes all year.

A Job Well Done

By SGT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, April 20, at approximately 2:05 p.m., Officer Paul Pieper was on routine patrol when he was flagged down by a citizen at the corner of Presidents Lane and Granite Street. This citizen told him that a large black male wearing a white tank top and black pants attempted to steal his friend's electric tile saw. Officer Pieper, recalling a person meeting this description of Furnace Brook Parkway, notified headquarters of the incident.

SGT. DAN MINTON

Officer Pieper then located the suspect at 179 Burgin Parkway and read him Miranda Rights. Detective Tom Cleary arrived at the scene to assist. The suspect was informed of the allegations and then given the opportunity to provide an explanation. At the same time, Officer Gerry Connolly was interviewing the witness to gather further evidence.

The suspect, a resident of the area, said he was walking down Whitwell Street and stopped on the front steps of a home for a cigarette. He said that he needed to recharge his cell phone and decided to unplug an electric saw from the extension cord. The suspect said that a woman began banging on the window from the house next door. He added that he walked over to the screen where the woman was and put his finger through the screen to play with a cat in the window.

Officer Connolly and Officer Pieper learned from the witness that the suspect did not stop for a cigarette, then unplugged the saw. The witness said she began banging and yelling at the suspect to stop. The suspect then walked toward the witness's window and poked his finger through the screen, which according to the witness, made her very nervous.

Officer Pieper filed a complaint application, charging the suspect with "Attempted Larceny under $250" (a misdemeanor) because the suspect made an overt attempt to take the saw when he unplugged it. The charge is supported by the suspect's fabrication about his cell phone needing to be recharged. When Officer Pieper asked the suspect to show him his cell phone to corroborate his story, the suspect said he no longer had it with him.

In this case, the witness was very thorough and this helped the officers build circumstantial evidence to pursue criminal charges against the suspect.

Nice work!

Crime Prevention Unit Offering Child Seat Installation, Inspection

The Quincy Police Department Crime Prevention Unit will offer a child seat installation and inspection program at the Quincy Wal-Mart (front parking lot away from entrance) Saturday, May 7 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Due to the high demand as well as an estimated 30 minutes for installation per car, reservations are required. There is no scheduled rain date.

To qualify, the following standards must be met:

- Quincy residents only - Photo I.D. proof of Quincy residency.
- Quincy registration - only vehicles registered in Quincy.
- Child seat must have labeling requirements on seat.
- You must bring the child seat owner's manual.
- Check http://hsrc.unc.edu/pubinfo/childrecall1pdf.htm to see if the seat has been recalled.
- Seats that have been involved in an accident will not be examined or installed.
- Certain vehicles, such as pick up trucks with one row seating, are excluded.
- It is not recommended that you buy child car seats from yard sales or from second-hand stores.

For reservations, contact Sgt. Dan Minton, Quincy Crime Prevention Unit, 617-745-5719.

SPRING CAR CARE

Repair 101: Dealing With Today's Rolling Computers

Microprocessors. Sensors. Circuits. Stored data. Typical computer jargon, right? Surprisingly, these are also typical topics for today's automotive technicians.

Vehicles have grown more sophisticated over the past two decades. The wonderful options and systems we love — electronic seats, climate control, anti-lock braking systems, remote door unlock — require computer processing and monitoring.

In order to meet changing customer expectations, automakers now must design sophisticated vehicles that are run by small but powerful computers. In fact, new vehicles have computing power sufficient to fly a 747 airplane.

And it's not just this year's models. Any vehicle manufactured since the 1980s has computerized components. Even "basic" models, without many options or extras, rely on computer circuits to operate efficiently.

An advantage to this new technology and engineering is that many of the maintenance and repair intervals have been extended. Increased quality and better-designed engine systems combined with refined oils and lubricants have reduced the recommended replacement schedule for engine coolant, transmission fluid and engine oil.

However, exceeding these intervals can result in premature failure and damage to very expensive parts, so it's more important than ever to follow the recommendations in your vehicle owner's manual.

But the savings — money and time — of less frequent maintenance and repairs is offset by the cost of individual repairs. Automotive diagnosis, parts and repair are now more costly. The old-fashioned diagnosis techniques are now supplemented by computer reports that alert the technician to engineering improvements and upgrades recommended by the vehicle manufacturer.

Additionally, a vehicle's on-board computer stores information concerning sensor and component failure in the form of trouble codes. Replacing parts is now more complex and time-consuming. Plus, as college graduates with additional investments in certification and specialized training, the small population that become vehicle technicians can command higher salaries.

So how can you manage the costs and care for your rolling computer?

• Check technician certifications. With all of this high-tech equipment under the hood, make sure you're working with a technician who is trained for today's vehicles. The two most common forms of technician certification comes from the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), which offers certification on 42 different automotive repairs. Technicians must re-certify every five years. Facilities usually post their technicians' ASE credentials, though it's always appropriate to ask if the shop is ASE-certified in your particular repair need. Car manufacturers also have extensive training programs to certify technicians in specific years, makes, models and vehicle systems.

• Know the habits of your vehicle. Think of your vehicle's problem as a mystery: what is wrong is the puzzle you and your technician must solve. You must piece together the details of when the problem occurred, if it is ongoing and under what circumstances, and any sounds, smells and handling changes. Before you get to the repair facility, jot down everything you can think of to help the technician solve the problem. You may not think a small detail is relevant, but it could shave an hour off the diagnosis time by pointing the technician in the right direction.

• Is specialization better? Autos are so complex it can be difficult and expensive for a repair facility to stay on top of all types or repairs needed for all the vehicles on the road. That's why some shops specialize in one type of repair, such as transmissions or brakes. Generally, these facilities would be an excellent resource for the specific repair or maintenance need. However, if you aren't certain which repair your vehicle needs, a facility that covers all general needs would be a good first stop for diagnosis. You then may elect to have the specialist perform the work, or you may even be referred to one by your general technician.

• Ask for an estimate. Facilities will gladly provide an estimate; however, the format may differ from your past experiences. For example, many repairs require more diagnostic time than actual repair time — testing computer wires to find a short circuit or corroded connection, for example. You'll also see some new charges, such as a computer diagnostic fee or hazardous materials charge. These are not unusual in today's high-tech automotive world. However, discuss any questions you may have with your technician for a better understanding.

Hot Tips To Keep Cool This Summer

Here are a few tips to make sure that your car's air conditioning will not cause you discomfort this summer.

First, it is important to understand how air conditioning works. Your car's system works in the same manner as your home's refrigerator and air conditioning system. Basically, refrigerant is pumped through the system by a compressor and reduced to a low pressure and temperature inside the passenger compartment. Then the refrigerant is squeezed to a high pressure and temperature outside under the hood.

Inside the car, the "blower" or fan forces air over the cold part of the system, and heat from the air is transferred into the refrigerant. Moisture is also removed from the air as it clings to the cold cooling surfaces and is discharged outside through a drain tube. Under the hood, air is also forced over the hot part of the system by the cooling fan (in some cases the same one that cools the radiator), and heat is transferred out of the refrigerant into the atmosphere. The refrigeration cycle is repeated over and over.

How well the system cools your car depends on the efficiency of the above components and also on having the right amount of refrigerant in the system. Maintaining your air conditioner actually begins by careful attention to the engine's cooling system. If the engine is running hotter than normal, or if the cooling fan is turning too slowly, it will be harder for the refrigerant to give up its heat under the hood, resulting in poor cooling inside the car. If the belt that drives the compressor slips or breaks, the refrigerant cannot be pumped through the cooling system properly. Inside the car, a poorly functioning blower or blocked air-conditioning outlets will decrease cooling efficiency.

This leads to the refrigerant itself. Too much or too little in the system will result in poor cooling because the pressure and temperatures will not be correct for good heat transfer. But there are problems other than refrigerant level that can cause system pressures and temperatures to go haywire, so it is dangerous to just have refrigerant added to a poorly cooling system. Overcharging could actually decrease the cooling efficiency even more and could also cause major damage. It is best to have the refrigerant level professionally checked and adjusted, if necessary, using only the type of refrigerant designed for your car's system.

Contrary to popular believe, there is no such thing as a normal refrigerant leak. If the system requires periodic recharging or "topping off," there is a leak that needs repair.

To keep your air-conditioning working at its best:

• Have the engine cooling system maintained and inspected regularly.

• Have the drive belts inspected and adjusted.

• Check for good airflow at the air-conditioning outlets.

• Refer all air-conditioning system service to qualified personnel.

However, you should not:

• Have a leaking air-conditioning system recharged or "topped off."

• Try to add refrigerant yourself.

• Attempt to open or disconnect air-conditioning hoses or lines. Serious frostbite or eye injury can result from escaping refrigerant and oil. Discharging refrigerant into the atmosphere is illegal in the United States.

REALLY WARPED!
If a steering wheel begins to vibrate as a vehicle is slowed to a stop, one of the rotors is probably warped. The brake rotor may become warped (or have a high or uneven spot on its surface) due to normal wear and tear. It can also warp because of expansion and contraction of the metal disc rotor due to driving through a puddle of water or after a long trip on the highway, then abruptly applying the brakes. Severely worn brake pads may also be the culprits, by allowing metal to grind on metal, which cuts grooves in the brake disc. In any case, the brake pads will pulsate on a warped rotor as they squeeze the high spot.
Do you feel a chatter when braking? Time to have your braking system checked out. Bring it in to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment and ASE Certified technicians. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.".
HINT: Warped rotors can be corrected by being ground down or, preferably, replaced.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It has been said that a man with his head in the clouds is in no position to watch his step.

When driving in your car, have you ever been irritated and alarmed (and scared, too) by the way in which children, intent on their play, sometimes run suddenly out into the street oblivious of the traffic? If they pay any attention to it all, they usually only look one way and fail to notice the traffic coming from the opposite direction.

This habit of looking only one way is not only characteristic of children, but can often be seen in older people as well. We all know some young people who made a snap judgment to drop out of school after looking only one way at the traffic of life. We all know persons who have been equally hasty and ill-advised in starting businesses without adequate preparation. . .

"Standing on the curb" and looking carefully at dangers and problems coming from all directions might take a little more time, but it is the only way to insure a safe passage across the street.

There is a word for this way of meeting life's problems - Maturity . . .
